TRUMAN ACCUSES RUSSIA OF PLANNING WAR

ACCUSED SPY TO FACE HEARING IN COURT TOMORROW

American Chemist Will Go Before District Judge; Charged With Espionage

PLEA BY DEFENDANT IS REPORTED NOT PROBABLE

PHILADELPHIA, June 10.—(AP)—Harry Gold, the American chemist accused of delivering stolen atom bomb secrets to Russia, gets a hearing in federal court Monday.

It might be routine — and it might not.

Gold was arrested May 23 on espionage charges, given a swift hearing before U. S. District Judge James P. McGranery and imprisoned under $100,000 bail.

Monday he goes before McGranery as the government seeks to have him removed to New York City where Gold is under indictment as a spy.

U. S. Attorney Gerald A. Gleason said today he does not expect the 39-year-old research chemist—or his court-appointed attorney—to object to removal proceedings.

But a source close to federal court officials said Gold "might pull a surprise and make a plea." He added, however, it was very unlikely.

Before Gold could make a plea—denying or admitting the spy charges—he'd first have to receive permission from the U. S. attorney. This, too, is reported possible but not probable.

Should Gold plead guilty, with U. S. permission, he could avoid a public trial. Judge McGranery then could impose immediate sentence. The maximum sentence under the wartime espionage act is death.

John D. M. Hamilton, prominent Philadelphian and former Republican national chairman who is Gold's attorney, declined to discuss his client's position in advance of the hearing.

Gold was indicted by a federal grand jury in Brooklyn yesterday. It accused him of serving as an intermediary between Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted British scientist-traitor, and members of a wartime Soviet A-bomb spy ring.

Indicted at the same time were two unidentified co-conspirators—"John Doe, alias John" and "Richard Roe alias Sam."

The indictment specifically ac-

MARINE VETERAN KILLED BY WOMAN

Two Young Daughters Tell Police Mother Fired Fatal Shot On Dare

GEORGETOWN, Del., June 10.—(AP)—A marine corps veteran was killed by a rifle bullet here today and state police reported two young daughters of an ex-WAC told them their mother fired the fatal shot on a dare.

The account of the shooting came from State Police Captain Clarence Lynch after he questioned 14-year-old Dorothy Reno and Irene Reno, 11, daughters by a previous marriage of Mrs. Thelma D. Powell.

Mrs. Powell, 31-year-old former WAC, is held in the death of Granville W. Brittingham, 22, whose body was found in Mrs. Powell's cottage on Du Pont highway. Lynch said Mrs. Powell told him Brittingham was a friend of her estranged husband, George T. Powell.

The police captain said Mrs. Powell made an oral statement admitting the shooting.

Mrs. Powell is held without charge at Sussex county prison, Lynch said, while police round up details of the slaying.

The children's account of what they overheard in the early morning hours, as told by Captain Lunch, was:

Awakened by the entry of Mrs. Powell and Brittingham, they heard their mother tell Brittingham it was late, and to go home. He refused.

The mother said: "If you don't, I'll shoot you."

Brittingham said: "Go ahead. I dare you, but make sure it's between the eyes."

Mrs. Powell: "I'll shoot you, not between the eyes, but in the arm, or leg."

"Go ahead," Brittingham told her again, "I dare you."

The shot followed.

Medical examination, according to Lynch, disclosed that a slug hit Brittingham below the shoulder, and pierced the heart.

New Violence Breaks At American Enka Corp.

Highway Patrolmen Return In Wake Of Post-Midnight Outbreak Of Stone-Throwing And Club-Wielding; Begins After Militia Leaves

MORRISTOWN, Tenn., June 10.—(AP)—New violence, called the "worst yet," broke out at the American Enka Corporation early today, soon after National Guardsmen withdrew from the strike-harassed rayon plant.

Squads of highway patrolmen, who had shared strike duty with the militia, came racing back in the wake of a post-midnight outburst of stone-throwing and club-wielding.

In Nashville Adjutant General Sam T. Wallace said there were no plans "at the present time" for returning Guard units, the last of which departed only yesterday.

The C. I. O. textile workers union struck the plant ten weeks ago in demands for a wage increase and other benefits to add the equivalent of 23 cents to the present $1.32 hourly wage average. The company has offered 10 cents.

Today's clash, which erupted when the midnight shift was leaving, was a continuation of disorders preceding the arrival of 300 National Guardsmen on May 29.

Highway Patrol Sgt. Carl Gilbert said a mob of 75 to 100 men "ambushed" a caravan of 12 automobiles loaded with workers. He reported one worker injured by flying glass and one auto overturned in the free-for-all, stone-hurling melee.

The next shift change—at 7 a.m.—went off without incident as 30 patrolmen stood by.

T. W. Iserman, of New York, an Enka attorney, said he witnessed the early morning melee. He called it "the worst yet" in the 10-week-old strike.

The last unit of 100 guardsmen was withdrawn yesterday after Browning said he had received union assurances there would be no further trouble.

H. S. Williams, state director of the C. I. O. union, said he had no "evidence that our membership participated in the incidents."

Company officials say more than half the normal working force has been on the job since the plant reopened last week with the militia on hand.

RUSSIANS ACCUSE U. S. AUTHORITIES

Say Americans Mistreated Soviet Captain, Sergeant Hurt In Accident

BERLIN, June 10.—(AP)—The Russians tonight protested to U. S. authorities the alleged "maltreatment" by American military police of a Russian captain and a sergeant injured in a car accident in the American zone last Sunday.

Gen. Vassily Chuikov, Soviet commander in Germany, in a letter to U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy voiced a "resolute protest" of what he called the "shocking acts" of the American military police towards the Russians.

He demanded "severe punishment of those responsible for the maltreatment of injured Soviet military persons."

In Frankfurt, a U. S. high commission spokesman said he did not believe that Gen. Chuikov's letter has been received by the commission. He said that there would be no comment from the commission until the protest had been studied.

McCloy was traveling in Bavaria and could not be reached.

President Truman Marches In Parade In St. Louis, Mo.

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—(AP)—Harry S. Truman, looking like the happiest man in town, marched through the streets of St. Louis today with the agility of a boy scout.

And the next happiest man in Missouri's big city was his favorite barber—short, plump Frank Spina of Kansas City. Spina carried the Red Guidon (flag) of Battery D, 129th field artillery, which the President commanded in world war I, with the tenderness of a father holding his firstborn.

The occasion was the annual reunion parade of the 35th division. A good part of St. Louis turned out to clap, cheer, wave and shout "Hi Harry" at the grinning President of the United States.

It was Kansas City, Omaha and Little Rock all over again as the white-suited "Captain Harry" stepped jauntily along the mile-and-half parade route waving a new white hat and acting like he never had so much fun.

It was the fourth straight annual reunion parade he has attended as president, and crowds lined the sidewalks to cheer him and his "buddies" on their way.

Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell estimated the turnout at 250,000.

The President was equipped with the orange arm band of Battery D and a gold-headed cane the battery gave him when he was inaugurated in 1949.

There were no "easy riders" in the parade. The President made good his threat to make everybody walk.

Earlier he had told them he was in St. Louis to see that no "bunch of old stiffs" got by with anything. He said he'd see that everybody got "the proper amount of exercise."

"If there is any fat colonel or general who thinks he is going to ride in this parade, he is just as mistaken as he can be," the President went on. "That just doesn't happen when I am President."

And he said that went for Secre-

JAP CRACK-DOWN ON REDS OCCURS

Police Order Communists To Rip Down Copies Of Party Newspaper Red Flag

TOKYO, June 10. —(AP)— Police today cracked down on Communists at Yokosuka, site of the big U. S. naval base south of Tokyo.

The action was geared to police drivers against Communist anti-occupation activities in Tokyo and Osaka.

Public meetings in Yokosuka's city square were banned. Police ordered Communists to rip down copies of the party newspaper Akahata (Red Flag) from billboards.

Government leaders conferred with police officials in Tokyo. It was reported they talked about plans to squelch any demonstrations against General MacArthur's purge of the Communist party's high command.

(The Chinese Communist radio again attacked MacArthur for his purge. It quoted the Peiping Kwang Ming daily as saying "it is very clear to the Japanese people that American occupation policy is aimed at turning them into slaves

Diary Reveals President's Refusal To Postpone Case

Forrestal's Personal Papers Show He Intervened Nine Days Before Six Were Arrested; Told Truman Act Might Hurt Relations

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Personal papers of the late James V. Forrestal showed today he stepped in before the sensational Amerasia case broke in 1945 to get word to President Truman that it might imperil Russian relations.

But Mr. Truman refused to postpone the case. The six arrests came only nine days after Forrestal intervened.

The justice department confirmed contents of the Forrestal papers a few hours after the Washington Star published the story.

Forrestal, then secretary of the navy, wanted to make sure Mr. Truman knew all about the case for fear it would "greatly embarrass" relations with Russia in the critical negotiations for establishment of the United Nations.

In a May 28 entry among "diary notes," the Star says Forrestal anticipated that the arrests, then scheduled for May 30, would bring an "anti-Russia playup" of the incident "out of all proportions to its importance."

Reutal wrote that he had asked a presidential aide to see that Mr. Truman was informed, and called FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in efforts to get before Mr. Truman the facts "as well as their implication."

Nevertheless, the president ordered the case to proceed and the FBI cracked down on June 6.

The six persons, including three government employes, were arrested on espionage charges growing out of raids on offices of an obscure magazine, Amerasia, where hundreds of secret government papers were found. Four of the six later were freed and two paid fines on lesser charges of re-

HALF AMERICA'S PEOPLE COUNTED

Predicts Population Of North, South And Central Americas At 325,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Half of the new world's population has been counted so far this year in the first hemisphere census in history, Dr. Calvert Dedrick of the U. S. Census Bureau said today.

On the basis of returns to date, the human inventory of north, south and central America is expected to show a total of about 325,000,000 slightly higher than first estimated.

Dr. Dedrick said that although no final figures have been released yet by any country, the United States, Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Nicaragua, and Honduras have virtually finished their count.

Brazil will begin its census July 1, followed by Haiti and the Dominican Republic in August, Bolivia, Colombia, Panama, Paraguay and Peru in September and Ecuador and Venezuela in November.

Uruguay will take its census in 1951, and Cuba in 1953. Argentina, which conducted its last census in 1947, has decided to skip the 1950 count.

"According to current estimates, Latin America is the fastest growing population in the world," Dr. Dedrick told a reporter.

He estimated that when the 1960 census is taken, Latin America will be ahead of the United States. At present, they are about evenly divided in new world population, each with roughly 150,000,000.

"Latin America is increasing its population at the rate of about 3,000,000 a year, while the U. S. is growing about 2,000,000 annually," Dr. Dedrick, coordinator of international statistics for the bureau of census, U. S. Department of Agriculture, said.

The history-making census—first ever taken in Ecuador, first in over 40 years in Bolivia and Uruguay — will provide government and business heretofore unobtain-

AIR FORCE PLANE CRASH KILLS ONE

Plane's Power Fails On Take-Off; Causes Craft To Ram Into Barracks

TULSA, Okla., June 10—(AP)—An air force C-47 transport plane's power failed on a take-off today, causing the craft to ram an aviation school's barracks and injured three men, one fatally.

Amuel A. Kerr, 59, a janitor for the Spartan School of Aeronautics, died a few hours after the plane's wing sliced through a building where he was at work.

Eighteen persons aboard the plane and 60 students sleeping in a barracks touched by the wrecked ship escaped injury.

Alma Puckett, 61, another janitor in the building, was critically hurt. J. W. Long, 67, a school guard, suffered cuts and bruises.

The plane, stationed at Scott Field, Ill., arrived here last night from Wichita, Kas. It was taking off for Fort Scott when it crashed.

Witnesses said the pilot was unable to gain power and never got three feet off the ground.

It ran off the runway, hit a fence and the crashed into the barracks housing students. The plane came to rest against the barracks building, where the 60 students were sleeping.

Another 100 students were eating breakfast 70 yards away.

An unidentified motorist changing a tire on a road in the path of the plane narrowly escaped injury.

Police Captain Joe McGuire said the man threw himself into a ditch just before the plane swept over the road.

The tilted wing barely cleared the car before it cut a 20 foot slice into the barracks buildings.

Ground made soggy by overnight rains helped slow the plane and it stopped facing the direction it came.

Capt. Harry Hunt, the plane's copilot, said he was under instructions to give no details of the mishap. He did say, though, all the passengers were from Scott Field.

U. S. POTATOES ARE SENT GERMANY

Hundred Million Pounds Pour Into Soviet Zone To Feed Hungry Germans

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 10.—(AP)—A hundred million pounds of surplus American potatoes poured in on Soviet East Germany today to feed victims of the potato-bug fantasy.

The price was one cent per hundred pounds, f. o. b. New York. Potatoes cost a New York housewife five to six cents a pound at retail stores under the government farm subsidy price maintenance plan.

The shipments to East Germany are an offset to a potato famine where Communist propaganda says U. S. bomber planes are sowing insects to: 1-Blight the East German crop, 2-Test out germ warfare, and 3-Sell capitalistic bug poison.

American officials called the charges ridiculous and said the Communists apparently were trying to condition the people to a crop failure.

Unofficial sources said last year's short crop may have caused a shortage of seed potatoes for spring planting. East Germany failed to make good on a contract last October to deliver 100,000 tons of potatoes to feed West Berlin.

Arthur Stroh, interzonal trade expert for the U. S. high commission, said he believed the imports were to fill current rations.

Planting in East Germany ended in early May, but trustworthy reports reaching the commission said potato bug infestation in some districts is five times as bad as 1949.

The state and agriculture departments in Washington said there was nothing to prevent the potato deal but the state department indicated export regulations would be reviewed.

It said that in addition to the original 50,000 tons for eastern Germany there is another deal to ship 18,000 tons to Frankfurt, in allied western Germany.

In both cases state department officials suspected all along that the potatoes were going to the Communist East.

Department informants said a New York broker named David Zetland, operating a corporation of that name, bought the 50,000-ton lot from the agriculture department in New York for delivery to a Swiss firm in Hamburg.

After closing the deal in mid-May, agriculture officials asked the state department for a review because of possible political implications.

No policy reason could be found to stop the shipment even though it might be headed for Communist territory. Export controls operate against sending strategic materials to eastern Europe but potatoes are not included in that category now.

OFFICIALS MOVE TO REVIVE PLAN

Diplomats Seek Development Of Pacific Defence Treaty With Anti-Reds

WASHINGTON, June 10. —(AP)— Talk of developing a Pacific defense treaty among the non-Communist allies of World War II has been revived by diplomatic officials here in their search for a workable way to make a peace settlement with Japan.

Such a device might be used, it was said today, if the American government decides that a regular peace treaty is not a good idea at this time and that a peace settlement must be arranged by other means. It could also be employed to supplement the peace treaty and reassure Western Pacific countries about America's intention to help protect them against both Communism and Japanese militarism.

State department officials, reportedly including Republican Advisor John Foster Dulles, have looked into the idea and it seems likely to come up for discussion when Dulles meets Gen. Douglas McArthur in Tokyo in about 10 days.

Defense Secretary Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chief of staffs, will leave tomorrow on a tour of Pacific defense installations which will also take them to Tokyo for treaty talks

Police Intercept Vehicle Carrying Youth To Hospital

COLUMBUS, O., June 10.—(AP)—An automobile carrying an eight-year-old boy believed suffering from a contagious type of spinal meningitis was intercepted by state highway patrolmen today near Marion.

Law officers in Michigan and Ohio had been looking for the car since an alarm was broadcast by Toledo authorities late yesterday. The boy, Stanley Mitchell, Jr. his carnival worker parents and two other children were in the auto.

Patrolmen brought the group to University Hospital here, some 50 miles from Marion. They said the boy's admittance to the hospital was delayed while they argued with authorities over whether he should be returned to Toledo.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mitchell, and the other children at first refused to leave their car. Later they all trooped into the hospital for Stanley's examination.

Police said the Mitchells insisted the boy wasn't sick and protested the fuss about him.

Search for the Mitchells began after Lucas County Health Commissioner Frank Mahla said the disease is highly contagious and has a high death rate.

He became concerned when the Mitchells disappeared after Toledo physicians told the parents their boy had meningitis and should have a spinal tap and laboratory tests.

SOVIETS BLASTED

President Says U.S.S.R. Talks Of Democracy But Sets Up Dictatorship

CHARGE REDS WITH HAVING LARGEST PEACETIME FORCE

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—(AP)—President Truman blasted Soviet Russia today for talking peace while "preparing for war" in his most devastating attack on Communist aggression since the outbreak of the cold war.

Speaking from an improvised stand, overlooking the Mississippi riverfront, to thousands standing in a blazing sun, he hurled this blunt indictment at the Russians:

"With a cynical disregard for the hopes of mankind, the leaders of the Soviet Union have talked of democracy—but have set up dictatorships.

"They have proclaimed national independence—but imposed national slavery.

"They have preached peace—but devoted their energies to fomenting aggression and preparing for war."

And he condemned the Soviet Union for maintaining history's "largest peacetime army."

Mr. Truman pinpointed his charges by 13 specific references to Russia or its rulers.

A crowd estimated by Police Capt. James F. Thompson at more than 35,000 gathered to hear the chief executive denounce Russia's leadership as "an obstacle to peace."

The President was cheered as he officially charged Russia with preparing for war. Putting aside the usual language of diplomacy, he spoke bitterly and bluntly.

Guests on the bunting-draped platform with Mr. Truman included Defense Secretary Johnson and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

The major foreign policy pronouncement was televised and carried over all the major radio networks at home. And the state department's "Voice of America" moved it all over the world in 24 languages.

The president's speech concluded a round of fun and meetings with old comrades of Battery D., 129th Field Artillery, at their 35th division reunion. He spoke from a historic site on the Mississippi riverfront.

From a specially constructed stand behind an old Catholic cathedral, he dedicated the area as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson in another step toward eventual completion of a riverfront park commemorating the "Louisiana Purchase."

He warned those at home against what he called the dangerous belief that the United States can abandon its aid to other free nations in these critical times.

He reserved for the Russians, though, the stern language of a prosecuting attorney. And he condemned them for the demonstra-

STATE MEET OF V. F. A. SLATED

Will Bring Many To Twin Cities During The Present Week

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary anticipate a large attendance at the twentieth annual state encampment in Monroe June 16, 17 and 18. Estimates of attendance vary from 700 to fully 1500, who are expected to come from all over Louisiana and from other states nearby and even from states at a distance.

With unusual interest will be the visit here of Clyde A. Lewis, Plattsburg, N. Y., commander-in-chief of the organization. He is a prominent attorney in his home city and has accepted an invitation to attend the local convention. He will fly here in his own plane and is scheduled for arrival at Selman airport at about noon Saturday.

He spent 21 months overseas, first as a B-17 pilot with the 401st bomb group, 8th air force. He was successively a flight commander, squadron operations officer and squadron leader. He completed one tour of duty and volunteered for and had almost completed his second tour by VE Day. During the latter tour, he flew as a group and wing air commander. He was promoted to major in January 1945 and was separated from service in the following September.

The program for the convention is now being completed and will be published early this week.

The occasion was the annual reunion parade of the 35th division. A good part of St. Louis turned out to clap, cheer, wave and shout "Hi Harry" at the grinning President of the United States.

It was Kansas City, Omaha and Little Rock all over again as the white-suited "Captain Harry" stepped jauntily along the mile-and-half parade route waving a new white hat and acting like he never had so much fun.

It was the fourth straight annual reunion parade he has attended as president, and crowds lined the sidewalks to cheer him and his "buddies" on their way.

Police Chief Jeremiah O'Connell estimated the turnout at 250,000.

The President was equipped with the orange arm band of Battery D and a gold-headed cane the battery gave him when he was inaugurated in 1949.

There were no "easy riders" in the parade. The President made good his threat to make everybody walk.

Earlier he had told them he was in St. Louis to see that no "bunch of old stiffs" got by with anything. He said he'd see that everybody got "the proper amount of exercise."

"If there is any fat colonel or general who thinks he is going to ride in this parade, he is just as mistaken as he can be," the President went on. "That just doesn't happen when I am President."

And he said that went for Secre-

All garfish beware! There's a price on your finny heads! The International Garfish Rodeo at Alexandria has issued a decree.

Rodeos will be held with double purpose, first to promote destruction of htis predatory fish and thus save millions of game fish each year; and second to advertise indirectly the unlimited fresh-water fishing possibilities of Louisiana.

The association will hold its 1950 rodeo during the last week in August with headquarters in Alexandria and entries far and wide are expected from participants.

We always like to know about the chap who makes good on whom Monroe has some claim. Reverend B. F. Wallace for some time in the past was the superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's home in Monroe and left to go to Shreveport. Over there he organized the Lakeshore Baptist Church which has grown so well that it is now starting erection of a $125,000 church auditorium.

This church was organized nine years ago by Reverend Wallace and now has nearly four acres for site free of debt on which there is already a large educational building and present property value is placed at $100,000. All this is credited largely to the enterprise and ability of the pastor who is receiving plaudits for the results of his efforts.

JAP CRACK-DOWN ON REDS OCCURS

Police Order Communists To Rip Down Copies Of Party Newspaper Red Flag

TOKYO, June 10. —(AP)— Police today cracked down on Communists at Yokosuka, site of the big U. S. naval base south of Tokyo.

The action was geared to police drivers against Communist anti-occupation activities in Tokyo and Osaka.

Public meetings in Yokosuka's city square were banned. Police ordered Communists to rip down copies of the party newspaper Akahata (Red Flag) from billboards.

Government leaders conferred with police officials in Tokyo. It was reported they talked about plans to squelch any demonstrations against General MacArthur's purge of the Communist party's high command.

(The Chinese Communist radio again attacked MacArthur for his purge. It quoted the Peiping Kwang Ming daily as saying "it is very clear to the Japanese people that American occupation policy is aimed at turning them into slaves

Forrestal's Personal Papers Show He Intervened Nine Days Before Six Were Arrested; Told Truman Act Might Hurt Relations

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Personal papers of the late James V. Forrestal showed today he stepped in before the sensational Amerasia case broke in 1945 to get word to President Truman that it might imperil Russian relations.

But Mr. Truman refused to postpone the case. The six arrests came only nine days after Forrestal intervened.

The justice department confirmed contents of the Forrestal papers a few hours after the Washington Star published the story.

Forrestal, then secretary of the navy, wanted to make sure Mr. Truman knew all about the case for fear it would "greatly embarrass" relations with Russia in the critical negotiations for establishment of the United Nations.

In a May 28 entry among "diary notes," the Star says Forrestal anticipated that the arrests, then scheduled for May 30, would bring an "anti-Russia playup" of the incident "out of all proportions to its importance."

Reutal wrote that he had asked a presidential aide to see that Mr. Truman was informed, and called FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in efforts to get before Mr. Truman the facts "as well as their implication."

Nevertheless, the president ordered the case to proceed and the FBI cracked down on June 6.

The six persons, including three government employes, were arrested on espionage charges growing out of raids on offices of an obscure magazine, Amerasia, where hundreds of secret government papers were found. Four of the six later were freed and two paid fines on lesser charges of re-

HALF AMERICA'S PEOPLE COUNTED

Predicts Population Of North, South And Central Americas At 325,000,000

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Half of the new world's population has been counted so far this year in the first hemisphere census in history, Dr. Calvert Dedrick of the U. S. Census Bureau said today.

On the basis of returns to date, the human inventory of north, south and central America is expected to show a total of about 325,000,000 slightly higher than first estimated.

Dr. Dedrick said that although no final figures have been released yet by any country, the United States, Mexico, Guatemala, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Nicaragua, and Honduras have virtually finished their count.

Brazil will begin its census July 1, followed by Haiti and the Dominican Republic in August, Bolivia, Colombia, Panama, Paraguay and Peru in September and Ecuador and Venezuela in November.

Uruguay will take its census in 1951, and Cuba in 1953. Argentina, which conducted its last census in 1947, has decided to skip the 1950 count.

"According to current estimates, Latin America is the fastest growing population in the world," Dr. Dedrick told a reporter.

He estimated that when the 1960 census is taken, Latin America will be ahead of the United States. At present, they are about evenly divided in new world population, each with roughly 150,000,000.

"Latin America is increasing its population at the rate of about 3,000,000 a year, while the U. S. is growing about 2,000,000 annually," Dr. Dedrick, coordinator of international statistics for the bureau of census, U. S. Department of Agriculture, said.

The history-making census—first ever taken in Ecuador, first in over 40 years in Bolivia and Uruguay — will provide government and business heretofore unobtain-

AIR FORCE PLANE CRASH KILLS ONE

Plane's Power Fails On Take-Off; Causes Craft To Ram Into Barracks

TULSA, Okla., June 10—(AP)—An air force C-47 transport plane's power failed on a take-off today, causing the craft to ram an aviation school's barracks and injured three men, one fatally.

Amuel A. Kerr, 59, a janitor for the Spartan School of Aeronautics, died a few hours after the plane's wing sliced through a building where he was at work.

Eighteen persons aboard the plane and 60 students sleeping in a barracks touched by the wrecked ship escaped injury.

Alma Puckett, 61, another janitor in the building, was critically hurt. J. W. Long, 67, a school guard, suffered cuts and bruises.

The plane, stationed at Scott Field, Ill., arrived here last night from Wichita, Kas. It was taking off for Fort Scott when it crashed.

Witnesses said the pilot was unable to gain power and never got three feet off the ground.

It ran off the runway, hit a fence and the crashed into the barracks housing students. The plane came to rest against the barracks building, where the 60 students were sleeping.

Another 100 students were eating breakfast 70 yards away.

An unidentified motorist changing a tire on a road in the path of the plane narrowly escaped injury.

Police Captain Joe McGuire said the man threw himself into a ditch just before the plane swept over the road.

The tilted wing barely cleared the car before it cut a 20 foot slice into the barracks buildings.

Ground made soggy by overnight rains helped slow the plane and it stopped facing the direction it came.

Capt. Harry Hunt, the plane's co-pilot, said he was under instructions to give no details of the mishap. He did say, though, all the passengers were from Scott Field.

U. S. POTATOES ARE SENT GERMANY

Hundred Million Pounds Pour Into Soviet Zone To Feed Hungry Germans

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 10.—(AP)—A hundred million pounds of surplus American potatoes poured in on Soviet East Germany today to feed victims of the potato-bug fantasy.

The price was one cent per hundred pounds, f. o. b. New York. Potatoes cost a New York housewife five to six cents a pound at retail stores under the government farm subsidy price maintenance plan.

The shipments to East Germany are an offset to a potato famine where Communist propaganda says U. S. bomber planes are sowing insects to: 1-Blight the East German crop, 2-Test out germ warfare, and 3-Sell capitalistic bug poison.

American officials called the charges ridiculous and said the Communists apparently were trying to condition the people to a crop failure.

Unofficial sources said last year's short crop may have caused a shortage of seed potatoes for spring planting. East Germany failed to make good on a contract last October to deliver 100,000 tons of potatoes to feed West Berlin.

Arthur Stroh, interzonal trade expert for the U. S. high commission, said he believed the imports were to fill current rations.

Planting in East Germany ended in early May, but trustworthy reports reaching the commission said potato bug infestation in some districts is five times as bad as 1949.

The state and agriculture departments in Washington said there was nothing to prevent the potato deal but the state department indicated export regulations would be reviewed.

It said that in addition to the original 50,000 tons for eastern Germany there is another deal to ship 18,000 tons to Frankfurt, in allied western Germany.

In both cases state department officials suspected all along that the potatoes were going to the Communist East.

Department informants said a New York broker named David Zetland, operating a corporation of that name, bought the 50,000-ton lot from the agriculture department in New York for delivery to a Swiss firm in Hamburg.

After closing the deal in mid-May, agriculture officials asked the state department for a review because of possible political implications.

No policy reason could be found to stop the shipment even though it might be headed for Communist territory. Export controls operate against sending strategic materials to eastern Europe but potatoes are not included in that category now.

OFFICIALS MOVE TO REVIVE PLAN

Diplomats Seek Development Of Pacific Defence Treaty With Anti-Reds

WASHINGTON, June 10. —(AP)— Talk of developing a Pacific defense treaty among the non-Communist allies of World War II has been revived by diplomatic officials here in their search for a workable way to make a peace settlement with Japan.

Such a device might be used, it was said today, if the American government decides that a regular peace treaty is not a good idea at this time and that a peace settlement must be arranged by other means. It could also be employed to supplement the peace treaty and reassure Western Pacific countries about America's intention to help protect them against both Communism and Japanese militarism.

State department officials, reportedly including Republican Advisor John Foster Dulles, have looked into the idea and it seems likely to come up for discussion when Dulles meets Gen. Douglas McArthur in Tokyo in about 10 days.

Defense Secretary Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the joint chief of staffs, will leave tomorrow on a tour of Pacific defense installations which will also take them to Tokyo for treaty talks

Police Intercept Vehicle Carrying Youth To Hospital

COLUMBUS, O., June 10.—(AP)—An automobile carrying an eight-year-old boy believed suffering from a contagious type of spinal meningitis was intercepted by state highway patrolmen today near Marion.

Law officers in Michigan and Ohio had been looking for the car since an alarm was broadcast by Toledo authorities late yesterday. The boy, Stanley Mitchell, Jr. his carnival worker parents and two other children were in the auto.

Patrolmen brought the group to University Hospital here, some 50 miles from Marion. They said the boy's admittance to the hospital was delayed while they argued with authorities over whether he should be returned to Toledo.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mitchell, and the other children at first refused to leave their car. Later they all trooped into the hospital for Stanley's examination.

Police said the Mitchells insisted the boy wasn't sick and protested the fuss about him.

Search for the Mitchells began after Lucas County Health Commissioner Frank Mahla said the disease is highly contagious and has a high death rate.

He became concerned when the Mitchells disappeared after Toledo physicians told the parents their boy had meningitis and should have a spinal tap and laboratory tests.

SOVIETS BLASTED

President Says U.S.S.R. Talks Of Democracy But Sets Up Dictatorship

CHARGE REDS WITH HAVING LARGEST PEACETIME FORCE

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—(AP)—President Truman blasted Soviet Russia today for talking peace while "preparing for war" in his most devastating attack on Communist aggression since the outbreak of the cold war.

Speaking from an improvised stand, overlooking the Mississippi riverfront, to thousands standing in a blazing sun, he hurled this blunt indictment at the Russians:

"With a cynical disregard for the hopes of mankind, the leaders of the Soviet Union have talked of democracy—but have set up dictatorships.

"They have proclaimed national independence—but imposed national slavery.

"They have preached peace—but devoted their energies to fomenting aggression and preparing for war."

And he condemned the Soviet Union for maintaining history's "largest peacetime army."

Mr. Truman pinpointed his charges by 13 specific references to Russia or its rulers.

A crowd estimated by Police Capt. James F. Thompson at more than 35,000 gathered to hear the chief executive denounce Russia's leadership as "an obstacle to peace."

The President was cheered as he officially charged Russia with preparing for war. Putting aside the usual language of diplomacy, he spoke bitterly and bluntly.

Guests on the bunting-draped platform with Mr. Truman included Defense Secretary Johnson and French Ambassador Henri Bonnet.

The major foreign policy pronouncement was televised and carried over all the major radio networks at home. And the state department's "Voice of America" moved it all over the world in 24 languages.

The president's speech concluded a round of fun and meetings with old comrades of Battery D., 129th Field Artillery, at their 35th division reunion. He spoke from a historic site on the Mississippi riverfront.

From a specially constructed stand behind an old Catholic cathedral, he dedicated the area as a memorial to Thomas Jefferson in another step toward eventual completion of a riverfront park commemorating the "Louisiana Purchase."

He warned those at home against what he called the dangerous belief that the United States can abandon its aid to other free nations in these critical times.

He reserved for the Russians, though, the stern language of a prosecuting attorney. And he condemned them for the demonstra-

STATE MEET OF V. F. A. SLATED

Will Bring Many To Twin Cities During The Present Week

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Auxiliary anticipate a large attendance at the twentieth annual state encampment in Monroe June 16, 17 and 18. Estimates of attendance vary from 700 to fully 1500, who are expected to come from all over Louisiana and from other states nearby and even from states at a distance.

With unusual interest will be the visit here of Clyde A. Lewis, Plattsburg, N. Y., commander-in-chief of the organization. He is a prominent attorney in his home city and has accepted an invitation to attend the local convention. He will fly here in his own plane and is scheduled for arrival at Selman airport at about noon Saturday.

He spent 21 months overseas, first as a B-17 pilot with the 401st bomb group, 8th air force. He was successively a flight commander, squadron operations officer and squadron leader. He completed one tour of duty and volunteered for and had almost completed his second tour by VE Day. During the latter tour, he flew as a group and wing air commander. He was promoted to major in January 1945 and was separated from service in the following September.

The program for the convention is now being completed and will be published early this week.

DIARY REVEALS

moving government documents illegally.

The Star's story, which observed that Forrestal acted "from the highest motives," broke as senators buzzed with suggestions for getting access to his diary. They sought possible clues to the origin of the go-slow proposal in the controversial Amerasia case.

Forrestal's diary is locked up in the White House where it has remained since he died last year in a plunge from an upper window of Naval Hospital here. He then was secretary of defense.

The Star said its information came from "diary notes among Mr. Forrestal's papers in New York."

It added that the data is expected to be made available Monday to the senate foreign relations subcommittee investigating the Amerasia case.

This inquiry concerns the question whether the justice department was diligent in handling the case in view of the outcome. Officials testified that the prosecution collapsed because evidence was illegally obtained. Some critics dispute this point.

The subcommittee is investigating the Amerasia case as an outgrowth of charges by Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) that the state department is under Communist influences. He asserted that the Amerasia episode is the key to a Red network in the government.

The investigators only this week were working on the mystery on which the Star's story shed new light.

The diary notes showed, the Star said, "that Mr. Forrestal acted in the case after being informed on Monday, May 28, 1945, by one of his special assistants, Maj. Mathias F. Correa, that arrests were scheduled to be made two days later, including a lieutenant in naval intelligence."

This reference was to Andrew Roth, who was assigned as a liason man with the state department.

Roth was one of the three indicted in the case, but the charge against him was dropped.

The two who paid fines were Philip Jacob Jaffe, the magazine's editor, and Emmanuel Sigurd Larsen, then a state department employe.

Another state department employe, John S. Service, was never indicted. McCarthy has attacked him as pro - Communist. Service and the state department have denied it. Service is still with the department as a diplomatic officer.

The Forrestal diary, in its May 28 entry, was quoted as relating:

"Maj. Correa reported to me that the department of justice had evidence to the effect that Lt. Andrew Roth had been furnishing confidential and secret documents to a man named Jaffe, head of a publication named Amerasia in New York City. Jaffe has had intimate relationships with the Russian consul in New York.

"Other departments of the government involved are the office of strategic services, the state department and the foreign economic administration.

"Maj. Correa reported that it was proposed that Lt. Roth should be taken into surveillance Wednesday. He said the FBI thought that unless speedy action were taken important evidence would be dissipated, lost and destroyed.

"I pointed out that the inevitable course of such action now would be to greatly embarrass the president now in his current conversations with Stalin because of the anti-Russian playup the incident would receive out of all proportions to its importance. . . .

"I asked Capt. Vardaman to see to it that the president was informed in the matter and I then called Mr. Edgar Hoover and suggested that he advise Mr. Tom Clark (then attorney general) and have him also see that the president is in full information of all the facts in the matter as well as their implication."

be en route to headquaretrs there.

Gen. Chuikov said Capt. Tuynila and Sgt. Smirnov, both members of the Soviet repatriations mission in the French zone, were injured in a collision with a German car while they were traveling through the American zone near Nuernberg Sunday en route to French headquarters in Baden-Baden.

He complained that both were not given the necessary aid by American military police arriving at the scene. On the contrary, he said, the military police "forcibly searched" them and "brutally maltreated the seriously injured Capt. Tuynila by dislocating his arm and kicking him on the chest and groin." A German doctor from the town of Pegnitz was forbidden to aid the Russians, he added.

Moreover, the general wrote, American authorities had not permitted the chief of the Soviet military mission in the American zone to visit the men in hospital.

From all this, Chuikov continued, "it emerges clearly that it was their effort (of the American authorities) to conceal the fact of the maltreatment of Capt. Tuynila by American military police."

In conclusion, he said he expects to be informed of the measures being taken against the military police responsible for the incident.

with MacArthur.

Their trip was announced first, in fact, and there has been some speculation that Dulles' decision to go about the same time was prompted by the desire of the state department high command to share in the development of any policy idea which MacArthur, Johnson and Bradley might evolve.

At the moment the situation is badly tangled up. MacArthur probably comes nearer holding the key to it than any of the other participants in the Tokyo talks because of his prestige and experience in the field of Far Eastern policy. The views of the supreme commander for the allied occupation, therefore, will have a great, perhaps decisive effect on what Johnson, Bradley and Dulles advocate in the way of U. S. government action when they get back to Washington.

Persons here who are familiar with MacArthur's views all agree that he believes the occupation must soon be brought to an end lest it become unpopular in Japan and therefore useless, even harmful, to United States interests. He has generally favored a peace treaty as the way to end the occupation.

One of the questions on which responsibile officials here say they are confused, however, is this: Does MacArthur believe that once the peace settlement has been made the United States should still retain bases in Japan as a front line position in the cold war with Russia? Best informed officials say they are not certain exactly what MacArthur means on this point. That unquestionably is one question which both Johnson and Dulles will want him to answer.

The state and defense department have differed over when the occupation should be ended (state says as soon as possible). But they have agreed on the principle that even though a peace treaty could be written very quickly American troops would have to remain in Japan for a long time as defense forces against Russia.

The state department is already applying a parallel policy in Germany. The London meeting of western foreign ministers last month was followed by an effort to begin shifting western troops in Germany from an occupation to a defense status.

It is in another parallel between the German and Japanese situations that talk of a Pacific defense pact, roughly similar to the North Atlantic alliance of America and western Europe, comes up. Th assumption of American officials is that in Japan as in Germany it will be impossible to make a peace treaty with Russia. Now also there is the problem of Communist China which Britain recognizes and the United States does not. No one seems to know quite where it should fit into the picture.

At the same time, MacArthur and the state department strongly feel that something has to be done to end the occupation. If all the issues involved in settling a war can not be wrapped up in a single document such as the peace treaty then perhaps they can be settled separately. That is the thinking as to an alternative course which might be followed.

and cannon fodder." The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press at San Francisco.

(Peiping earlier called his purge of the 24 members of the Communist party's central committee and 17 editors of Akahata "as absurd as it is reactionary." It called for "counterblows" from the people.)

A second purported assassination plot against MacArthur within 10 days was reported and again dismissed by key U. S. officials as a fake.

They said a letter was intercepted two days ago containing a vague reference to a plan to kill the occupation commander. They considered it the work of a crank and have taken no extra precautions.

A Japanese was arrested June 1 after repeating details of a purported assassination plot. He has been sent to a hospital for the insane.

The Japanese government so far has taken no steps to outlaw the Communist party, as one official last week said it had agreed to do. Instead the emphasis appeared to be on the other measures.

Education Minister Teiyu Amano announced that action would be taken against the "radical student movement." Students have been active in support of Communist rallies and strikes.

Government circles indicated Amano would try to dissolve the Communist - dominated national federation of students self-government organizations.

Police headquarters in a conference with investigation and security section chiefs from Tokyo's 73 police stations ordered an intensive campaign against the spread of anti-occupation propaganda.

Police already have forbidden mass demonstrations and subordinates were told to see that the ban was enforced.

In continuing raids today, police arrested Hidetaro Ikeda, head of one of the city's Communist cells. He is suspected of violating the imperial ordinance forbidding criticism of the occupation.

The couple first took Stanley to Riverside Hospital in Toledo yesterday and asked for medicine for his upset stomach. A hospital physician told them the boy had meningitis and should have laboratory tests. The parents left immediately.

Later they took the boy to a physician's office there. The doctor telephoned Dr. Hartung to report the case and the family again disappeared.

Nothing was heard of them again until Patrolman Wolf spotted their car on the highway.

cuses Gold of performing 11 missions for Russia's agents. On four of these missions, it is alleged, Gold collected information from Dr. Fuchs and turned them over to the Reds. Dr. Fuchs now is serving a 14-year prison term in England.

McGranery conferred with Gold recently—at the Chemist's suggestion. The jurist told newsmen that Gold intended to plead guilty but "not to the charge of meaning to hurt the United States."

The plea of guilty, McGranery quoted Gold as saying, would include only the acts of delivering the atom bomb secrets to a Soviet spy or spies.

Since his arrest Gold has cooperated with the FBI and McGranery said the chemist wants to continue cooperating.

McGranery named Hamilton to defend Gold after the defendant had specifically requested appointment of counsel "whose patriotism is unimpeachable."

Hamilton accepted the assignment after consulting with Gold on grounds he considered it part of his obligation as a member of the bar.

Gold's father and brother have stood behind the chemist. They told newsmen they are not defending the spy activities attributed to Harry but are aiding him because of family ties.

Samuel Gold, 70, told newsmen "my son is not a Communist. If he did anything, he was only trying to help Russia become strong like America.

"In 1945 we were allies with the Russians and my son had a deep sympathy for the poor people of that nation where I was born. Then when the Russians started to move away from the world in 1946 he had nothing to do with them."

Gold is accused of delivering the atom secrets in 1944 and 1945 before world war II had ended.

Thomas F. Corcoran, chief of consulation and training of the office of the coordinator, also said the census will be of help in planning President Truman's point four program of aid to underdeveloped areas.

All countries are taking a population count. Almost all are also taking inventory on agriculture and housing, the majority for the first time. Others are taking a check on matters of peculiar importance to their areas. In Guatemala, for example, the enumerators counted how many persons wore shoes.

Enumerators from all the 22 American republics were trained in the U. S. so the census could be standardized.

tion of Communist youth in East Berlin late last month.

"In looking at the current world situation," Mr. Truman declared, "it is plain that the present policies and activities of the Soviet government are not contributing to peace." He added:

1. "The Soviet government is refusing to participate in the work of the United Nations.

2. "Representatives of the free nations are being forced out of the satellite countries.

3. "Soviet leaders are turning the school children of Eastern Germany into the same kind of pitiful robots that marched into hopeless battle for Hitler.

4. "And at home, the Soviet regime is maintaining the largest peacetime armed force in history, far greater that it needs for the defense of its own boundaries.

5. "The leaders of the Soviet Union, instead of using their resources to improve the well-being of their people, are devoting a massive share of those resources to the acquisition of further military strength."

He made another sharp distinction between Russia's leaders and its people:

"We have tried to dissuade the Soviet leaders from their militaristic course, so costly to their people and to ours, so antagonistic to the pursuit of peace.

"After the war, we demobilized the bulk of our army, navy and air force. In the United Nations we put forward proposals to share with the world the development of atomic energy and to prevent the use of the atomic bomb.

The president spoke confidently of the ability of free nations to take care of themselves.

"These ominous activities of the Soviet Union, however," he put it, "are being offset by the growing strength of the free world. The free nations are making steady progress in creating more satisfactory conditions of life for their people, and stronger defenses against aggression."

Camera Photographs 26 Miles In Seconds

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A camera that can photograph a 26-mile strip of the earth in two seconds from a plane flying at 10,000 feet has been developed by the air force.

A sample picture made over Washington was released today. Mt. Vernon was at one horizon; the Colesville, Md., area dimly visible at the other.

The air force said the camera is a special development for tests to determine its value in reconnaissance. Whether it will be installed in the new long range B-36 reconnaissance planes, and in faster but shorter ranged jet reconnaissance planes, was not disclosed.

The air force estimated that the horizontal distance covered by the camera from 10,000 feet is 26 miles.

"This distance can be increased by a corresponding elevation of the air craft," it added.

Father, Son Charged With Raping Negress

ROME, Ga., June 10.—(AP)—A youth and the father of a child, both white, were charged today with luring a 17-year-old Negro girl away under a pretext of baby sitting and then raping her.

They were bound over to a superior court grand jury at a hearing before Justice of Peace T. E. Edwards. The youth was charged also with molesting the girl's 15-year-old sister.

The older girl told Justice Edwards 15-year-old Robert Camp came to her home Wednesday night and asked her to baby sit for Richard Patrick, 22, the other defendant.

She said she finally agreed to go to Patrick's home in Camp's car, accompanied by her younger sister.

She and her sister testified that instead of going to Patrick's home, Camp drove out on a country road and parked. There they said, they found Patrick was hidden in the back seat.

Both were threatened with death, they asserted, if they did not submit to the man and boy.

Bond for Camp was set at $2,700 on charge of rape and taking immoral liberties with children. Patrick, charged only with rape, was released under $2,500 bond.

DIARY REVEALS

moving government documents illegally.

The Star's story, which observed that Forrestal acted "from the highest motives," broke as senators buzzed with suggestions for getting access to his diary. They sought possible clues to the origin of the go-slow proposal in the controversial Amerasia case.

Forrestal's diary is locked up in the White House where it has remained since he died last year in a plunge from an upper window of Naval Hospital here. He then was secretary of defense.

The Star said its information came from "diary notes among Mr. Forrestal's papers in New York."

It added that the data is expected to be made available Monday to the senate foreign relations subcommittee investigating the Amerasia case.

This inquiry concerns the question whether the justice department was diligent in handling the case in view of the outcome. Officials testified that the prosecution collapsed because evidence was illegally obtained. Some critics dispute this point.

The subcommittee is investigating the Amerasia case as an outgrowth of charges by Senator McCarthy (R.-Wis.) that the state department is under Communist influences. He asserted that the Amerasia episode is the key to a Red network in the government.

The investigators only this week were working on the mystery on which the Star's story shed new light.

The diary notes showed, the Star said, "that Mr. Forrestal acted in the case after being informed on Monday, May 28, 1945, by one of his special assistants, Maj. Mathias F. Correa, that arrests were scheduled to be made two days later, including a lieutenant in naval intelligence."

This reference was to Andrew Roth, who was assigned as a liason man with the state department.

Roth was one of the three indicted in the case, but the charge against him was dropped.

The two who paid fines were Philip Jacob Jaffe, the magazine's editor, and Emmanuel Sigurd Larsen, then a state department employe.

Another state department employe, John S. Service, was never indicted. McCarthy has attacked him as pro - Communist. Service and the state department have denied it. Service is still with the department as a diplomatic officer.

The Forrestal diary, in its May 28 entry, was quoted as relating: "Maj. Correa reported to me that the department of justice had evidence to the effect that Lt. Andrew Roth had been furnishing confidential and secret documents to a man named Jaffe, head of a publication named Amerasia in New York City. Jaffe has had intimate relationships with the Russian consul in New York.

"Other departments of the government involved are the office of strategic services, the state department and the foreign economic administration.

"Maj. Correa reported that it was proposed that Lt. Roth should be taken into surveillance Wednesday. He said the FBI thought that unless speedy action were taken important evidence would be dissipated, lost and destroyed.

"I pointed out that the inevitable course of such action now would be to greatly embarrass the president now in his current conversations with Stalin because of the anti-Russian playup the incident would receive out of all proportions to its importance. . . .

"I asked Capt. Vardaman to see to it that the president was informed in the matter and I then called Mr. Edgar Hoover and suggested that he advise Mr. Tom Clark (then attorney general) and have him also see that the president is in full information of all the facts in the matter as well as their implication."

be en route to headquaretrs there.

Gen. Chuikov said Capt. Tuynila and Sgt. Smirnov, both members of the Soviet repatriations mission in the French zone, were injured in a collision with a German car while they were traveling through the American zone near Nuernberg Sunday en route to French headquarters in Baden-Baden.

He complained that both were not given the necessary aid by American military police arriving at the scene. On the contrary, he said, the military police "forcibly searched" them and "brutally maltreated the seriously injured Capt. Tuynila by dislocating his arm and kicking him on the chest and groin." A German doctor from the town of Pegnitz was forbidden to aid the Russians, he added.

Moreover, the general wrote, American authorities had not permitted the chief of the Soviet military mission in the American zone to visit the men in hospital.

From all this, Chuikov continued, "it emerges clearly that it was their effort (of the American authorities) to conceal the fact of the maltreatment of Capt. Tuynila by American military police."

In conclusion, he said he expects to be informed of the measures being taken against the military police responsible for the incident.

OFFICIALS MOVE

with MacArthur.

Their trip was announced first, in fact, and there has been some speculation that Dulles' decision to go about the same time was prompted by the desire of the state department high command to share in the development of any policy idea which MacArthur, Johnson and Bradley might evolve.

At the moment the situation is badly tangled up. MacArthur probably comes nearer holding the key to it than any of the other participants in the Tokyo talks because of his prestige and experience in the field of Far Eastern policy. The views of the supreme commander for the allied occupation, therefore, will have a great, perhaps decisive effect on what Johnson, Bradley and Dulles advocate in the way of U. S. government action when they get back to Washington.

Persons here who are familiar with MacArthur's views all agree that he believes the occupation must soon be brought to an end lest it become unpopular in Japan and therefore useless, even harmful, to United States interests. He has generally favored a peace treaty as the way to end the occupation.

One of the questions on which responsibile officials here say they are confused, however, is this: Does MacArthur believe that once the peace settlement has been made the United States should still retain bases in Japan as a front line position in the cold war with Russia? Best informed officials say they are not certain exactly what MacArthur means on this point. That unquestionably is one question which both Johnson and Dulles will want him to answer.

The state and defense department have differed over when the occupation should be ended (state says as soon as possible). But they have agreed on the principle that even though a peace treaty could be written very quickly American troops would have to remain in Japan for a long time as defense forces against Russia.

The state department is already applying a parallel policy in Germany. The London meeting of western foreign ministers last month was followed by an effort to begin shifting western troops in Germany from an occupation to a defense status.

It is in another parallel between the German and Japanese situations that talk of a Pacific defense pact, roughly similar to the North Atlantic alliance of America and western Europe, comes up. Th assumption of American officials is that in Japan as in Germany it will be impossible to make a peace treaty with Russia. Now also there is the problem of Communist China which Britain recognizes and the United States does not. No one seems to know quite where it should fit into the picture.

At the same time, MacArthur and the state department strongly feel that something has to be done to end the occupation. If all the issues involved in settling a war can not be wrapped up in a single document such as the peace treaty then perhaps they can be settled separately. That is the thinking as to an alternative course which might be followed.

JAP CRACKS DOWN

and cannon fodder." The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press at San Francisco.

(Peiping earlier called his purge of the 24 members of the Communist party's central committee and 17 editors of Akahata "as absurd as it is reactionary." It called for "counterblows" from the people.)

A second purported assassination plot against MacArthur within 10 days was reported and again dismissed by key U. S. officials as a fake.

They said a letter was intercepted two days ago containing a vague reference to a plan to kill the occupation commander. They considered it the work of a crank and have taken no extra precautions.

A Japanese was arrested June 1 after repeating details of a purported assassination plot. He has been sent to a hospital for the insance.

The Japanese government so far has taken no steps to outlaw the Communist party, as one official last week said it had agreed to do. Instead the emphasis appeared to be on the other measures.

Education Minister Teiyu Amano announced that action would be taken against the "radical student movement." Students have been active in support of Communist rallies and strikes.

Government circles indicated Amano would try to dissolve the Communist - dominated national federation of students self-government organizations.

Police headquarters in a conference with investigation and security section chiefs from Tokyo's 73 police stations ordered an intensive campaign against the spread of anti-occupation propaganda.

Police already have forbidden mass demonstrations and subordinates were told to see that the ban was enforced.

burglars," Toledo Health Commissioner Walter Hartung told police.

Later State Highway Patrolman P. E. Wolf intercepted the Mitchell car at Waldo, South of Marion, and escorted it here.

Manager Clen Wyble of the Hiawatha Carnival Co. told Toledo police the Mitchells hastily left the showgrounds with Stanley and their other children yesterday. He described the family as Gypsies and said they had been with the carnival about five weeks.

The couple first took Stanley to Riverside Hospital in Toledo yesterday and asked for medicine for his upset stomach. A hospital physician told them the boy had meningitis and should have laboratory tests. The parents left immediately.

Later they took the boy to a physician's office there. The doctor telephoned Dr. Hartung to report the case and the family again disappeared.

Nothing was heard of them again until Patrolman Wolf spotted their car on the highway.

From Peabody, Dean Cline will go to Harvard University July 17 to remain until August 12. There he will work in and with the Junior College workshop sponsored by the university. The project will be directed by Jesse Bogue, executive secretary of the American Association of junior colleges. The purpose of the workshop is to bring together junior college teachers, administrators and future administrators to study problems, methods and philosophy of education suitable for schools of this type.

The dial system is in process of "childbirth" in Monroe as all know who are acquainted with telephones and who is not And at the auto license bureau, a man walked to the desk to obtain a license. He gave his name, to the amazement of the clerk on duty, as "W. A. Dial," no pseudonym, for he had kept that nomenclature for these 35 years. Strangely enough he is in charge here of putting in the dial system.

It wont be long now until those playgounds open for the Municipal Recreation department has set Monday June 19 at 9 a.m. as opening time. They will be as follows with leaders listed thus:

Barkdull Faulk, Miss Geneve Castles; Lida Benton, Mrs. Dollie Sweet; Atkinson, Miss Ada Boggs; Georgia Tucker, Mrs. Marie Pohlman; Sherrouse, Mrs. Matthews. All playground leaders from last year are back except one. Mrs. Val Matthews, a school teacher, will be at Sherrouse.

There will be three colored playgrounds, Monroe Colored High School, Booker T. Washington School and Bryants Addition.

A meeting of the white playground leaders will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:00 and one for colored at 3:00 at the Recreation Center.

Mrs. Peggy Garnett will serve as handcraft instructor for the various playgrounds. Cecil Johnson, a student at La. Tech. will be athletic director for the various athletic leagues and assist on the playgrounds.

A variety of programs will be offered for the children this year and parents are urged to send them to the nearest playground. Special activities, such as, Hobby shows, bicycle contests, ping pong, checkers, field meet, Joseph E. Lee Day, croquet contest, marble contest, horse shoe contest and many other features are planned.

In addition to the names that appeared in this column of graduates at Tulane University this week, the following also are now listed: A. E. Montgomery, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Montgomery, Sr., Herbert C. Wilson, George R. Wimbish, and also from Rayville, Watten H. Hunt, third, a nephew of Mrs. Gunby of Monroe. Ann Sartain, of Shreveport, a former Monroe young woman, also was graduated from Sophia Newcomb.

GOLD SLATED

cuses Gold of performing 11 missions for Russia's agents. On four of these missions, it is alleged, Gold collected information from Dr. Fuchs and turned them over to the Reds. Dr. Fuchs now is serving a 14-year prison term in England.

McGranery conferred with Gold recently—at the Chemist's suggestion. The jurist told newsmen that Gold intended to plead guilty but "not to the charge of meaning to hurt the United States."

The plea of guilty, McGranery quoted Gold as saying, would include only the acts of delivering the atom bomb secrets to a Soviet spy or spies.

Since his arrest Gold has cooperated with the FBI and McGranery said the chemist wants to continue cooperating.

McGranery named Hamilton to defend Gold after the defendant had specifically requested appointment of counsel "whose patriotism is unimpeachable."

Hamilton accepted the assignment after consulting with Gold on grounds he considered it part of his obligation as a member of the bar.

Gold's father and brother have stood behind the chemist. They told newsmen they are not defending the spy activities attributed to Harry but are aiding him because of family ties.

Samuel Gold, 70, told newsmen "my son is not a Communist. If he did anything, he was only trying to help Russia become strong like America.

"In 1945 we were allies with the Russians and my son had a deep sympathy for the poor people of that nation where I was born. Then when the Russians started to move away from the world in 1946 he had nothing to do with them."

Gold is accused of delivering the atom secrets in 1944 and 1945 before world war II had ended.

able information about population, housing, agriculture, industry, business, resources and needs.

Thomas F. Corcoran, chief of consulation and training of the office of the coordinator, also said the census will be of help in planning President Truman's point four program of aid to underdeveloped areas.

All countries are taking a population count. Almost all are also taking inventory on agriculture and housing, the majority for the first time. Others are taking a check on matters of peculiar importance to their areas. In Guatemala, for example, the enumerators counted how many persons wore shoes.

Enumerators from all the 22 American republics were trained in the U. S. so the census could be standardized.

tary of Defense Louis Johnson and Missouri Gov. Forrest Smith, too. But he didn't need to threaten either of them. They seemed to enjoy the marching almost as much as Mr. Truman did.

Also marching with the President was Mayor Joseph M. Darst of St. Louis, a former 35th division infantryman.

Virtually everybody was pretty well exhausted by the time the head marchers reached the reviewing stand—everybody except the 66-year-old President, that is.

There wasn't a bead of perspiration on his cheeks, a wrinkle in his white suit.

Gov. Smith was puffing and panting. And so were many of the others.

SOVIETS BLASTED

tion of Communist youth in East Berlin late last month.

"In looking at the current world situation," Mr. Truman declared, "it is plain that the present policies and activities of the Soviet government are not contributing to peace." He added:

1. "The Soviet government is refusing to participate in the work of the United Nations.

2. "Representatives of the free nations are being forced out of the satellite countries.

3. "Soviet leaders are turning the school children of Eastern Germany into the same kind of pitiful robots that marched into hopeless battle for Hitler.

4. "And at home, the Soviet regime is maintaining the largest peacetime armed force in history, far greater that it needs for the defense of its own boundaries.

5. "The leaders of the Soviet Union, instead of using their resources to improve the well-being of their people, are devoting a massive share of those resources to the acquisition of further military strength."

He made another sharp distinction between Russia's leaders and its people:

"We have tried to dissuade the Soviet leaders from their militaristic course, so costly to their people and to ours, so antagonistic to the pursuit of peace.

"After the war, we demobilized the bulk of our army, navy and air force. In the United Nations we put forward proposals to share with the world the development of atomic energy and to prevent the use of the atomic bomb.

The president spoke confidently of the ability of free nations to take care of themselves.

"These ominous activities of the Soviet Union, however," he put it, "are being offset by the growing strength of the free world. The free nations are making steady progress in creating more satisfactory conditions of life for their people, and stronger defenses against aggression."

Camera Photographs 26 Miles In Seconds

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A camera that can photograph a 26-mile strip of the earth in two seconds from a plane flying at 10,000 feet has been developed by the air force.

A sample picture made over Washington was released today. Mt. Vernon was at one horizon; the Colesville, Md., area dimly visible at the other.

The air force said the camera is a special development for tests to determine its value in reconnaissance. Whether it will be installed in the new long range B-36 reconnaissance planes, and in faster but shorter ranged jet reconnaissance planes, was not disclosed.

The air force estimated that the horizontal distance covered by the camera from 10,000 feet is 26 miles.

"This distance can be increased by a corresponding elevation of the air craft," it added.

Peron's Debts To U. S. Firms

With the cold war centering in Europe and Asia, we seldom dwell much nowadays on events affecting South America. But the recent $125,000,000 U. S. grant of credit to the Peron government in Argentina deserves to be hauled up out of the backwash of public attention.

The average citizen reading of that grant would assume that some if not all of the money would be sent to Argentina. The fact is, not a single cent will leave the United States.

It's to be used to bail out banks and big and little businesses that have been dealing with Peron on credit and now can't collect from him. In other words, the U. S. is in effect making itself a collection agency for these various concerns.

The big question is whether this is the kind of thing our government ought to do. We are indulging banks and business outfits in their mistakes. We don't normally rescue them when they commit similar errors at home. If they go out on a shaky credit limb, we let them take the fall.

Why adopt a softer attitude toward their foreign dealings? Won't it simply invite a repetition of the same practices?

There may be some excuse for the little companies involved, since they don't always have the executive know-how that leads to careful weighing of credit risks. But there's little sense in the big firm's getting into so unsound a position as they have in Argentina.

If they feel competition compels them to extend credit to such a poor bet, they still have no reason to believe that the American people must underwrite their errors. Big business is strong enough to pay its own penalities; they are the inescapable cost of doing business in the risky climate of a free economy.

Furthermore, won't the big companies merely be playing Peron's game if they start from scratch and extend new credits once these old debts are paid?

The arrogantly proud Argentine dictator won't condescend to ask the U. S. government directly for an out-and-out loan. But he can achieve the same result, without loss of face, if Argentine enterprises can buy on credit from U. S. firms and the latter can count on the American government to bail them out when they can't collect.

Probably the banks and smaller outfits have been burned severely enough to have learned their lesson. But Washington ought to make it clear to big business that it won't save anybody a second time.

That way the whole burden will be on the individual firm taking the risk. And if Argentina has a good argument for buying but can't meet the credit terms of American companies, let Peron try to obtain a loan in the same open fashion that any other foreign leader must rely upon.

When the time comes—if it ever does— the loan application can be weighed on its merits, and particularly with regard to its effect on American relations with other more friendly South American countries.

Good Wor!

The civil service compromise worked out between Governor Long and his administrative leaders on one side, and the Louisiana Civil Service League and legislators supporting its views on the other side, is a fine step and both sides deserve plenty of credit. It is a fine example of how factors as far apart as the North and South poles in viewpoint at the start can be brought together when both have the same objective and each is determined to reach it.

Regardless of the causes of past disintegration of civil service, Governor Long stated before the present session of the legislature convened that he wanted civil service restored in a manner comparable to its functioning in the early 1940s, with, where possible, improvements that might suggest themselves from past experience. The Louisiana Civil Service League, headed by Sam E. Dunbar, Jr., of New Orleans, sought the same objective.

The originally proposed bills in the legislature left much to be desired and it seemed for a while that no compromise would be possible. Governor Long felt that the proposals for amendment of the administration bill would have the effect, regardless of their intent, of stacking the civil service commission and the executive personnel under it with political enemies of his administration. The other side felt that the proposed civil service bill would leave civil service on a foundation of sand and also make possible dictatorial control of it from the executive offices.

In retrospect, it is our opinion that both sides may have had cause for their fears. But now each side has recognized the position of the other side, and yielded sufficiently to bring a compromise that seems thoroughly sound. It will take the test of time and actual operation to be absolutely sure, of course.

Good government in a land of intellectual, political, and physical freedom must have honest difference of opinion as one of the main stones in its foundation, and there must be willingness of those who honestly differ to both give and take if a solid structure is to be completed. That is what has happened in the civil service compromise and we commend all of those who had a part in it. Governor Long had an especially difficult task because he not only had to work out a compromise acceptable to the other side, but also to get it accepted by the very strong anti-compromise bloc in the legislature, which was not, incidentally, made up entirely of administration legislators.

WALTER WINCHELL

The Communist Underworld

The atomic era created a revolution in the shadowy world of espionage. Since complex scientific and technological information became the most vital military secrets—the slinky temptress and hard-hitting daredevil have been almost completely replaced by staid, scholarly men and women . . .Klaus Fuchs is an outstanding example of the modern spy vogue. Soviet agents implicated in the Canadian espionage case included several university professors, research scientists and doctors of philosophy.

Soon after the Communists in Russia seized power they set up a school for undercover agents in Moscow called Lenin University . . .It attracted Communist students from various parts of the globe. They were—and are—being trained in Communist theory and tactics which range from methods of inciting street brawls to the strategy used in penetrating innocuous social clubs and transforming them into Communist-front outfits.

Several leaders of the American Communist Party received their diploma in treachery at Lenin U.

More important is the school run by the O. G. P. U. (Russian Secret Police) in Leningrad. Here the more advanced rats are trained for counterfeiting, kidnapping, sabotage and other crimes . . .The brightest graduates become Professors of Assassination. And their specialty consists of unsolved murders: Juliet Poyntz was an American Communist Party leader until she was recruited into the service of the Soviet Military Intelligence. She suddenly vanished in 1937 without a trace and has never been found. Editor Carlo Tresca threatened to make public the name of her assassin—and Tresca became another famous unsolved murder.

Gen. Walter Krivitksy was a Russian spy chief until he broke activities of Russian espionage agents in testimony before congressional committees. Krivitsky wrote a book about the Soviet Secret Police in 1939—and shortly after it was published Krivitsky was slain in Washington.

Communist Russia began its undercover war against the United States back in 1923. A Soviet agent named John Pepper (alias Joe Pogany) arrived here during that year—to serve as a liaison officer between the American Communist Party and Moscow.

Pepper was among the first to learn that the mortality rate among Soviet agents is high. Disobedience, failure, or straying from the party line results in swift and brutal punishment.

Pepper was ordered to return to Russia in 1937 and shot.

The most vital task of Communist agents is adding to Moscow's mountainous stockpile of information about potential enemy nations. The information is political, economic, psychological — as well as military. Every scrap of information is important—it may provide the missing piece in a jigsaw. Business reports issued by companies, economic reports issued by the government, the statements of our leaders and editorialists—all are forwarded to Moscow. There they are systematically analyzed by corps of political, economic and military experts—and even psychiatrists.

Moscow has transformed diplomacy into treachery. Every Soviet embassy and consulate throughout the world serves as the mainspring of the Russian espionage army. . . The diplomatic spy units are divided into two classes—the economic and political. Each unit has its own secret code and code clerks, so that their activities are kept secret from each other.

The diplomatic-espionage activities are master-minded by O. G. P. U. agents. They are not only guide Soviet diplomats—but also serve as their judge, jury and firing squad.

The efficacy of the ideological approach is exemplified by Fuchs, Gold and those involved in the Canadian spy case. They were convinced they were serving humanity. So imbued were they with Communist starry-eyed hokum—many of these duped idealists refused to accept payment for espionage activities.

Among the most amazing yarns about Soviet spies is one about the Russian agent who made Rumania's King Carol the most likely candidate for the chump medal: Posing as a business man, the spy became so chummy with Carol—that he managed to obtain the royal plane and used it to make aerial photographs of Rumania's defenses!

The cost of Russian undercover operations runs in billions. Just to give you an idea: The U. S. S. R. has spent over a million dollars a year just to finance social affairs in Washington.

While guests eat caviar—they are also expected to swallow Communist propaganda.

You probably recall this story. It happened on October 9th, 1948. . Two Russian airmen, Pirogov and Barsov, flying over Western Ukraine, landed near Linz in the American zone of Austria. . .They requested asylum as political refugees. . .In February, 1949, they were brought to the United States. They made a tour of Virginia as guests of the Chamber of Commerce. They spent that spring touring the 48 states—being interviewed by the press . . . Pirogov started his book titled: "Why I Escaped." It was published this year.

His companion, Barsov (a fairly heavy drinker), appeared to be jealous of his pal's success over here as an author. . .Barsov got moody and quarrelsome. One night he got drunk and staggered into the Russian Embassy, Washington, where he requested they send him back to Russia. That was on August 17th, 1949. . .On August 31st the State Dep't (if you will pardon the expression) flew Barsov to Vienna, where he was turned over to the Russian authorities. We even gave him one last chance to change his mind. . ."Do you really want to go back to Russia—or back to the United States of America?" he was asked at the Enns River Bridge. . .Barsov elected to return to his beloved Russia, and Pirogov (over here) predicted: "Barsov will die like a dog within six months!"

This is to tell Russian ex-Lt. Peter Pirogov that his drunken comrade Barsov was executed at Kharkov at 5:30 a.m.—on Nov. 7th.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

THE INCOMPLEAT ANGLER

When I was a kid on the east side a couple of hundred years ago, a sidewalk was a lot more than a strip to walk on; it was something to dream on, tap-dance on, pitch pennies on and scribble philosophical sayings on, of the sort not found in Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations." However, to Gimpy Myers, the leader of our gang, a sidewalk was none of these things—it was primarily something to fish through.

To put a fine point on it, what Gimpy fished through was not the sidewalk itself but the iron gratings over cellar windows and subway ventilation shafts. And what he fished for, with the aid of a blob of tar dangling at the end of a string, was everything but fish—coins, picture buttons and other bits of treasure which had fallen through.

There were two occupational hazards, however, which used to annoy this Izaak Walton of the asphalts—cops and dogs. Cops, because a subway fisherman attracts crowds and crowds, as a rule, attract pickpockets; dogs, because Gimpy's exposed rear was an invitation for a quick snack, and on several occasions neighborhood mongrels had given it the full and painful treatment.

As he grew older and more ambitious, Gimpy did less and less angling on the lower east side where the droppin's, and therefore the pickin's, were slim. Instead, he invaded the lusher territories to the north, and finally settled on the gratings near the Union Square subway where, if the streets were not paved with gold, at least the ventilation shafts yielded a reasonable amount of silver.

The cop on 14th street in those days was one Ike Fogarty, a cynical gent who always suspicioned that while Gimpy was fishing in the subway, an accomplice was fishing in the spectators' pockets. But he was never able to pin anything on the kid, and this irked him so much that he finally threatened to pull him in for obstructing traffic the next time he caught him.

Gimpy took the hint and went back to Delancey street—that is, until one May morning when the sun was doing its stuff and going to school was out of the question. At his suggestion, our gang headed north on the prowl for cigar bands, and on 14th street we saw a woman get out of a taxi, suddenly clutch at her throat, and then stoop over and peer through a grating near the curb.

"Lost some'n, lady?" Gimpy asked her.

"A locket," said the woman. "It isn't worth much, but it has a picture of baby."

There were neither cops nor canines in sight. "I'll git it fer ya," said Gimpy.

From a Prince Albert tin he took a chunk of tar and held a match under it until it was sticky. Then he lowered it on a string and began to maneuver it over the locket.

At that moment, Officer Fogarty rounded the corner. "This time I'm runnin' ya in," he said. "Playin' hookey and obstructin' traffic at one and the same time."

"I'm only tryin' ta git this lady the pitcher of her baby," said Gimpy.

In exactly one minute and 46 seconds, our leader delicately eased the locket through the grating, pulled it free from the tar and handed it to its owner.

"Thanks," said the woman. "It's the only picture I have of baby."

Let's get goin'," said Fogarty.

Stalling for time, Gimpy said to the woman, "Wouldja min' if'n I took a look?"

"Not at all," she said, and snapped open the locket. Inside was a picture of a mean-looking pekinese pup.

"That ain't no baby," snarled Gimpy. "It's a lousy dawg."

"Watch your language, young man," said the woman. "Babys won more blue ribbons than you have fingers and toes."

Gimpy slowly stuffed string and tar back into the empty tin and dropped it down the grating. Then he turned to Fogarty.

"Okay, copper, he said. "Do ya duty.

The schools are about to close and the children are looking forward eagerly to the day when they are released from its routine and its pressure. They need that relief. They need time to let the lessons knead themselves into new experiences and so become added strength to their minds and bodies. Time is needed for such growth, needed as space for living.

Living does not stop when the school doors close. These next ten weeks offer some of the best growing days in all the year for the youngsters and they must not be wasted in emptiness. The first day or so seems delightful to the school-wearied children; but after that they are at a loss to find something to do. Activity is the source of all growth and Nature drives children to grow accordingly. Unless we direct their doing they will try to act on their own and being without experience, get into bad habits of idleness, mischief, attitudes toward usefulness that spell no good for them. Wise parents plan ahead for this precious growing time.

Some children will go to summer camp and be well cared for there. Some will find jobs and if these have been selected with an eye to their relation to the child's elected life work, they will prove to be most helpful. The great group will ask their mothers, "What can we do today?"

Mothers are busy people, and if there are younger children in the family overbusy, but they must find time to think out a way to keep the active youngsters worthily occupied with useful, interesting, pleasant activities. If it is possible a group of children should be gathered and an adult take over their activities. An auntie, a grandpa, a retired teacher, a socially minded person, can do a great deal to make a summer happy and profitable for such a group. Or the mothers of the group can take turns in caring for them day by day. Somebody should take over.

What they are to do depends upon the age and ability of the children, where they live, their proximity to centers of interest and places that afford recreation such as parks, pools, museums. It is not necessary nor is it desirable to fill a child's entire day, but he should follow a time schedule so the rhythm of his growth is preserved. Every child should have a home chore for which he is responsible, a period of active, recreational occupation, a period of leisure when he elects his occupation, and somebody to direct his activities and make them a worthwhile thing.

Swimming lessons, dramatics, storytelling, trips to historic spots, museums, gardening, sewing, nd building, modeling, attendance at a play group—The world is so full of a number of things" no child's vacation time should go to waste. Happy vacation to them and relief to their mothers into the bargain.

Does your child have trouble getting along with other children? Dr. Patri offers help for parents who have this problem in his leaflet P22, "Relationship to Other Children." To obtain a copy, send five cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to him, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

BASCOM TIMMONS

When the artillery horse fell on Maple Harl, it set in motion a chain of events in Harl's life which gives further proof that fortune has many guises. The same burst of shrapnel that killed the horse during the Battle of the Argonne in World War I stunned and slightly wounded Harl, but the weight of the dead animal crushed him, permanently injuring his spine.

A Missouri boy serving with the third division, Harl made the dreary rounds of government hospitals, winding up in Denver, where he entered the investment banking business. Despite his slightly crippled condition, he did well. His hobbies were veterans' activities and Democratic politics.

Today he heads the organization which protects you against loss of your money in the bank—the billion dollar Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, a quasi-governmental corporation financed by the banks of the nation, now seeking authorization from congress to erect a 10 million dollar building as permanent headquarters. The structure would be paid for out of FDIC earnings, not out of government funds.

In the course of Maple Harl's veteran activities, he was elected commander of the Disabled American Veterans. Traveling about to various conventions, he met another Missouri veteran named Harry S. Truman. They found they had been within a short distance of one another in the Argonne when the horse fell on Harl, had fought over the same ground. About the same time, Harl was appointed state banking commissioner of Colorado.

When President Truman appointed him chairman of FDIC in 1946, most bankers over the country asked "Who is he?" And the answer usually was "Just another one of Truman's Missouri friends." But under his direction FDIC has done very well. It claims credit for the fact that the country hasn't had a bank failure with any loss to depositors for seven years. Bankers, many of whom were dubious about the experiment of insuring depositors against loss, now accept federal deposit insurance as a permanent institution.

The contrast to the early 20's, after World War I, is emphasized by Harl. Then, bank failures ran into the hundreds. Even the newly functioning federal reserve system couldn't stop them. The south was particularly hard hit, and depositors losses ran into hundreds of millions. Now with every depositor guaranteed full insurance on all deposits of $5,000 or less, public confidence in banks is at an all time high and so are total deposits.

"An ailing bank is like a sick person," says Harl. "With time and careful attention its troubles will run full cycle and be cured. A dead horse fell on me once, and the roof fell in on the banking business in 1933. And neither one is going to happen again."

The site which the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation hopes to obtain for its new building lies along Washington's Constitution avenue and the Potomac river—a beautiful location. After the death of William Jennings Bryan, a statue was erected to him, facing over the Potomac. People laughed because his back was turned to a brewery, a short distance away. That seemed appropriate for a great leader of the drys.

But the location of FDIC headquarters near the statue would be even more appropriate. Bryan is credited with having been the first man to propose depositors insurance for banks.

That blustery, arrogant type of army officer who used to get in other people's hair, civilians as well as military during the war is seldom seen around Washington any more, but occasionally a specimen bobs up.

A colonel registered in at a Washington hotel about 1 a.m. when the lobby was pretty well deserted. At that time the cigar stand is closed, but guests may obtain smokes from bell boys. As the lieutenant colonel completed his registration, a quiet voiced man in civilian clothes stepped up to the bell boy on duty and asked if the boy could get him some cigarettes. The boy could and started toward a nearby desk.

At that moment the loud and strident voice of the colonel broke in:

"Boy, take these bags. I want to get to bed. Get your cigarettes afterwards."

The man in civilian clothes turned to the officer and said "Colonel, I beg your pardon. I did not realize that I was inconveniencing you."

The colonel's jaw dropped. He stared. He flushed. He recognized the man in civilian clothes. It was General of the Armies Dwight D. Eisenhower, retired.

The bell boy said the colonel grumbled to himself all the way to his room.

"CONSISTENCY THOU ART A JEWEL!"

Too many people in this country talk one way and act another. Hypocrisy may not be the worst sin of which a man may be guilty, but it ranks right around the top. Not that many people guilty of this practice would admit they are hypocrits—but there is no other label which adequately describes them.

Too many individuals, for instance, pound the table with one hand ranting against government control, while the other hand is held back of them beckoning for government subsidies.

As long as this keeps up, there can scarcely be any hope for a reversal of the trend to an ever-increasing national debt, to a continuous unbalanced budget, to a steally declining economy—in other words, to socialism, to state control, to destruction of our tradtional form of government.

As an illustration, most of us know successful business men in our own communities who in recent years have bought farms. Some of them live on the farms, some do not. In either case, however, the farm is usually a sideline, a hobby, a diversion. There is no objection to any man doing this who wants to do it and who can afford it—but there is serious objection to this same man accepting government aid in the development of his farm. The government, if he will allow it, helps him build a fish pond, helps him pay for his grass seed, helps him pay for his fertilizer, helps him terrace his land, helps him do a lot of things.

This successful business man doesn't need this help; in fact, he is opposed in principle to government aid. But he consoles himself and he excuses himself to his friends by saying, "I pay heavy taxes; I'm just getting part of my tax money back. Anyway, everybody else is getting it, why shouldn't I get it?" He thereby helps perpetuate and advance a system of governmental control which will eventually destroy the free enterprise system which has made his own business possible and which has enabled him to acquire the farm in the first place.

After all, this is still a government by the people. Which means that the kind of government we have is still up to the individual. We have not yet reached the point where there is only one candidate on election day and where the people are marched by the polls like dumb animals to vote for that candidate, without freedom of will or choice on their own part. If enough individuals were opposed to governmental subsidies and doles, which they know well enough in their own hearts mean eventual governmental control of the lives and activities of the people, and refused to accept them or have anything to do with them, we would soon be rid of this insidious evil.

If all the members of all the Chambers of Commerce in the United States, acting as individuals but in a concerted effort, would openly profess their opposition to federal aid and openly proclaim their intention to have nothing further to do with it, this cancerous growth that is eating away at our free enterprise system would rapidly be cleared up. The same thing would hold true if all members of all manufacturers associations in the United States would take such action.

The time has come when the people of this nation, particularly those holding positions of leadership and responsibility, must stand up and be counted. The choice is now before us as it has been since the founding of our nation: we can accept liberty or regimentation; we can choose individual freedom or governmental control—we cannot have both.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK—Ginger, a collie, is a hero in Sulphur Springs, Ark.

The Jim Setsers, of that town, lost their son, Gary, three years old, when he wandered off into the wooded hills.

Ten hours the child was gone. The National Guard turned out. So did the Kiwanis Club, and everybody else who could walk and talk and hear. Gary had whooping cough, which didn't make things any better.

Some member of one of the searching parties heard a small voice say, "Ginger, you come here!"

The collie had been watching over the boy all through the night. He wanted to go and call for help, but he went to the child obediently when he heard the command.

So, Gary was saved, thanks to the good people, good neighbors, and one good dog.

Now, who says we should shoot the dogs because they tear up the lawns?

Well, I was lost once myself. A little younger than Gary, I started off to hunt for the watermelon patch. Mother was very ill, and I had been playing alone about the house and yard.

I started walking west, got through one barbed wire fence and one patch of thorny wild plum bushes, and then through a quarter of a mile of growing corn. It must have taken a long time.

I gave up when I reached a large patch of thorny wild plum on The Sandhill, on Hydraulic road. I just lay down and bawled.

Meantime, a hunt was going on, of course. It was late in the day, and the men carried kerosene lanterns.

Steve Balch and his beautiful wife, Kate, were going to town in their buggy, driving the grand horse, Standard, a bay gelding.

They heard the baby cry, which they could not hear had they been driving a noisy automobile, and stopped.

I heard Steve say, "Why this is the Driscolls' baby. We'll drive right over there. They are probably crazy with fear."

Standard made good time that day, and Kate held me close as I slept, after my long ordeal.

As we came up the hill to our house Steve handed the reins to Kate and held me high in his hands. "Here's your baby, Mrs. Driscoll!" he shouted.

I slept that evening as I wish I could sleep now.

A very great brain specialist is a personal friend. He is not a psychiatrist, but what is known as a neuro-surgeon. Yet he knows all the psychiatric tricks.

I have a regrettable habit of losing things. I leave brief cases and other property on buses, trains, planes and ships.

Also, I have a recurring dream of being lost. Usually, this is in a country place, but sometimes in an abandoned building.

The Doctor found the spot, in one minute. Just two questions, and I told him the story of my being lost as a baby. He says the finding of me by the neighbor couple was so good that I have ever since wanted to be lost, or to lose something, so that the finding might be good. The Doctor may be right.

I hope little Gary will not grow up with bad dreams.

Peron's Debts To U. S. Firms

With the cold war centering in Europe and Asia, we seldom dwell much nowadays on events affecting South America. But the recent $125,000,000 U. S. grant of credit to the Peron government in Argentina deserves to be hauled up out of the backwash of public attention.

The average citizen reading of that grant would assume that some if not all of the money would be sent to Argentina. The fact is, not a single cent will leave the United States.

It's to be used to bail out banks and big and little businesses that have been dealing with Peron on credit and now can't collect from him. In other words, the U. S. is in effect making itself a collection agency for these various concerns.

The big question is whether this is the kind of thing our government ought to do. We are indulging banks and business outfits in their mistakes. We don't normally rescue them when they commit similar errors at home. If they go out on a shaky credit limb, we let them take the fall.

Why adopt a softer attitude toward their foreign dealings? Won't it simply invite a repetition of the same practices?

There may be some excuse for the little companies involved, since they don't always have the executive know-how that leads to careful weighing of credit risks. But there's little sense in the big firm's getting into so unsound a position as they have in Argentina.

If they feel competition compels them to extend credit to such a poor bet, they still have no reason to believe that the American people must underwrite their errors. Big business is strong enough to pay its own penalities; they are the inescapable cost of doing business in the risky climate of a free economy.

Furthermore, won't the big companies merely be playing Peron's game if they start from scratch and extend new credits once these old debts are paid?

The arrogantly proud Argentine dictator won't condescend to ask the U. S. government directly for an out-and-out loan. But he can achieve the same result, without loss of face, if Argentine enterprises can buy on credit from U. S. firms and the latter can count on the American government to bail them out when they can't collect.

Probably the banks and smaller outfits have been burned severely enough to have learned their lesson. But Washington ought to make it clear to big business that it won't save anybody a second time.

That way the whole burden will be on the individual firm taking the risk. And if Argentina has a good argument for buying but can't meet the credit terms of American companies, let Peron try to obtain a loan in the same open fashion that any other foreign leader must rely upon.

When the time comes—if it ever does— the loan application can be weighed on its merits, and particularly with regard to its effect on American relations with other more friendly South American countries.

The civil service compromise worked out between Governor Long and his administrative leaders on one side, and the Louisiana Civil Service League and legislators supporting its views on the other side, is a fine step and both sides deserve plenty of credit. It is a fine example of how factors as far apart as the North and South poles in viewpoint at the start can be brought together when both have the same objective and each is determined to reach it.

Regardless of the causes of past disintegration of civil service, Governor Long stated before the present session of the legislature convened that he wanted civil service restored in a manner comparable to its functioning in the early 1940s, with, where possible, improvements that might suggest themselves from past experience. The Louisiana Civil Service League, headed by Sam E. Dunbar, Jr., of New Orleans, sought the same objective.

The originally proposed bills in the legislature left much to be desired and it seemed for a while that no compromise would be possible. Governor Long felt that the proposals for amendment of the administration bill would have the effect, regardless of their intent, of stacking the civil service commission and the executive personnel under it with political enemies of his administration. The other side felt that the proposed civil service bill would leave civil service on a foundation of sand and also make possible dictatorial control of it from the executive offices.

In retrospect, it is our opinion that both sides may have had cause for their fears. But now each side has recognized the position of the other side, and yielded sufficiently to bring a compromise that seems thoroughly sound. It will take the test of time and actual operation to be absolutely sure, of course.

Good government in a land of intellectual, political, and physical freedom must have honest difference of opinion as one of the main stones in its foundation, and there must be willingness of those who honestly differ to both give and take if a solid structure is to be completed. That is what has happened in the civil service compromise and we commend all of those who had a part in it. Governor Long had an especially difficult task because he not only had to work out a compromise acceptable to the other side, but also to get it accepted by the very strong anti-compromise bloc in the legislature, which was not, incidentally, made up entirely of administration legislators.

WALTER WINCHELL

The Communist Underworld

The atomic era created a revolution in the shadowy world of espionage. Since complex scientific and technological information became the most vital military secrets—the slinky temptress and hard-hitting daredevil have been almost completely replaced by staid, scholarly men and women . . .Klaus Fuchs is an outstanding example of the modern spy vogue. Soviet agents implicated in the Canadian espionage case included several university professors, research scientists and doctors of philosophy.

Soon after the Communists in Russia seized power they set up a school for undercover agents in Moscow called Lenin University . . .It attracted Communist students from various parts of the globe. They were—and are—being trained in Communist theory and tactics which range from methods of inciting street brawls to the strategy used in penetrating innocuous social clubs and transforming them into Communist-front outfits.

Several leaders of the American Communist Party received their diploma in treachery at Lenin U.

More important is the school run by the O. G. P. U. (Russian Secret Police) in Leningrad. Here the more advanced rats are trained for counterfeiting, kidnapping, sabotage and other crimes . . .The brightest graduates become Professors of Assassination. And their specialty consists of unsolved murders: Juliet Poyntz was an American Communist Party leader until she was recruited into the service of the Soviet Military Intelligence. She suddenly vanished in 1937 without a trace and has never been found. Editor Carlo Tresca threatened to make public the name of her assassin—and Tresca became another famous unsolved murder.

Gen. Walter Krivitksy was a Russian spy chief until he broke activities of Russian espionage agents in testimony before congressional committees. Krivitsky wrote a book about the Soviet Secret Police in 1939—and shortly after it was published Krivitsky was slain in Washington.

Communist Russia began its undercover war against the United States back in 1923. A Soviet agent named John Pepper (alias Joe Pogany) arrived here during that year—to serve as a liaison officer between the American Communist Party and Moscow.

Pepper was among the first to learn that the mortality rate among Soviet agents is high. Disobedience, failure, or straying from the party line results in swift and brutal punishment.

Pepper was ordered to return to Russia in 1937 and shot.

The most vital task of Communist agents is adding to Moscow's mountainous stockpile of information about potential enemy nations. The information is political, economic, psychological — as well as military. Every scrap of information is important—it may provide the missing piece in a jigsaw. Business reports issued by companies, economic reports issued by the government, the statements of our leaders and editorialists—all are forwarded to Moscow. There they are systematically analyzed by corps of political, economic and military experts—and even psychiatrists.

Moscow has transformed diplomacy into treachery. Every Soviet embassy and consulate throughout the world serves as the mainspring of the Russian espionage army. . . The diplomatic spy units are divided into two classes—the economic and political. Each unit has its own secret code and code clerks, so that their activities are kept secret from each other.

The diplomatic-espionage activities are master-minded by O. G. P. U. agents. They are not only guide Soviet diplomats—but also serve as their judge, jury and firing squad.

The efficacy of the ideological approach is exemplified by Fuchs, Gold and those involved in the Canadian spy case. They were convinced they were serving humanity. So imbued were they with Communist starry-eyed hokum—many of these duped idealists refused to accept payment for espionage activities.

Among the most amazing yarns about Soviet spies is one about the Russian agent who made Rumania's King Carol the most likely candidate for the chump medal: Posing as a business man, the spy became so chummy with Carol—that he managed to obtain the royal plane and used it to make aerial photographs of Rumania's defenses!

The cost of Russian undercover operations runs in billions. Just to give you an idea: The U. S. S. R. has spent over a million dollars a year just to finance social affairs in Washington.

While guests eat caviar—they are also expected to swallow Communist propaganda.

You probably recall this story. It happened on October 9th, 1948. . Two Russian airmen, Pirogov and Barsov, flying over Western Ukraine, landed near Linz in the American zone of Austria. . .They requested asylum as political refugees. . .In February, 1949, they were brought to the United States. They made a tour of Virginia as guests of the Chamber of Commerce. They spent that spring touring the 48 states—being interviewed by the press . . . Pirogov started his book titled: "Why I Escaped." It was published this year.

His companion, Barsov (a fairly heavy drinker), appeared to be jealous of his pal's success over here as an author. . .Barsov got moody and quarrelsome. One night he got drunk and staggered into the Russian Embassy, Washington, where he requested they send him back to Russia. That was on August 17th, 1949. . .On August 31st the State Dep't (if you will pardon the expression) flew Barsov to Vienna, where he was turned over to the Russian authorities. We even gave him one last chance to change his mind. . ."Do you really want to go back to Russia—or back to the United States of America?" he was asked at the Enns River Bridge. . .Barsov elected to return to his beloved Russia, and Pirogov (over here) predicted: "Barsov will die like a dog within six months!"

This is to tell Russian ex-Lt. Peter Pirogov that his drunken comrade Barsov was executed at Kharkov at 5:30 a.m.—on Nov. 7th.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

THE INCOMPLEAT ANGLER

When I was a kid on the east side a couple of hundred years ago, a sidewalk was a lot more than a strip to walk on; it was something to dream on, tap-dance on, pitch pennies on and scribble philosophical sayings on, of the sort not found in Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations." However, to Gimpy Myers, the leader of our gang, a sidewalk was none of these things—it was primarily something to fish through.

To put a fine point on it, what Gimpy fished through was not the sidewalk itself but the iron gratings over cellar windows and subway ventilation shafts. And what he fished for, with the aid of a blob of tar dangling at the end of a string, was everything but fish—coins, picture buttons and other bits of treasure which had fallen through.

There were two occupational hazards, however, which used to annoy this Izaak Walton of the asphalts—cops and dogs. Cops, because a subway fisherman attracts crowds and crowds, as a rule, attract pickpockets; dogs, because Gimpy's exposed rear was an invitation for a quick snack, and on several occasions neighborhood mongrels had given it the full and painful treatment.

As he grew older and more ambitious, Gimpy did less and less angling on the lower east side where the droppin's, and therefore the pickin's, were slim. Instead, he invaded the lusher territories to the north, and finally settled on the gratings near the Union Square subway where, if the streets were not paved with gold, at least the ventilation shafts yielded a reasonable amount of silver.

The cop on 14th street in those days was one Ike Fogarty, a cynical gent who always suspicioned that while Gimpy was fishing in the subway, an accomplice was fishing in the spectators' pockets. But he was never able to pin anything on the kid, and this irked him so much that he finally threatened to pull him in for obstructing traffic the next time he caught him.

Gimpy took the hint and went back to Delancey street—that is, until one May morning when the sun was doing its stuff and going to school was out of the question. At his suggestion, our gang headed north on the prowl for cigar bands, and on 14th street we saw a woman get out of a taxi, suddenly clutch at her throat, and then stoop over and peer through a grating near the curb.

"Lost some'n, lady?" Gimpy asked her.

"A locket," said the woman. "It isn't worth much, but it has a picture of baby."

There were neither cops nor canines in sight. "I'll git it fer ya," said Gimpy.

From a Prince Albert tin he took a chunk of tar and held a match under it until it was sticky. Then he lowered it on a string and began to maneuver it over the locket.

At that moment, Officer Fogarty rounded the corner. "This time I'm runnin' ya in," he said. "Playin' hookey and obstructin' traffic at one and the same time."

"I'm only tryin' ta git this lady the pitcher of her baby," said Gimpy.

In exactly one minute and 46 seconds, our leader delicately eased the locket through the grating, pulled it free from the tar and handed it to its owner.

"Thanks," said the woman. "It's the only picture I have of baby."

Let's get goin'," said Fogarty.

Stalling for time, Gimpy said to the woman, "Wouldja min' if'n I took a look?"

"Not at all," she said, and snapped open the locket. Inside was a picture of a mean-looking pekinese pup.

"That ain't no baby," snarled Gimpy. "It's a lousy dawg."

"Watch your language, young man," said the woman. "Babys won more blue ribbons than you have fingers and toes."

Gimpy slowly stuffed string and tar back into the empty tin and dropped it down the grating. Then he turned to Fogarty.

"Okay, copper, he said. "Do ya duty.

The schools are about to close and the children are looking forward eagerly to the day when they are released from its routine and its pressure. They need that relief. They need time to let the lessons knead themselves into new experiences and so become added strength to their minds and bodies. Time is needed for such growth, needed as space for living.

Living does not stop when the school doors close. These next ten weeks offer some of the best growing days in all the year for the youngsters and they must not be wasted in emptiness. The first day or so seems delightful to the school-wearied children; but after that they are at a loss to find something to do. Activity is the source of all growth and Nature drives children to grow accordingly. Unless we direct their doing they will try to act on their own and being without experience, get into bad habits of idleness, mischief, attitudes toward usefulness that spell no good for them. Wise parents plan ahead for this precious growing time.

Some children will go to summer camp and be well cared for there. Some will find jobs and if these have been selected with an eye to their relation to the child's elected life work, they will prove to be most helpful. The great group will ask their mothers, "What can we do today?"

Mothers are busy people, and if there are younger children in the family overbusy, but they must find time to think out a way to keep the active youngsters worthily occupied with useful, interesting, pleasant activities. If it is possible a group of children should be gathered and an adult take over their activities. An auntie, a grandpa, a retired teacher, a socially minded person, can do a great deal to make a summer happy and profitable for such a group. Or the mothers of the group can take turns in caring for them day by day. Somebody should take over.

What they are to do depends upon the age and ability of the children, where they live, their proximity to centers of interest and places that afford recreation such as parks, pools, museums. It is not necessary nor is it desirable to fill a child's entire day, but he should follow a time schedule so the rhythm of his growth is preserved. Every child should have a home chore for which he is responsible, a period of active, recreational occupation, a period of leisure when he elects his occupation, and somebody to direct his activities and make them a worthwhile thing.

Swimming lessons, dramatics, storytelling, trips to historic spots, museums, gardening, sewing, nd building, modeling, attendance at a play group—The world is so full of a number of things" no child's vacation time should go to waste. Happy vacation to them and relief to their mothers into the bargain.

Does your child have trouble getting along with other children? Dr. Patri offers help for parents who have this problem in his leaflet P22, "Relationship to Other Children." To obtain a copy, send five cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to him, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

BASCOM TIMMONS

When the artillery horse fell on Maple Harl, it set in motion a chain of events in Harl's life which gives further proof that fortune has many guises. The same burst of shrapnel that killed the horse during the Battle of the Argonne in World War I stunned and slightly wounded Harl, but the weight of the dead animal crushed him, permanently injuring his spine.

A Missouri boy serving with the third division, Harl made the dreary rounds of government hospitals, winding up in Denver, where he entered the investment banking business. Despite his slightly crippled condition, he did well. His hobbies were veterans' activities and Democratic politics.

Today he heads the organization which protects you against loss of your money in the bank—the billion dollar Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, a quasi-governmental corporation financed by the banks of the nation, now seeking authorization from congress to erect a 10 million dollar building as permanent headquarters. The structure would be paid for out of FDIC earnings, not out of government funds.

In the course of Maple Harl's veteran activities, he was elected commander of the Disabled American Veterans. Traveling about to various conventions, he met another Missouri veteran named Harry S. Truman. They found they had been within a short distance of one another in the Argonne when the horse fell on Harl, had fought over the same ground. About the same time, Harl was appointed state banking commissioner of Colorado.

When President Truman appointed him chairman of FDIC in 1946, most bankers over the country asked "Who is he?" And the answer usually was "Just another one of Truman's Missouri friends." But under his direction FDIC has done very well. It claims credit for the fact that the country hasn't had a bank failure with any loss to depositors for seven years. Bankers, many of whom were dubious about the experiment of insuring depositors against loss, now accept federal deposit insurance as a permanent institution.

The contrast to the early 20's, after World War I, is emphasized by Harl. Then, bank failures ran into the hundreds. Even the newly functioning federal reserve system couldn't stop them. The south was particularly hard hit, and depositors losses ran into hundreds of millions. Now with every depositor guaranteed full insurance on all deposits of $5,000 or less, public confidence in banks is at an all time high and so are total deposits.

"An ailing bank is like a sick person," says Harl. "With time and careful attention its troubles will run full cycle and be cured. A dead horse fell on me once, and the roof fell in on the banking business in 1933. And neither one is going to happen again."

The site which the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation hopes to obtain for its new building lies along Washington's Constitution avenue and the Potomac river—a beautiful location. After the death of William Jennings Bryan, a statue was erected to him, facing over the Potomac. People laughed because his back was turned to a brewery, a short distance away. That seemed appropriate for a great leader of the drys.

But the location of FDIC headquarters near the statue would be even more appropriate. Bryan is credited with having been the first man to propose depositors insurance for banks.

That blustery, arrogant type of army officer who used to get in other people's hair, civilians as well as military during the war is seldom seen around Washington any more, but occasionally a specimen bobs up.

A colonel registered in at a Washington hotel about 1 a.m. when the lobby was pretty well deserted. At that time the cigar stand is closed, but guests may obtain smokes from bell boys. As the lieutenant colonel completed his registration, a quiet voiced man in civilian clothes stepped up to the bell boy on duty and asked if the boy could get him some cigarettes. The boy could and started toward a nearby desk.

At that moment the loud and strident voice of the colonel broke in:

"Boy, take these bags. I want to get to bed. Get your cigarettes afterwards."

The man in civilian clothes turned to the officer and said "Colonel, I beg your pardon. I did not realize that I was inconveniencing you."

The colonel's jaw dropped. He stared. He flushed. He recognized the man in civilian clothes. It was General of the Armies Dwight D. Eisenhower, retired.

The bell boy said the colonel grumbled to himself all the way to his room.

Thurman Sensing,

DOWN SOUTH

"CONSISTENCY THOU ART A JEWEL!"

Too many people in this country talk one way and act another. Hypocrisy may not be the worst sin of which a man may be guilty, but it ranks right around the top. Not that many people guilty of this practice would admit they are hypocrits—but there is no other label which adequately describes them.

Too many individuals, for instance, pound the table with one hand ranting against government control, while the other hand is held back of them beckoning for government subsidies.

As long as this keeps up, there can scarcely be any hope for a reversal of the trend to an ever-increasing national debt, to a continuous unbalanced budget, to a steally declining economy—in other words, to socialism, to state control, to destruction of our traditional form of government.

As an illustration, most of us know successful business men in our own communities who in recent years have bought farms. Some of them live on the farms, some do not. In either case, however, the farm is usually a sideline, a hobby, a diversion. There is no objection to any man doing this who wants to do it and who can afford it—but there is serious objection to this same man accepting government aid in the development of his farm. The government, if he will allow it, helps him build a fish pond, helps him pay for his grass seed, helps him pay for his fertilizer, helps him terrace his land, helps him do a lot of things.

This successful business man doesn't need this help; in fact, he is opposed in principle to government aid. But he consoles himself and he excuses himself to his friends by saying, "I pay heavy taxes; I'm just getting part of my tax money back. Anyway, everybody else is getting it, why shouldn't I get it?" He thereby helps perpetuate and advance a system of governmental control which will eventually destroy the free enterprise system which has made his own business possible and which has enabled him to acquire the farm in the first place.

After all, this is still a government by the people. Which means that the kind of government we have is still up to the individual. We have not yet reached the point where there is only one candidate on election day and where the people are marched by the polls like dumb animals to vote for that candidate, without freedom of will or choice on their own part. If enough individuals were opposed to governmental subsidies and doles, which they know well enough in their own hearts mean eventual governmental control of the lives and activities of the people, and refused to accept them or have anything to do with them, we would soon be rid of this insidious evil.

If all the members of all the Chambers of Commerce in the United States, acting as individuals but in a concerted effort, would openly profess their opposition to federal aid and openly proclaim their intention to have nothing further to do with it, this cancerous growth that is eating away at our free enterprise system would rapidly be cleared up. The same thing would hold true if all members of all manufacturers associations in the United States would take such action.

The time has come when the people of this nation, particularly those holding positions of leadership and responsibility, must stand up and be counted. The choice is now before us as it has been since the founding of our nation: we can accept liberty or regimentation; we can choose individual freedom or governmental control—we cannot have both.

Meantime, a hunt was going on, of course. It was late in the day, and the men carried kerosene lanterns.

Steve Balch and his beautiful wife, Kate, were going to town in their buggy, driving the grand horse, Standard, a bay gelding.

They heard the baby cry, which they could not hear had they been driving a noisy automobile, and stopped.

I heard Steve say, "Why this is the Driscolls' baby. We'll drive right over there. They are probably crazy with fear."

Standard made good time that day, and Kate held me close as I slept, after my long ordeal.

As we came up the hill to our house Steve handed the reins to Kate and held me high in his hands. "Here's your baby, Mrs. Driscoll!" he shouted.

I slept that evening as I wish I could sleep now.

A very great brain specialist is a personal friend. He is not a psychiatrist, but what is known as a neuro-surgeon. Yet he knows all the psychiatric tricks.

I have a regrettable habit of losing things. I leave brief cases and other property on buses, trains, planes and ships.

Also, I have a recurring dream of being lost. Usually, this is in a country place, but sometimes in an abandoned building.

The Doctor found the spot, in one minute. Just two questions, and I told him the story of my being lost as a baby. He says the finding of me by the neighbor couple was so good that I have ever since wanted to be lost, or to lose something, so that the finding might be good. The Doctor may be right.

I hope little Gary will not grow up with bad dreams.

Every day, in every way, the fight against television, being waged by certain die-hard studio heads, becomes more ridiculous. I have in mind just now an order that was handed down in one of the major studios the other day. The boss of that plant decreed that television sets must not be shown in any of his pictures, and that none may be kept by employees on the studio lot. That fiat leaves me wondering when the tycoons of the picture industry are going to quit playing ostrich and realize that TV, like it or not, is here to stay, and that it offers at least as much to motion picture producers as it can possibly take away.

Looking over the list of pictures slated for early release or production, I find that one is based on a story about a woman afflicted with an incur ble case of cancer, another deals with a man hopelessly ill with leprosy and a third dramatizes the plight of a veteran who, through the use of pain-killing narcotics, becomes a hopeless drug addict. I have no doubt that all three stories are dramatic — but it seems to me that movies, if this depressing trend continues, will need to be sold as something other than our best "entertainment. Can it be that Hollywood is forgetting the fact that the great majority of American movie-fans have always gone to the theater. because motion pictures offered them an escape from the seamy side of everyday life?

If you follow Hollywood news, you'll probably recall the big tizzy stirred up in England a few months ago when Irene Dunne was cast as Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark." At that time, British Actors' Equity screamed bloody murder. It was unfair, the English thespians charged, to give such a big role, in a picture to be filmed in London, to an American actress. And from there they went on to the cry of "sacrilege and desecration" as they commented on an American playing the part of England's most famous queen. Through it all, Miss Dunne bore herself with her usual quiet dignity. But if, despite that dignity, she hasn't done a lot of chuckling in the past week, she has less sense of humor than I give her credit for. When it came time to pass out, to English actors, the equivalent of our Academy Oscars, someone who could command international attention was needed to present the awards. And who did they choose, over yonder in England, but Irene Dunne!

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

New Welfare Proposal

Editors appear to divide about equally on whether President Truman's re-submitted welfare department proposal is satisfactory. One group feels that the new provision of policy-making authority for the public health service, as well as the office of education, makes the now proposed department of health, education and security acceptable. But the other group fears that, despite this change, inclusion of federal health agencies in the new department would aid an administration drive for "socialized medicine," and especially so if the new department were headed by Oscar Ewing.

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "Reorganization Plan No. 1 of the Hoover commission recommended that social security and education functions . . . be turned over to a new cabinet-level department. In another reorganization plan the Hoover commission urged the creation of a united medical administration to take over public health and armed forces and veterans medical activities. . . . Why does Mr. Truman insist on dragging 'health' into Reorganization Plan No. 1, thereby endangering the whole plan? . . . It appears that he is still trying to give cabinet status to his socialized medicine ideas . . . ."

Washington (D. C.) Post (Ind.): "The president seems to us to have the better of the argument. Health is not an isolated problem. It vitally affects, and is affected by, education and economic status. The three problems ought to be dealt with on an integrated basis. The president has made an accommodation to congressional fears that the health services might be subordinated by providing in the new proposal that the surgeon general, and also the commissioner of education, retain all the statutory authority and duties now vested in them."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The president either ignores or underestimates the emotional opposition which will be aroused by including health services in a department clearly intended to be headed by Mr. Oscar Ewing, the most vocal proponent of national compulsory health insurance. This, rather than detailed objections to the specific provisions of last year's plan, was a major factor in its defeat. Unfortunately, the president appears to be courting another contest on the same field, even though it is unnecessary and irrelevant to the primary purposes of the reorganization act."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.): "The president is known to have Mr. Ewing, federal security administrator, in mind to head the new department. . . . But he takes care not to curtail the powers of the surgeon general. . . . Under the president's new scheme Mr. Ewing would have no more authority to advance this unpopular cause of compulsory medical insurance, which many call 'socialized medicine,' than he has now. Objection to his views does not seem a valid reason for tossing on the scrap heap a desirable and much needed reorganization plan."

New York Times (Ind.-Dem.): "Whether Mr. Truman has clipped Mr. Ewing's potential wings by providing that the surgeon general, like the commissioner of education, "retain all the statutory authority and duties now vested' in him might be a matter of opinion. The president assumes that there will no longer be danger of "subordinating professional judgment to non-professional domination.' Thus Mr. Ewing could not roll out the carpet for health insurance. But he could not do this in any case unless congress consented."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The Hoover commission made out a strong case for the creation of the new department as a means of promoting efficiency and economy in government. But it is quite clear that Mr. Truman is seeking to introduce other factors into the equation. He is seeking to set up a new department . . . in such a way as to give Fair Deal ideology, rather than economy and efficiency first consideration. . . . The same basis for objection to the new plan . . . exists. . . . This was . . . the fear that Mr. Ewing would use his increased power to advance the so-called 'socialized' medicine program . . . ."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "To refuse to set up a new department . . . because some senators do not like the man who might be appointed to head it, seems like poor judgment. The senate would have to confirm the appointment in any event. . . . This plan has more to recommend it than the first. . . . The situation to prevail would be something like that of the department of defense: one secretary of cabinet rank and undersecretary with real power in their fields. . . .Mr. Truman recommends that the heads of divisions of health, security and education be given policy-making powers. . . ."

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE RULE OR SEARCH

Robert H. Hitchcock's testimony before the Tydings committee must stimulate wonder as to what were the purposes of Francis Biddle, who was attorney general when the "Amerasia" case began and why Mr. Hitchock and his associates acted as they did.

Let us grant, for the sake of the argument, that a spy can go to the state and other departments and steal 1,700 documents, some of the most secret nature, and that nothing can be done about it if the agents of the O S S and the F B I entered the premises where the documents were found without a search warrant

Yet, this question arises: The O S S raid occurred on March 11 1945. Maybe no court case could be made out of that because Frank B. Bielaski did not have a search warrant. However, the Bielaski seizures are not among the 1,700 documents we are now talking about. Those were seized by the FBI in June.

Why was it not possible for the department of justice to get a search warrant between March and June? What held up due process of law in an espionage case for three months?

Let us go further. Mr. Hitchcock testified:

"The FBI, in connection with the arrest of Jaffe and Kate Mitchell at the Amerasia offices had seized several hundred papers, many of which were clearly the property of one or more government agencies, most of them of the state department. Many others of the seized papers later were clearly established to be copies of similar records. The bulk of them were classified, as, for example, restricted, confidential, secret etc."

Maybe those documents could not be used against Jaffe and Kate Mitchell, but they did involve others, among them Roth, Service and Larsen. Certainly, once the department of justice saw the documents, these others were involved. They could be held under the law for information gained in this manner.

Similarly Hitchcock said:

"In (Mark) Gayn's apartment, when he was arrested, the FBI seized 60 items, of which 22 were federal communications commission reports or copies pertaining to interrogation of Japanese prisoners of war. About 20 were typewritten copies of state department papers, and 81 were correspondence or papers which were wholly personal.

"Copies of some of the items found in Gayn's apartment were found in the Amerasia offices. When Gayn was arrested, he made a statement that he knew some of the material seized was not generally available to the public.

"He said he intended using it for background and no other reason. When he was asked where he got it, he said that in some instance he did not recall, and that in others, as a reputable newspaperman he could not disclose the sources."

That, of course, raises a very curious issue. We, of the press, hate to disclose confidences, although many of us have learned to refuse to receive confidences from certain types of politicians as involving participation in matters a gentleman should avoid.

However, can a newspaperman hold to the position in time of war that he has a right to be the recipient of files stolen or taken, whichever he chooses, from the government without personal responsibility for their possession? Gayn Finally admitted that he received the F C C reports from the New York office of the O W I; that George Edward Taylor and Elizabeth Downing (Baker by Marriage) gave them to him.

One of the major difficulties with Hitchcock's testimony is that the documents he testified about do not describe accurately the 1,700 now in the possession of the Tydings committee, some of which were disclosed by Senator Hickenlooper to Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune. Did Hitchcock, as the prosecuting attorney, read the 1,700 documents or did he accept the word of Service, Jaffe, Gayne, Mitchell and Roth concerning them? As these documents are being published, the discrepancy between their actual character and the attempt of Mr. Hitchcock to minimize them is quite evident.

According to Mr. Hitchcock, Kate Mitchell, when she was arrested, said "that she knew the source of (some documents) but refused to divulge it. Later she told us and the grand jury that it was her understanding that Jaffe obtained them from Larsen."

Mr. Hitchcock would have made a case had he pursued it. The question of public concern is: Why was the case not pursued?

LAWMAKERS FACE STACKS OF BILLS

Get Reminder From 'Freshman And Woman' Time Is Short

BATON ROUGE, La., June 10.—(AP)—Louisiana lawmakers return to a record number of bills tonight with a gentle reminder from "a freshman and a woman" that time is short.

Since the 1950 session started May 8, more than 1400 bills have been introduced. They range from Gov. Earl K. Long's proposals—including a $140,000,000 highway bond issue—to simple authority to sue a state agency.

With final adjournment less than four weeks off, Mrs. Bland Cox Bruns, New Orleans representative, arose in the house Friday to say:

"I know I'm a freshman and a woman. But I'd like to say that we had all better start attending sessions and committee meetings if we're going to get any work done."

House Speaker Morris Lottinger of Terrebonne agreed. Surveying his colleagues, assembled in little more than a quorum, he said:

"Your point is well taken, Mrs. Bruns."

They were emphasizing that, before sine die adjournment July 6, legislators are scheduled to act on enough bills to fill a laundry basket. So far, a mere handful have been approved or withdrawn.

Only two major measures—one appropriating $543,000 to pay legislative expenses and the other to create an East Baton Rouge Parish school board—have gone the route. The others are still in committee or marking time on a house or senate calendar.

Even the governor's program is several days away from final action.

The proposed constitutional amendment to authorize issuance of $140,000,000 in highway bonds has passed the house. It is up for a public hearing in the senate's finance committee this week and may not get to the floor until the week after.

The general appropriations bill—allocating about $470,000,000 to operate the state government for the next two years—has cleared a house committee, but still faces house floor action and the full treatment in the senate.

The proposed constitutional amendment to re-establish state civil service — a compromise between the state administration and the Louisiana civil service league—is still in a house committee. If approved by the house, it goes to the senate.

The governor's bill proposing a convention early next year to rewrite Louisiana's constitution will be eligible for floor action in the house tonight. But it may not be called up.

Rep. Edwin F. Hunter, Jr., of Caddo said Friday he will offer floor amendments to the constitutional convention proposal. With such prospects of a fight in a possibly "short" house, administration leaders may put off action to another day.

Meanwhile, legislative observers were freely predicting that much legislation will die a-borning. Competing with administration proposals that still have a long way to go, they may be sidetracked until it is too late, they say.

DEFENSES READY FOR RED ATTACK

Commander Of Formosa's Aerial Defenses Says Nationalists Are Ready

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 10.—(AP)—The commander of Formosa's aerial defenses asserted today he was ready to cope with any Communist air assaults "even if Soviet-manned jets are used."

Gen. "Tiger" Wang Shu - Ming, head of air defense headquarters, said the Nationalist air force would welcome such raids because they would give his airmen a chance to prove their superiority.

Wang told newsmen the still untried Communist air force was not so formidable as most people thought and he wasn't worried. Russia is reported to have given the Reds several hundred airplanes, including some jets. The Nationalists have charged Russians pilot some of the planes.

Without elaborating, Wang declared air force headquarters had found "technical means" to destroy the jets if they come over.

(The Hong Kong newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po in a Canton dispatch said the Chinese Communists have organized an armored regiment for the invasion of Formosa.

(It was said to be in training now with Russian advisers on the invasion coast opposite Formosa. The commander was named as Gen. Yeh Fei, who studied armored car tactics in Russia after the war.)

(The Canton story said the regiment originally had at least 60 tanks given to the Reds by the Russians when they withdrew from Manchuria. Presumably it recently was strengthened by an undisclosed number of "amphibious tanks.")

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that a second former premier, Sun Fo, had resigned from the Kuomintang (the ruling Nationalist Party) central executive committee rather than return o Formosa.

Sun Fo, now in Hong Kong, sent in his resignation in April. The resignation of former Premier T. V. Soong, brother-in-law of Chiang Kai-Shek, was announced yesterday. Soong now is in the United States.

Contrary to yesterday's report that Soong had quit the party itself, officials explained that his resignation affected only his membership on the committee.

Both Sun and Soong were warned last March to return or be expelled from the Kuomintang, but the party as yet has taken no action. They were given until May to get back, but a period of grace seems to have been allowed.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Book of Malachi stands as the last book in the Old Testament, and Malachi was the last of the prophets, or the last of those to be included in the canon, or authoritative group, of the Hebrew prophecies.

There seems little doubt that the prophecy of Malachi dates from somewhat more than 400 years before Christ. It is a mistake however, to assume that, because no great phophet arose during that period between the Old and New Testaments, the time lacked religious significance or greatness of faith.

It was the period of the great dispersion, when Jews were scattered through various parts of that ancient world. It was the period when the synagogues were established as places of religion and education. It was the time when Jews worshiped with their faces toward Jerusalem, and many Gentiles were won as proselytes to Judaism because of its supriority to paganism in its moral emphasis, and its faith in a living God.

It was a period, too, when many Jews took their religious faith and its patience so seriously that they were willing to suffer and die for it at the hands of Grecian conquerors who corrupted the Jewish religion.

It was with an earlier, and in a sense more reprehensible, corruption that Malachi dealt in his prophecy, for this corruption came not from foreign invaders, but from leaders of the Jews themselves.

In the annals of religion there is nothing sadder and more tragic than the betrayal by ministers and priests of the God whom they have professed to serve.

Malachi cries out against priests, who actually despised and profaned the name of God (Malachi (1:6-12). Highlights of his prophecy reveal his own noble conception of God's purposes ("From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same My name shall be great among the Gentiles"). He commends the faithful in Israel, despite the corruption that he rebukes ("Then they that feared the Lord spake often to one another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon His name." Malachi 3:16).

Perhaps in every age there have been these conflicts and contrasts, between those who have made religion a cloak for their own evil, and the pure in heart who have seen God. The rebuke of the prophets was needed, but their message reached ints heights in their appeal and inspiration toward integrity of faith and life, and devotion to the God of righteousness and truth.

Gun-Wielding Pickpocket Fires 3 Times In N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 10. —(AP)— A gun - wielding pickpocket suspect fired three shots today in an East 14th street five and ten cent store, near-panicking more than 200 shoppers.

The shots went wild, and the man later was captured by the store's manager and two assistants.

The bullets lodged in counters and in the floor.

The chase took place in one of New York City's busiest shopping sections.

Shoppers — mostly women and children—fled screaming with terror as the suspect broke from store officials and dodged, gun in hand, between counters.

Guest speaker for the commencement exercises was Dr. Rodney Cline, dean of Northeast Junior College, Monroe. The processional and recessional were played by Mrs. Dale Lowrey and the invocation by Mr. A. J. Tarver. Special music was by the high school chorus.

Diplomas were presented by Mr. S. G. Lucky, superintendent of Morehouse parish schools. Dr. C. B. Gray of Bastrop presented the American Legion awards. Principal Dale Lowrey presented the other awards of merit.

Baccalaureate services were held Sunday, May 28, at the Reily Memorial Methodist church, with the Rev. Norman Tilbury, pastor of the Collinston First Baptist Church, delivering the sermon entitled, "Your Life of Challenge and Not of Compromise." Prayer and scripture, Proverbs 3, were by the Methodist pastor, Rev. E. W. Corley. The processional and recessional were played by the church pianist, Mrs. B. W. Hopgood. A special song, "This Holy Hour," was by Mrs. Jack Waldrop.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

New Welfare Proposal

Editors appear to divide about equally on whether President Truman's re-submitted welfare department proposal is satisfactory. One group feels that the new provision of policy-making authority for the public health service, as well as the office of education, makes the now proposed department of health, education and security acceptable. But the other group fears that, despite this change, inclusion of federal health agencies in the new department would aid an administration drive for "socialized medicine," and especially so if the new department were headed by Oscar Ewing.

Indianapolis (Ind.) Star (Ind.-Rep.): "Reorganization Plan No. 1 of the Hoover commission recommended that social security and education functions . . . be turned over to a new cabinet-level department. In another reorganization plan the Hoover commission urged the creation of a united medical administration to take over public health and armed forces and veterans medical activities. . . . Why does Mr. Truman insist on dragging 'health' into Reorganization Plan No. 1, thereby endangering the whole plan? . . . It appears that he is still trying to give cabinet status to his socialized medicine ideas . . . ."

Washington (D. C.) Post (Ind.): "The president seems to us to have the better of the argument. Health is not an isolated problem. It vitally affects, and is affected by, education and economic status. The three problems ought to be dealt with on an integrated basis. The president has made an accommodation to congressional fears that the health services might be subordinated by providing in the new proposal that the surgeon general, and also the commissioner of education, retain all the statutory authority and duties now vested in them."

New York Herald Tribune (Ind.-Rep.): "The president either ignores or underestimates the emotional opposition which will be aroused by including health services in a department clearly intended to be headed by Mr. Oscar Ewing, the most vocal proponent of national compulsory health insurance. This, rather than detailed objections to the specific provisions of last year's plan, was a major factor in its defeat. Unfortunately, the president appears to be courting another contest on the same field, even though it is unnecessary and irrelevant to the primary purposes of the reorganization act."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Bulletin (Ind.): "The president is known to have Mr. Ewing, federal security administrator, in mind to head the new department. . . . But he takes care not to curtail the powers of the surgeon general. . . . Under the president's new scheme Mr. Ewing would have no more authority to advance this unpopular cause of compulsory medical insurance, which many call 'socialized medicine,' than he has now. Objection to his views does not seem a valid reason for tossing on the scrap heap a desirable and much needed reorganization plan."

New York Times (Ind.-Dem.): "Whether Mr. Truman has clipped Mr. Ewing's potential wings by providing that the surgeon general, like the commissioner of education, "retain all the statutory authority and duties now vested' in him might be a matter of opinion. The president assumes that there will no longer be danger of "subordinating professional judgment to non-professional domination.' Thus Mr. Ewing could not roll out the carpet for health insurance. But he could not do this in any case unless congress consented."

Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch (Ind.-Dem.): "The Hoover commission made out a strong case for the creation of the new department as a means of promoting efficiency and economy in government. But it is quite clear that Mr. Truman is seeking to introduce other factors into the equation. He is seeking to set up a new department . . . in such a way as to give Fair Deal ideology, rather than economy and efficiency first consideration. . . . The same basis for objection to the new plan . . . exists. . . . This was . . . the fear that Mr. Ewing would use his increased power to advance the so-called 'socialized' medicine program . . . ."

Birmingham (Ala.) News (Ind.-Dem.): "To refuse to set up a new department . . . because some senators do not like the man who might be appointed to head it, seems like poor judgment. The senate would have to confirm the appointment in any event. . . . This plan has more to recommend it than the first. . . . The situation to prevail would be something like that of the department of defense: one secretary of cabinet rank and undersecretary with real power in their fields. . . .Mr. Truman recommends that the heads of divisions of health, security and education be given policy-making powers. . . ."

BIBLE THOUGHTS:

He that hath an ear, let him hear what the spirit saith unto the churches — Revelation 2:99.

There ought to be such an atmosphere in every Christian church that a man going there and sitting two hours should take the contagion of heaven, and carry home a fire to kindle the altar whence he came. —Beecher

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE RULE OR SEARCH

Robert H. Hitchcock's testimony before the Tydings committee must stimulate wonder as to what were the purposes of Francis Biddle, who was attorney general when the "Amerasia" case began and why Mr. Hitchock and his associates acted as they did.

Let us grant, for the sake of the argument, that a spy can go to the state and other departments and steal 1,700 documents, some of the most secret nature, and that nothing can be done about it if the agents of the O S S and the F B I entered the premises where the documents were found without a search warrant

Yet, this question arises: The O S S raid occurred on March 11 1945. Maybe no court case could be made out of that because Frank B. Bielaski did not have a search warrant. However, the Bielaski seizures are not among the 1,700 documents we are now talking about. Those were seized by the FBI in June.

Why was it not possible for the department of justice to get a search warrant between March and June? What held up due process of law in an espionage case for three months?

Let us go further. Mr. Hitchcock testified:

"The FBI, in connection with the arrest of Jaffe and Kate Mitchell at the Amerasia offices had seized several hundred papers, many of which were clearly the property of one or more government agencies, most of them of the state department. Many others of the seized papers later were clearly established to be copies of similar records. The bulk of them were classified, as, for example, restricted, confidential, secret etc."

Maybe those documents could not be used against Jaffe and Kate Mitchell, but they did involve others, among them Roth, Service and Larsen. Certainly, once the department of justice saw the documents, these others were involved. They could be held under the law for information gained in this manner.

Similarly Hitchcock said:

"In (Mark) Gayn's apartment, when he was arrested, the FBI seized 60 items, of which 22 were federal communications commission reports or copies pertaining to interrogation of Japanese prisoners of war. About 20 were typewritten copies of state department papers, and 81 were correspondence or papers which were wholly personal.

"Copies of some of the items found in Gayn's apartment were found in the Amerasia offices. When Gayn was arrested, he made a statement that he knew some of the material seized was not generally available to the public.

"He said he intended using it for background and no other reason. When he was asked where he got it, he said that in some instance he did not recall, and that in others, as a reputable newspaperman he could not disclose the sources."

That, of course, raises a very curious issue. We, of the press, hate to disclose confidences, although many of us have learned to refuse to receive confidences from certain types of politicians as involving participation in matters a gentleman should avoid.

However, can a newspaperman hold to the position in time of war that he has a right to be the recipient of files stolen or taken, whichever he chooses, from the government without personal responsibility for their possession? Gayn Finally admitted that he received the F C C reports from the New York office of the O W I; that George Edward Taylor and Elizabeth Downing (Baker by Marriage) gave them to him.

One of the major difficulties with Hitchcock's testimony is that the documents he testified about do not describe accurately the 1,700 now in the possession of the Tydings committee, some of which were disclosed by Senator Hickenlooper to Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune. Did Hitchcock, as the prosecuting attorney, read the 1,700 documents or did he accept the word of Service, Jaffe, Gayne, Mitchell and Roth concerning them? As these documents are being published, the discrepancy between their actual character and the attempt of Mr. Hitchcock to minimize them is quite evident.

According to Mr. Hitchcock, Kate Mitchell, when she was arrested, said "that she knew the source of (some documents) but refused to divulge it. Later she told us and the grand jury that it was her understanding that Jaffe obtained them from Larsen."

Mr. Hitchcock would have made a case had he pursued it. The question of public concern is: Why was the case not pursued?

DEFENSES READY FOR RED ATTACK

Commander Of Formosa's Aerial Defenses Says Nationalists Are Ready

TAIPEI, Formosa, June 10.—(AP)—The commander of Formosa's aerial defenses asserted today he was ready to cope with any Communist air assaults "even if Soviet-manned jets are used."

Gen. "Tiger" Wang Shu - Ming, head of air defense headquarters, said the Nationalist air force would welcome such raids because they would give his airmen a chance to prove their superiority.

Wang told newsmen the still untried Communist air force was not so formidable as most people thought and he wasn't worried. Russia is reported to have given the Reds several hundred airplanes, including some jets. The Nationalists have charged Russians pilot some of the planes.

Without elaborating, Wang declared air force headquarters had found "technical means" to destroy the jets if they come over.

(The Hong Kong newspaper Wah Kiu Yat Po in a Canton dispatch said the Chinese Communists have organized an armored regiment for the invasion of Formosa.

(It was said to be in training now with Russian advisers on the invasion coast opposite Formosa. The commander was named as Gen. Yeh Fei, who studied armored car tactics in Russia after the war.)

(The Canton story said the regiment originally had at least 60 tanks given to the Reds by the Russians when they withdrew from Manchuria. Presumably it recently was strengthened by an undisclosed number of "amphibious tanks.")

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that a second former premier, Sun Fo, had resigned from the Kuomintang (the ruling Nationalist Party) central executive committee rather than return o Formosa.

Sun Fo, now in Hong Kong, sent in his resignation in April. The resignation of former Premier T. V. Soong, brother-in-law of Chiang Kai-Shek, was announced yesterday. Soong now is in the United States.

Contrary to yesterday's report that Soong had quit the party itself, officials explained that his resignation affected only his membership on the committee.

Both Sun and Soong were warned last March to return or be expelled from the Kuomintang, but the party as yet has taken no action. They were given until May to get back, but a period of grace seems to have been allowed.

LAWMAKERS FACE STACKS OF BILLS

Get Reminder From 'Freshman And Woman' Time Is Short

BATON ROUGE, La., June 10.—(AP)—Louisiana lawmakers return to a record number of bills tonight with a gentle reminder from "a freshman and a woman" that time is short.

Since the 1950 session started May 8, more than 1400 bills have been introduced. They range from Gov. Earl K. Long's proposals—including a $140,000,000 highway bond issue—to simple authority to sue a state agency.

With final adjournment less than four weeks off, Mrs. Bland Cox Bruns, New Orleans representative, arose in the house Friday to say:

"I know I'm a freshman and a woman. But I'd like to say that we had all better start attending sessions and committee meetings if we're going to get any work done."

House Speaker Morris Lottinger of Terrebonne agreed. Surveying his colleagues, assembled in little more than a quorum, he said:

"Your point is well taken, Mrs. Bruns."

They were emphasizing that, before sine die adjournment July 6, legislators are scheduled to act on enough bills to fill a laundry basket. So far, a mere handful have been approved or withdrawn.

Only two major measures—one appropriating $543,000 to pay legislative expenses and the other to create an East Baton Rouge Parish school board—have gone the route. The others are still in committee or marking time on a house or senate calendar.

Even the governor's program is several days away from final action.

The proposed constitutional amendment to authorize issuance of $140,000,000 in highway bonds has passed the house. It is up for a public hearing in the senate's finance committee this week and may not get to the floor until the week after.

The general appropriations bill—allocating about $470,000,000 to operate the state government for the next two years—has cleared a house committee, but still faces house floor action and the full treatment in the senate.

The proposed constitutional amendment to re-establish state civil service — a compromise between the state administration and the Louisiana civil service league—is still in a house committee. If approved by the house, it goes to the senate.

The governor's bill proposing a convention early next year to rewrite Louisiana's constitution will be eligible for floor action in the house tonight. But it may not be called up.

Rep. Edwin F. Hunter, Jr., of Caddo said Friday he will offer floor amendments to the constitutional convention proposal. With such prospects of a fight in a possibly "short" house, administration leaders may put off action to another day.

Meanwhile, legislative observers were freely predicting that much legislation will die a-borning. Competing with administration proposals that still have a long way to go, they may be sidetracked until it is too late, they say.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.:

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

The Book of Malachi stands as the last book in the Old Testament, and Malachi was the last of the prophets, or the last of those to be included in the canon, or authoritative group, of the Hebrew prophecies.

There seems little doubt that the prophecy of Malachi dates from somewhat more than 400 years before Christ. It is a mistake however, to assume that, because no great phophet arose during that period between the Old and New Testaments, the time lacked religious significance or greatness of faith.

It was the period of the great dispersion, when Jews were scattered through various parts of that ancient world. It was the period when the synagogues were established as places of religion and education. It was the time when Jews worshiped with their faces toward Jerusalem, and many Gentiles were won as proselytes to Judaism because of its supriority to paganism in its moral emphasis, and its faith in a living God.

It was a period, too, when many Jews took their religious faith and its patience so seriously that they were willing to suffer and die for it at the hands of Grecian conquerors who corrupted the Jewish religion.

It was with an earlier, and in a sense more reprehensible, corruption that Malachi dealt in his prophecy, for this corruption came not from foreign invaders, but from leaders of the Jews themselves.

In the annals of religion there is nothing sadder and more tragic than the betrayal by ministers and priests of the God whom they have professed to serve.

Malachi cries out against priests, who actually despised and profaned the name of God (Malachi (1:6-12). Highlights of his prophecy reveal his own noble conception of God's purposes ("From the rising of the sun unto the going down of the same My name shall be great among the Gentiles"). He commends the faithful in Israel, despite the corruption that he rebukes ("Then they that feared the Lord spake often to one another; and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon His name." Malachi 3:16).

Perhaps in every age there have been these conflicts and contrasts, between those who have made religion a cloak for their own evil, and the pure in heart who have seen God. The rebuke of the prophets was needed, but their message reached ints heights in their appeal and inspiration toward integrity of faith and life, and devotion to the God of righteousness and truth.

Gun-Wielding Pickpocket Fires 3 Times In N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 10. —(AP)— A gun - wielding pickpocket suspect fired three shots today in an East 14th street five and ten cent store, near-panicking more than 200 shoppers.

The shots went wild, and the man later was captured by the store's manager and two assistants.

The bullets lodged in counters and in the floor.

The chase took place in one of New York City's busiest shopping sections.

Shoppers — mostly women and children—fled screaming with terror as the suspect broke from store officials and dodged, gun in hand, between counters.

Hollywood Censored For Scalping Injun Braves

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)— A group of Americans are on the warpath about the Indians. They think the American Indian has been scalped by Hollywood.

The National Film Committee of the Association on American Indian Affairs has been formed to see that forthcoming Hollywood western epics do right by the red men.

With the active cooperation of many Hollywood officials, they are checking scripts of motion pictures. And they are recommending that the hackneyed movie Indian — a villainous, half - naked character who is always ready to shoot flaming arrows at anything and enjoys nothing more than a juicy scalping — be permanently discarded.

They've already chalked up successes, too. Some soon-to-be-released big budget westerns will show such revolutionary things as good Indians and authentic Indian culture.

The committee is made up of leading authorities on Indians, including Pulitzer PrizeNovelist A. B. Guthrie, Jr.; Ballerina Marie Tallchief, herself an Indian; Radio Commentator Quincy Howe; and other authors, professors and artists.

Any script that comes in is sent to a member of an advisory board of anthropologists. If the proposed film deals with the Cheyenes, for example, it goes to a Cheyenne authority. He checks it over, makes his suggestions and back it geos to Hollywood. Although there can be nothing mandatory about the suggestions, they are usually acted upon.

The committee objects, particularly, to the "another redskin bit the dust" type of script. It has gently suggested that such lines as "Shootin' Pawnees is like shootin' rabbits" should be deleted. Indians, after all, they say, are America's fastest growing minority—at the present rat eof increase, they'll be back at their pre-Columbus figure by 1980—and they deserve respect.

The committee experts work over the script page by page, scene by scene. In one script, they found such boners as an Indian chief losing his temper (wrong—they are self-controlled); Sioux Indians reported grave - robbing (wrong—Indian grave-robbing is an ancient canard"); a Cheyenne chief naked to the waist (wrong—only youths stripped; chiefs never did); plus numerous errors of custom and habit.

One of the committee's chief targets is scalping. Many tribes never went in for scalping, the experts have found. And, primarily, it was the white man—with his "scalp bounty" — who first introduced the process in most sections.

The committee also disapproves of the conventional portrayal of the Indian man as lazy, with the squaws doing all the work. They point out that Indians believed in division of labor. Men and women had their distinct jobs. Women tended to the children, cooking, raising food and sewing, and the men had their tasks, too, like hunting, warfare, and painting the tepees.

The "drunken Indian" is another type that is overdone. Indians drank, of course, but they were no more susceptible to alcohol than any other race. The committee also finds Hollywood sticking feathered headdresses on all Indians, when, actually, they were just found in the plains region, and then only worn by chiefs.

All these misconceptions about the Indians, the committee says, have been used by the films. Even some Indians have been taken in by the Hollywoodized version of history.

Head Of Indian Girl Brought Here From Central America

By Oland Silk
(of the World staff)

They can no more sit down to shrink a head without the proper background than you can walk into a pool hall and tak eon all comers without having the skill that comes from years of experience.

But down there shrinking heads is taken seriously. It is a means of keeping Uncle John and Aunt Mary around for years after their demise. When relatives get lonesome for them, they just take them out of a box and take a look at them. Where we consult the ancestral tree, they look into boxes.

The picture above was taken of the head of a 25-year-old Indian girl. The reason for her rather early passing was not divulged by Sgt. R. E. Endsley of 711 North Fourth street, West Monroe, who brought her back from the interior of Guatemala.

Sgt. Endsley was a member of an army photo-mapping and reconnaisance squadron sent to Brazil and Central America a short time ago.

The sergeant stated that the Indians are definitely war-like; and they aren't given to blabbing about how they shrink heads either.

He said that the Indians have no books, and that they memorize laws and rules necessary to their mode of living. They might talk a little, but when the subject of the recipe for preserving their people from the neck up was broached, mum was the word.

However, this much of the story has leaked out.

First, they take a corpse, preferably dead. They saw off the head. Dumped into a chemical solution, the ingredients of which are still unknown, the head is subject to a softening process for days. Then all of the interior is removed. I say "removed" because that is the nicest euphemism that can be used in this case. Then, hot rocks are shoved into the hollowed skull and moved and stirred and moved and stirred until presto—as fine a head as you'd want to shrink.

The hair is still natural, long in the case of the product above, and silky. The relations all gather round and look with pride at the latest work, and I fancy some of them say, "Now, that's the kind of head I wish I had shrunk."

What persuasion was used to secure the miss above is not known. There are a few more in the United States, two in particular in a Denver, Colo., museum valued at $1,500 each.

But I understand despite the scarcity, the demand for them isn't really too great.

OPERATIONS CENTER

New Station Begins Schedule This Month

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The World Staff)

Climaxing 22 years of plans and dreams for its owner, Monroe's third radio station will begin its regular schedule of broadcasts this month.

KLIC, "the goodwill station, serving the Twin Cities of Monroe and West Monroe," will become another of the radio friends of the people of northeast Louisiana when it takes its regular place at 1230 on the local radio dial, probably on Sunday, June 18.

The new station, owned by Dr. F. P. Cerniglia of Monroe, will broadcast from studios at the transmitter, on the Winnsboro road, and will maintain downtown studios and offices in the Strauss Building.

Already, program tests, conducted in the early morning since May 31, have brought mail from listeners as far distant as St. Paul, Minn.

One of the most prized letters comes from Monroe. Not Monroe, Louisiana, however, but Monroe, Wisconsin. The note reads "Greetings from one Monroe to another. Your signal coming in strong and clear. Best Wishes."

John Zapffe, commerical manager and technical director for the new station, describes the tests as "quite satisfactory . . . in many ways, even better than we'd hoped."

KLIC's owner is a real radio fan, and for a long while has dreamed of having his own station.

In fact, Dr. Cerniglia began his campaign to get a station license away back in 1928, without success, although he was the first Monroyan to apply. Applications in 1932 and 1935 also failed, and it wasn't until January, 1949, that the Federal Communications Commission granted his request.

Final authorization for the station was granted by the F. C. C. in September of last year. Work on the new venture began immediately after the issuance of a construction permit in November.

KLIC will broadcast on a frequency of 1230 kilocycles, with a power of 250 watts. "We won't be a big station," said Cerniglia, "but we'll have plenty of power to bring our programs to all the residents of Monroe and West Monroe. Actually, we want to remain small; we're a community station, and won't aim our programs at the audience outside the Twin Cities area."

The new station has secured an affiliation with the Mutual Broadcasting System, and will bring to its listeners national network programs, as well as local shows.

Zapffee, the first member of the station staff selected by the owner, is a newcomer to Monroe. He was associated with KBS in Dallas, Tex., before taking over the commercial reins at KLIC. KYBS is the most powerful station in the South, operating with a power output of 90,000 watts.

The staff for the new enterprise has not been completely selected yet by Cerniglia. He expects to employ three announcer-engineers, several salesmen, and necessary additional office help.

Technical equipment for the new station includes a Collins transmitter. Collins console and RCA turntables with Western Electric pickups.

Consultants for the engineering work on the station were Merle Saxon, San Marcos, Tex., and William Ellis, of WFAA, Dallas.

Opening ceremonies have been planned for the 18th of the month, pending approval of program tests by the F. C. C.

Details of the ceremonies and official dedication of KLIC will be released later in the week.

Cake Baked 50 Years Ago Eaten By Couple

WARREN, Me., June 10.—(AP)—A cake baked 50 years ago was eaten today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dillaway and their golden wedding anniversary guests.

"It was delicious," the Dillaways said.

The cake was one of two identical six-pound fruit cakes baked in East Boston by Mrs. Lydia J. Dillaway for her son's wedding at a Congregational Church in Everett, Mass., in 1900.

It was sealed in an air - tight can. The bridegroom's mother told him to open it on his 50th wedding anniversary.

Dillaway, 73, was asked if he ever had an urge to sample it.

"Well, I'll have to admit I opened the can about ten years ago," he replied, "but that was just to make sure it was coming along o.k."

An anagram which reads the same backward and forward is called a palindrome. A classic example is "Madam, I'm Adam."

Taxi Drivers–Some Are Stranger Than Fiction To Reporter

By Louie Mathis

Taxi-drivers are stranger than fiction. The difficulty lies in getting one to stand still long enough to talk. After tramping all over town, I finally cornered a kindly, weatherbeaten oldster in his office.

"Times is sure hard," he said, as he placed a new piece of cardboard inside his shoe. I lit my last cigarette and agreed loudly.

All preliminaries being properly dispensed with, the old fellow launched into a lengthy oration to convince me that nothing unusual ever happens to a cab driver. Casually, he mentioned trivial matters like floods, fires, and robberies.

He told of newlyweds calling, who wanted fast transportation to a private sanctuary, and in the same breath, he told of angry couples who wanted speedy delivery to some divorce lawyer's office.

"Something was always going on when I first got in the cab business. One night I was on my way back from a three-passenger delivery to Sterlington when two boys stepped out on the road and flagged. One of them had a big sack slung over his shoulder."

As he told the story, he leaned forward and his eyes were not as tired as they had been. The boys had barely crawled into the taxi when an angry yell came from the field nearby.

"And no wonder that man was yelling. Those boys had stolen two of the biggest, ripest watermelons I've ever helped to eat," he finished happily.

He was still laughing when I left to make a few more calls. At the next taxi-stand, a cabbie was fighting his engine with a screw driver and a bulky hammer.

"Times is sure hard," I said, having learned the proper approach.

"Yep," came the ready answer.

There is no adequate reply to "Yep." He gave me the general impression that the only unusual event in his life would take place when he put two nuts and bolts in the right place. Proudly, I squelched an impulse to suggest that a loose screw might be his trouble.

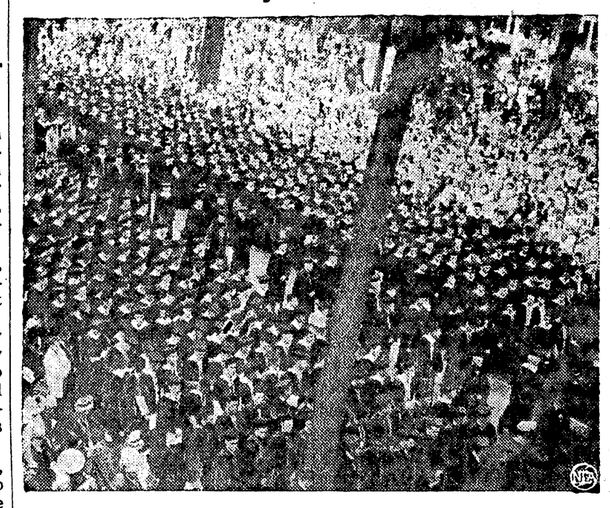
Another driver returned just in time to save me from having a hammer handle wrapped around my head. He proffered a story that he modestly termed "unusual."

It seems that he was nearing the intersection at Fifth and Coleman streets in West Monroe. A Negro woman, driving a decrepit old A Model, was approaching the same spot. His cab hit the A Model right in the middle. That's when our hero got the scare of his life.

The woman had a three months old baby in her car. When the collision occurred, the tot flew straight out the window right into the arms of another Negro woman, standing on the corner. The baby was uninjured.

"Something unusual happened to me one night," volunteered his replacement. But I could see it was time to leave.

NEW JOB SEEKERS



Tough Search On For College Graduates

By Doyle Smee
NEA Staff Correspondent

More than a million brand new graduates of America's colleges and high schools are starting to pound the sidewalks in search of their first jobs. But the search may be tougher than graduates have faced in many years.

Day after day they're being told: "You may have to lower your sights a little, to take a smaller salary than you had in mind. You may have to take a job in another field than the one you've trained for and have your heart set on."

Ewan Clague, U. S. commissioner of labor statistics in Washington, believes most of this year's graduates will eventually find jobs, because they have youth and often special training on their side. But some may be added to the ranks of around 3,500,000 Amricans now out of work.

Altogether the Bureau of Labor statistics expects 1,700,000 youthful job-seekrs will be added to the market during June. Nearly 500,000 are college graduates and another 600,000 high school graduates. The remaining 600,000 are young people—not yet graduated—who are dropping out of both college and high school to look for work.

Says Clague: "Business is going to be swamped with applications from a bumper crop of high grade prospects."

Shortages have turned into surpluses in many lines of effort. Engineers, chemists, physicists, accountants, business administration spcialists, personnel workers, lawyers, reporters and college and high school teachers are in oversupply.

But there's still a big demand for dictors, nurses, dentists, dieticians, health technicians, grade school teachers, social workers and salesmen.

College placement bureaus confirm government testimony. At the University of Illinois, the placement director sees 25 per cent fewer jobs for college men this year. Harvard reports demand down about the same degree. From state universities in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Washington, California, the forecast is similar.

Further evidence comes from business itself. The General Electric Company, typical of many large firms that recruit engineers and other technical wirkers from college campuses before graduation, is hiring about a third fewer this year than last.

Because engineers are so plentiful, the company has a hard time recruiting. Says Robert E. Dierks, who does the job in the Cleveland area for G. E.: "Our representatives are spending many more man-hours this year to select qualified people. For every one hired, we have interviewed about 30 persons."

An automobile manufacturer who is taking on from 150 to 200 June graduates this year reports that it hired quite a few more than that in 1949.

General Motors Corporation, on the other hand, is one of the few big concerns employing about the same number of college graduates in 1950 as it did last year.

From a steel corporation comes this statement: "Things are tight, particularly in the job brackets these boys want to get into."

An oil company said it has no real need for new men, but probably will take on a handful just to keep its long-run youth-recruiting policy going.

Northwestern University, surveying the job plans of 131 companies (none small) found they are hiring 20 per cent less engineers and 25 per cent fewer people in other fields. Only in sales and marketing are more graduates being taken on.

Business and industry seem to have pretty well filled the job gaps created first by the war and then added to by booming postwar expansion. Business growth is slower now, and personnel turnover is diminishing. More workers are staying put.

On the graduates' side, the 1950 college crops is the biggest ever. It's the last great wave of veterans who have been studying under the G. I. bill of rights. For comparison, the total is more than double the pre-war peak of 213,000 in 1940.

Educators don't expect the present level to be maintained in the years immediately ahead. They look for a minimum of some 300,000 college graduates a year. With totals rising gradually toward 500,000 by 1960.

So hereafter a college degree will bring less of a premium than it used to in job hunting. But the very fact that graduates will be more numerous will make it harder to get jobs without degrees. In the 1950-60 decade, the competitive job struggle for young newcomers promises to be just about the toughest on record.

Mrs. Shaw Cracks Down On Washington Set

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There's been a tragic development on the Capital's social front—tragic, at least, for the town's numerous party crashers and cocktail-loving bachelors.

By popular demand of harassed hostesses the Washington Social Bureau, a war casualty, has been recreated. The post-war party pace had gotten out of their hands and they needed help desperately.

Formerly run by her mother, the reinstated bureau is now under command of Carolyn Hagner Shaw Washington's recognized social arbiter. For a price, the bureau shoulders all or any part of a hostess duties, and with guaranteed eclat. Mrs. Shaw's goal is to make hostesses even enjoy their own parties.

No affair is too small, none too big, for the bureau's operation. It handled the wedding of Secretary of Treasury Snyder's daughter, Drucie. It also managed the guest list and seating arrangement of the huge, gala pageant celebrating Washington's 150th anniversary as the nation's capital, as well as all the details of the fabulous reception for the President of Chile and President Truman at the Chilean embassy.

Certain segments of the city's population, however, are charging Mrs. Shaw with being stuffy and old-fashioned on several important points of etiquette.

She staunchly believes that guests at any affair should first be invited, for instance. As a result, the social orbit of a great many Washington party-goers who long since discarded such antiquated formalities has been seriously reduced.

The bureau now insists upon a carefully checked guest list for every function it manages. You announce your name at the door, and if it isn't on the list you're politely told that you've probably come to the wrong party. If you decide to debate the point or appeal the decision, Mrs. Shaw or one of her several assistants who are always on hand will gladly take up your case. It's difficult to tell Mrs. Shaw that there is a mistake on the list, because she's the one who puts it together.

That leads up to why imbibing bachelors, as a group, are a little miffed at the bureau's work. Being a so-called eligible bachelor in Washington has become a career for scores of young, middle-aged, and even old men. It has meant debut parties, receptions, formal dances and the rest. The bureau has cut short a lot of these delightful careers.

An official bachelor list has been prepared by the bureau. And it is a dwindling list. When a man lingers too long around the punch bowl, his name comes off. If he monopolizes the slickest chick and ignores the rest of the gals, he's off. Times are getting tough for the unattached males and they don't like it.

Another innovation of Mrs. Shaw's bureau is the theory that enough standing and sitting room is just as important as enough liquor and food at parties. It has been the practice, Mrs. Shaw says, to try to cram 1500 people in a room capable of holding only 600. Either a hostess is willing to go along with Mrs. Shaw's views on this important point or the hostess does her own hostessing.

The bureau's specialty is arranging parties to be given by persons who only get to Washington occasionally. A senator or important government official has to be entertained by an out-of-towner in a manner to which he has become accustomed. Yet the visitor doesn't know how or where to begin.

And that's where the bureau begins. All the prospective host has to do is specify the guest, or guests, of honor, how much money he wants to spend, and the date. Mrs. Shaw does the rest, which includes producing any number of congressmen, government officials foreign dignitaries and high members of the bench. And how does she accomplish this? Here's her secret:

"Practically anybody in Washington will go to anything to which they are properly invited."

Of destructive birds, crows probably cause more crop damage than any other. They even will at the still available seed kernel.

German Youth Gets Holiday In West

By David S. Boyer

BERLIN — (NEA) — Sixteen-year-old Max Bruener (which is not really his name), from Russia's Communist Germany, took a forbidden holiday in heaven—and then he sneaked back home behind the Iron Curtain, determined to tell the truth about western Germany.

Max was one of 500,000 members of the Russian-Zone Free German Youth organization (the FDJ) who staged a week-long Communist rally in the eastern sector of Berlin. He was one of several who defied Communist police orders not to enter the allied sectors o the city.

One day soon he may add his name to the ever-growing list of FDJ'ers who escape to the west for good. Because, as Max put it himself, "I know what's going on now!"

Max came to Berlin "because I wanted to find out for myself why the police had forbidden FDJ'ers to see West Berlin."

For five days, Max successfully crossed Communist police lines, but not without being arrested, scolded, threatened.

Once in the allied sectors, Max, penniless, could do nothing but roam the streets. He had to clutch empty fists in his trouser pockets as he gaped at the fruit, the candy, the meat and the ice cream on sale everywhere. His stomach stayed empty, but his heart grew full.

When he went back at night to his daily rally ration of a half pound of black bread and the same of sausage, he carried with him visions of a better world.

Then, on the fifth day, Max was no longer broke. We picked him up and showed him Berlin in style.

At the auto show, he was a hero. The Germans were delighted at Max's temporary escape from the Iron Curtain. But they insisted his picture be taken from behind. They knew what would happen if he were ever identified back home.

"Can anybody go into the cafes?" Max asked. In his city of nearly 200,000, he said, only Russians are allowed in the one decent cafe six days a week. On the seventh, only wealthy Germans and Communist functionaries could afford it.

As he lapped up chocolate sundaes at a sidewalk table at Cafe Wien, Max got the answer.

Suddenly, Max was confronted by a Communist party organizer, an FDJ leader checking up on runaway children. The party man managed to get out about 10 words of abuse. Then he was surrounded by 50 West Germans.

West police saved the Communist from a bad mauling. They warned him and released him. Moments later, two more runaway FDJ'ers slipped into Cafe Wien and approached Max.

"For heaven's sake, be careful," they whispered. "The place is full of spies!"

"I know what I'm doing," Max replied. "You saw what happened. That incident convinced me. The west Germans don't hate us. They just hate the Communist system. I know who's been telling the lies, and I'm out to spread a little truth."

Max said he'd have to be very careful about whom he spoke the truth to behind the Iron Curtain. But he said he would speak.

Of 500,000 FDJ'ers in Berlin, only a handful had Max's experience. Their voices will be small against those who stayed behind the police lines and listen to Communist stories about the capitalist evils across the street.

In the poultry world "cannibalism" is encountered when one chicken picks the head of another, drawing blood.

Gray Ladies Care For Sick, Aged

By Evelyn Moore

To some 160 elderly persons in Monroe's four homes for the aged, a visit each week from the Gray Ladies represents the one bright spot in an otherwise uneventful existence.

And who are the Gray Ladies? They're Red Cross volunteers who serve the sick and convalescent. Once a week they spend an afternoon at one of the four homes, visiting with the aged and doing little things that add to their personal comfort and happiness.

The Gray Ladies write letters for blind and bedridden individuals. They make purchases of personal needs and clothing for them. They provide transportation to their doctors and to the hospital when needed. They provide reading material, such as magazines and church literature according to their faiths. They read letters and other items to those who cannot read. They carry ambulatory persons for short rides. They arrange and distribute gift flowers. They plan entertainments for patient participation, as group singing, movies, and the like. In these and many other ways the Gray Ladies carry a ray of sunshine into these homes.

The persons who live in the homes are cheered because someone from the outside is interested enough to visit with them. Their smiles are reward enough for the Gray Ladies.

At one of the homes, one of the women residents keeps a big circle on the calendar marking each Gray lady visiting day. Once when a Gray Lady mentioned her project to her beauty operator, the operator became intensely interested and offered to go out and give a permanent wave to one of the aged ladies. Special events such as that are more important than holidays.

Story Of Heber Springs Told

By Otis Hassell

WINNSBORO, La., June 10.—Nestled in a valley in the foothills of the beautiful Ozark Mountains of North Arkansas is Heber Springs.

It is the county seat of Cleburne county, located 80 miles north of Little Rock. It is a beautiful town and a wonderful place to live or spend a vacation. Heber Springs claim to distinction lies in the fact that it has seven mineral springs with unequaled health and healing powers.

The Seven springs are located in a beautifully wooded ten acre park. The names of the springs are: Black Sulphur, White Sulphur, Red Sulphur, Eye Water, Arsenic, Magnesia and Iron. Each spring is different from the others and each one of them good for the aches and ills of humanity. The water is free to all people who need it.

According to an analysis made by Dr. John C. Branner, former Arkansas state geologist, the water from the springs contains: Silica, sodium, magnesium, lime, alumina, sulphuric acid, carbonic acid, nitric acid, chlorine, hydrogen sulphide gas, free ammonia and albuminoid ammonia.

Dr. J. T. Matthews of Heber Springs, recommends drinking of this water for some of his patients, especially the ones with stomach or kidney trouble. Wonderful results have been obtained. Water from the Black Sulphur spring seems to be best for kidney ailments and people with stomach trouble get best results from the Eye water spring.

People from all parts of the United States go there to drink the water and most of them report that they are completely cured or that their condition is greatly improved.

People with arthritis, rheumatism, diabetes, kidney trouble, malaria, skin infections and all kinds of stomach troubles have been cured or greatly helped by drinking this water. The Eye Water spring got its name because water from it, if used to bathe sore eyes, will cure them.

If the water from these springs is stored more than one or two days it undergoes a chemical reaction and the analysis is not the same as it is when it first comes from the ground. Part of this reaction is visible to the naked eye, as the water turns a "milkey white color a short while after being removed from the spring. For this reason it is impossible to ship the water to other places for long periods of time. However, early in the morning and late in the afternoon you will see residents of Heber Springs coming to the park with their gallon jugs to get their daily supply of drinking water.

Heber Springs has been a town since 1882. It was incorporated as Sugar Loaf, in August of that year. The name was changed to Heber Springs April 4, 1910.

Max Frauenthal, a colonel in the Confederate army, donated the ten acre park and mineral springs to the town shortly after it was incorporated. There is a stipulation in his will that no water from the springs is to be sold and that if this happens, the park and springs will revert back to his heirs. Col. Frauenthal, also donated the courthouse site and built the towns first courthouse.

The population of Heber Springs is approximately 3,000. There are no Negroes in Cleburne county. The county depends on its income from timber and agriculture. Included in the business establishments of Heber Springs are two large sawmills, five automobile agencies, farm implement stores and all kinds of merchandise businesses. The town has two hospitals, one clinic and seven churches of various denominations. It also has fair grounds, stock yard, well lighted ball park and this year, a semi-pro baseball club, all of these being sponsored by the Young Business and Professional Mens Club.

For over 50 years there has been an annual reunion held at the park on the first Thursday, Friday and Saturday of August. In the beginning this reunion was to welcome, and in honor of the soldiers of the Blue and the Grey. Now it is in honor of soldiers of all wars.

Hollywood Censored For Scalping Injun Braves

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK—(NEA)— A group of Americans are on the warpath about the Indians. They think the American Indian has been scalped by Hollywood.

The National Film Committee of the Association on American Indian Affairs has been formed to see that forthcoming Hollywood western epics do right by the red men.

With the active cooperation of many Hollywood officials, they are checking scripts of motion pictures. And they are recommending that the hackneyed movie Indian — a villainous, half - naked character who is always ready to shoot flaming arrows at anything and enjoys nothing more than a juicy scalping — be permanently discarded.

They've already chalked up successes, too. Some soon-to-be-released big budget westerns will show such revolutionary things as good Indians and authentic Indian culture.

The committee is made up of leading authorities on Indians, including Pulitzer PrizeNovelist A. B. Guthrie, Jr.; Ballerina Marie Tallchief, herself an Indian; Radio Commentator Quincy Howe; and other authors, professors and artists.

Any script that comes in is sent to a member of an advisory board of anthropologists. If the proposed film deals with the Cheyenes, for example, it goes to a Cheyenne authority. He checks it over, makes his suggestions and back i t geos to Hollywood. Although there can be nothing mandatory about the suggestions, they are usually acted upon.

The committee objects, particularly, to the "another redskin bit the dust" type of script. It has gently suggested that such lines as "Shootin' Pawnees is like shootin' rabbits" should be deleted. Indians, after all, they say, are America's fastest growing minority—at the present rat eof increase, they'll be back at their pre-Columbus figure by 1980—and they deserve respect.

The committee e x p e r t s work over the script page by page, scene by scene. In one script, they found such boners as an Indian chief losing his temper (wrong—they are self-controlled); Sioux Indians reported grave - robbing (wrong—Indian grave-robbing is an ancient canard"); a Cheyenne chief naked to the waist (wrong—only youths stripped; chiefs never did); plus numerous errors of custom and habit.

One of the committee's chief targets is scalping. Many tribes never went in for scalping, the experts have found. And, primarily, it was the white man—with his "scalp bounty" — who first introduced the process in most sections.

The committee also disapproves of the conventional portrayal of the Indian man as lazy, with the squaws doing all the work. They point out that Indians believed in division of labor. Men and women had their distinct jobs. Women tended to the children, cooking, raising food and sewing, and the men had their tasks, too, like hunting, warfare, and painting the tepees.

The "drunken Indian" is another type that is overdone. Indians drank, of course, but they were no more susceptible to alcohol than any other race. The committee also finds Hollywood sticking feathered headdresses on all Indians, when, actually, they were just found in the plains region, and then only worn by chiefs.

All these misconceptions about the Indians, the committee says, have been used by the films. Even some Indians have been taken in by the Hollywoodized version of history.

Head Of Indian Girl Brought Here From Central America

By Oland Silk
(of the World staff)

They can no more sit down to shrink a head without the proper background than you can walk into a pool hall and tak eon all comers without having the skill that comes from years of experience.

But down there shrinking heads is taken seriously. It is a means of keeping Uncle John and Aunt Mary around for years after their demise. When relatives get lonesome for them, they just take them out of a box and take a look at them. Where we consult the ancestral tree, they look into boxes.

The picture above was taken of the head of a 25-year-old Indian girl. The reason for her rather early passing was not divulged by Sgt. R. E. Endsley of 711 North Fourth street, West Monroe, who brought her back from the interior of Guatemala.

Sgt. Endsley was a member of an army photo-mapping and reconnaisance squadron sent to Brazil and Central America a short time ago.

The sergeant stated that the Indians are definitely war-like; and they aren't given to blabbing about how they shrink heads either.

He said that the Indians have no books, and that they memorize laws and rules necessary to their mode of living. They might talk a little, but when the subject of the recipe for preserving their people from the neck up was broached, mum was the word.

However, this much of the story has leaked out.

First, they take a corpse, preferably dead. They saw off the head. Dumped into a chemical solution, the ingredients of which are still unknown, the head is subject to a softening process for days. Then all of the interior is removed. I say "removed" because that is the nicest euphemism that can be used in this case. Then, hot rocks are shoved into the hollowed skull and moved and stirred and moved and stirred until presto—as fine a head as you'd want to shrink.

The hair is still natural, long in the case of the product above, and silky. The relations all gather round and look with pride at the latest work, and I fancy some of them say, "Now, that's the kind of head I wish I had shrunk."

What persuasion was used to secure the miss above is not known. There are a few more in the United States, two in particular in a Denver, Colo., museum valued at $1,-500 each.

But I understand despite the scarcity, the demand for them isn't really too great.

OPERATIONS CENTER

New Station Begins Schedule This Month

By Jim Reynolds
(Of The World Staff)

Climaxing 22 years of plans and dreams for its owner, Monroe's third radio station will begin its regular schedule of broadcasts this month.

KLIC, "the goodwill station, serving the Twin Cities of Monroe and West Monroe," will become another of the radio friends of the people of northeast Louisiana when it takes its regular place at 1230 on the local radio dial, probably on Sunday, June 18.

The new station, owned by Dr. F. P. Cerniglia of Monroe, will broadcast from studios at the transmitter, on the Winnsboro road, and will maintain downtown studios and offices in the Strauss Building.

Already, program tests, conducted in the early morning since May 31, have brought mail from listeners as far distant as St. Paul, Minn.

One of the most prized letters comes from Monroe. Not Monroe, Louisiana, however, but Monroe, Wisconsin. The note reads "Greetings from one Monroe to another. Your signal coming in strong and clear. Best Wishes."

John Zapffe, commerical manager and technical director for the new station, describes the tests as "quite satisfactory . . . in many ways, even better than we'd hoped."

KLIC's owner is a real radio fan, and for a long while has dreamed of having his own station.

In fact, Dr. Cerniglia began his campaign to get a station license 'way back in 1928, without success, although he was the first Monroyan to apply. Applications in 1932 and 1935 also failed, and it wasn't until January, 1949, that the Federal Communications Commission granted his request.

Final authorization for the station was granted by the F. C. C. in September of last year. Work on the new venture began immediately after the issuance of a construction permit in November.

KLIC will broadcast on a frequency of 1230 kilocycles, with a power of 250 watts. "We won't be a big station," said Cerniglia, "but we'll have plenty of power to bring our programs to all the residents of Monroe and West Monroe. Actually, we want to remain small; we're a community station, and won't aim our programs at the audience outside the Twin Cities area."

The new station has secured an affiliation with the Mutual Broadcasting System, and will bring to its listeners national network programs, as well as local shows.

Zapffee, the first member of the station staff selected by the owner, is a newcomer to Monroe. He was associated with KBS in Dallas, Tex., before taking over the commercial reins at KLIC. KYBS is the most powerful station in the South, operating with a power output of 90,000 watts.

The staff for the new enterprise has not been completely selected yet by Cerniglia. He expects to employ three announcer-engineers, several salesmen, and necessary additional office help.

Technical equipment for the new station includes a Collins transmitter, Collins console and RCA turntables with Western Electric pickups.

Consultants for the engineering work on the station were Merle Saxon, San Marcos, Tex., and William Ellis, of WFAA, Dallas.

Opening ceremonies have been planned for the 18th of the month, pending approval of program tests by the F. C. C.

Details of the ceremonies and official dedication of KLIC will be released later in the week.

Cake Baked 50 Years Ago Eaten By Couple

WARREN, Me., June 10.—(AP)—A cake baked 50 years ago was eaten today by Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Dillaway and their golden wedding anniversary guests.

"It was delicious," the Dillaways said.

The cake was one of two identical six-pound fruit cakes baked in East Boston by Mrs. Lydia J. Dillaway for her son's wedding at a Congregational Church in Everett, Mass., in 1900.

It was sealed in an air - tight can. The bridegroom's mother told him to open it on his 50th wedding anniversary.

Dillaway, 73, was asked if he ever had an urge to sample it.

"Well, I'll have to admit I opened the can about ten years ago," he replied, "but that was just to make sure it was coming along o.k."

An anagram which reads the same backward and forward is called a palindrome. A classic example is "Madam, I'm Adam."

Taxi Drivers—Some Are Stranger Than Fiction To Reporter

By Louie Mathis

Taxi-drivers are stranger than fiction. The difficulty lies in getting one to stand still long enough to talk. After tramping all over town, I finally cornered a kindly, weatherbeaten oldster in his office.

"Times is sure hard," he said, as he placed a new piece of cardboard inside his shoe. I lit my last cigarette and agreed loudly.

All preliminaries being properly dispensed with, the old fellow launched into a lengthy oration to convince me that nothing unusual ever happens to a cab driver. Casually, he mentioned trivial matters like floods, fires, and robberies.

He told of newlyweds calling, who wanted fast transportation to a private sanctuary, and in the same breath, he told of angry couples who wanted speedy delivery to some divorce lawyer's office.

"Something was always going on when I first got in the cab business. One night I was on my way back from a three-passenger delivery to Sterlington when two boys stepped out on the road and flagged. One of them had a big sack slung over his shoulder."

As he told the story, he leaned forward and his eyes were not as tired as they had been. The boys had barely crawled into the taxi when an angry yell came from the field nearby.

"And no wonder that man was yelling. Those boys had stolen two of the biggest, ripest watermelons I've ever helped to eat," he finished happily.

He was still laughing when I left to make a few more calls. At the next taxi-stand, a cabbie was fighting his engine with a screw driver and a bulky hammer.

"Times is sure hard," I said, having learned the proper approach.

"Yep," came the ready answer.

There is no adequate reply to "Yep." He gave me the general impression that the only unusual event in his life would take place when he put two nuts and bolts in the right place. Proudly, I squelched an impulse to suggest that a loose screw might be his trouble.

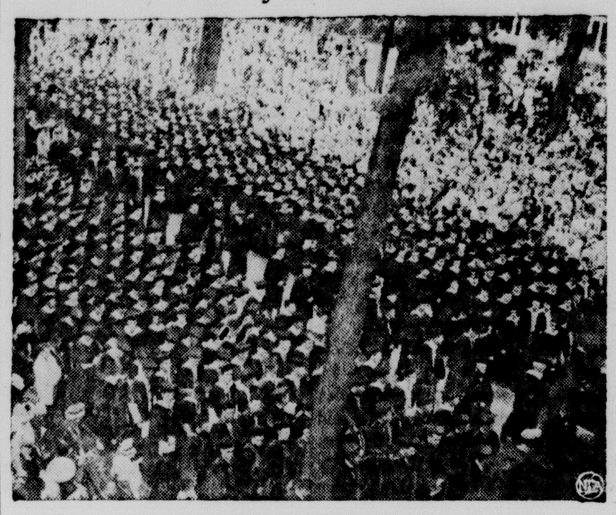
Another driver returned just in time to save me from having a hammer handle wrapped around my head. He proffered a story that he modestly termed "unusual."

It seems that he was nearing the intersection at Fifth and Coleman streets in West Monroe. A Negro woman, driving a decrepit old A Model, was approaching the same spot. His cab hit the A Model right in the middle. That's when our hero got the scare of his life.

The woman had a three months old baby in her car. When the collision occurred, the tot flew straight out the window right into the arms of another Negro woman, standing on the corner. The baby was uninjured.

"Something unusual happened to me one night," volunteered his replacement. But I could see it was time to leave.

NEW JOB SEEKERS



Tough Search On For College Graduates

By Doyle Smee
NEA Staff Correspondent

More than a million brand new graduates of America's colleges and high schools are starting to pound the sidewalks in search of their first jobs. But the search may be tougher than graduates have faced in many years.

Day after day they're being told: "You may have to lower your sights a little, to take a smaller salary than you had in mind. You may have to take a job in another field than the one you've trained for and have your heart set on."

Ewan Clague, U. S. commissioner of labor statistics in Washington, believes most of this year's graduates will eventually find jobs, because they have youth and often special training on their side. But some may be added to the ranks of around 3,500,000 Amricans now out of work.

Altogether the Bureau of Labor statistics expects 1,700,000 youthful job-seekrs will be added to the market during June. Nearly 500,000 are college graduates and another 600,000 high school graduates. The remaining 600,000 are young people—not yet graduated—who are dropping out of both college and high school to look for work.

Says Clague: "Business is going to be swamped with applications from a bumper crop of high grade prospects."

Shortages have turned into surpluses in many lines of effort. Engineers, chemists, physicists, accountants, business administration spcialists, personnel workers, lawyers, reporters and college and high school teachers are in oversupply.

But there's still a big demand for dictors, nurses, dentists, dieticians, health technicians, grade school teachers, social workers and salesmen.

College placement bureaus confirm government testimony. At the University of Illinois, the placement director sees 25 per cent fewer jobs for college men this year. Harvard reports demand down about the same degree. From state universities in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Washington, California, the forecast is similar.

Further evidence comes from business itself. The General Electric Company, typical of many large firms that recruit engineers and other technical wirkers from college campuses before graduation, is hiring about a third fewer this year than last.

Because engineers are so plentiful, the company has a hard time recruiting. Says Robert E. Dierks, who does the job in the Cleveland area for G. E.: "Our representatives are s p e n d i n g many more man-hours this year to select qualified people. For every one hired, we have interviewed about 30 persons."

An automobile manufacturer who is taking on from 150 to 200 June graduates this year reports that it hired quite a few more than that in 1949.

General Motors Corporation, on the other hand, is one of the few big concerns employing about the same number of college graduates in 1950 as it did last year.

From a steel corporation comes this statement: "Things are tight, particularly in the job brackets these boys want to get into."

An oil company said it has no real need for new men, but probably will take on a handful just to keep its long-run youth-recruiting policy going.

Northwestern University, surveying the job plans of 131 companies (none small) found they are hiring 20 per cent less engineers and 25 per cent fewer people in other fields. Only in sales and marketing are more graduates being taken on.

Business and industry seem to have pretty well filled the job gaps created first by the war and then added to by booming postwar expansion. Business growth is slower now, and personnel turnover is diminishing. More workers are staying put.

On the graduates' side, the 1950 college crops is the biggest ever. It's the last great wave of veterans who have been studying under the G. I. bill of rights. For comparison, the total is more than double the pre-war peak of 213,-000 in 1940.

Educators don't expect the present level to be maintained in the years immediately ahead. They look for a minimum of some 300,-000 college graduates a year. With totals rising gradually toward 500,-000 by 1960.

So hereafter a college degree will bring less of a premium than it used to in job hunting. But the very fact that graduates will be more numerous will make it harder to get jobs without degrees. In the 1950-60 decade, the competitive job struggle for young newcomers promises to be just about the toughest on record.

Mrs. Shaw Cracks Down On Washington Set

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There's been a tragic development on the Capital's social front—tragic, at least, for the town's numerous party crashers and cocktail-loving bachelors.

By popular demand of harassed hostesses the Washington Social Bureau, a war casualty, has been recreated. The post-war party pace had gotten out of their hands and they needed help desperately.

Formerly run by her mother, the reinstated bureau is now under command of Carolyn Hagner Shaw Washington's recognized social arbiter. For a price, the bureau shoulders all or any part of a hostess duties, and with guaranteed eclat. Mrs. Shaw's goal is to make hostesses even enjoy their own parties.

No affair is too small, none too big, for the bureau's operation. It handled the wedding of Secretary of Treasury Snyder's daughter, Drucie. It also managed the guest list and seating arrangement of the huge, gala pageant celebrating Washington's 150th anniversary as the nation's capital, as well as all the details of the fabulous reception for the President of Chile and President Truman at the Chilean embassy.

Certain segments of the city's population, however, are charging Mrs. Shaw with being stuffy and old-fashioned on several important points of etiquette.

She staunchly believes that guests at any affair should first be invited, for instance. As a result, the social orbit of a great many Washington party-goers who long since discarded such antiquated formalities has been seriously reduced.

The bureau now insists upon a carefully checked guest list for every function it manages. You announce your name at the door, and if it isn't on the list you're politely told that you've probably come to the wrong party. If you decide to debate the point or appeal the decision, Mrs. Shaw or one of her several assistants who are always on hand will gladly take up your case. It's difficult to tell Mrs. Shaw that there is a mistake on the list, because she's the one who puts it together.

That leads up to why imbibing bachelors, as a group, are a little miffed at the bureau's work. Being a so-called eligible bachelor in Washington has become a career for scores of young, middle-aged, and even old men. It has meant debut parties, receptions, formal dances and the rest. The bureau has cut short a lot of these delightful careers.

An official bachelor list has been prepared by the bureau. And it is a dwindling list. When a man lingers too long around the punch bowl, his name comes off. If he monopolizes the slickest chick and ignores the rest of the gals, he's off. Times are getting tough for the unattached males and they don't like it.

Another innovation of Mrs. Shaw's bureau is the theory that enough standing and sitting room is just as important as enough liquor and food at parties. It has been the practice, Mrs. Shaw says, to try to cram 1500 people in a room capable of holding only 600. Either a hostess is willing to go along with Mrs. Shaw's views on this important point or the hostess does her own hostessing.

The bureau's specialty is arranging parties to be given by persons who only get to Washington occasionally. A senator or important government official has to be entert·ined by an out-of-towner in a manner to which he has become accustomed. Yet the visitor doesn't know how or where to begin.

And that's where the bureau begins. All the prospective host has to do is specify the guest, or guests, of honor, how much money he wants to spend, and the date. Mrs. Shaw does the rest, which includes producing any number of congressmen, government officials foreign dignitaries and high members of the bench. And how does she accomplish this? Here's her secret:

"Practically anybody in Washington will go to anything to which they are properly invited."

Of destructive birds, crows probably cause more crop damage than any other. They even will at the still available seed kernel.

German Youth Gets Holiday In West

By David S. Boyer

BERLIN — (NEA) — Sixteen-year-old Max Bruener (which is not really his name), from Russia's Communist Germany, took a forbidden holiday in heaven—and then he sneaked back home behind the Iron Curtain, determined to tell the truth about western Germany.

Max was one of 500,000 members of the Russian-Zone Free German Youth organization (the FDJ) who staged a week-long Communist rally in the eastern sector of Berlin. He was one of several who defied Communist police orders not to enter the allied sectors o the city.

One day soon he may add his name to the ever-growing list of FDJ'ers who escape to the west for good. Because, as Max put it himself, "I know what's going on now!"

Max came to Berlin "because I wanted to find out for myself why the police had forbidden FDJ'ers to see West Berlin."

For five days, Max successfully crossed Communist police lines, but not without being arrested, scolded, threatened.

Once in the allied sectors, Max, penniless, could do nothing but roam the streets. He had to clutch empty fists in his trouser pockets as he gaped at the fruit, the candy, the meat and the ice cream on sale everywhere. His stomach stayed empty, but his heart grew full.

When he went back at night to his daily rally ration of a half pound of black bread and the same of sausage, he carried with him visions of a better world.

Then, on the fifth day, Max was no longer broke. We picked him up and showed him Berlin in style.

At the auto show, he was a hero. The Germans were delighted at Max's temporary escape from the Iron Curtain. But they insisted his picture be taken from behind. They knew what would happen if he were ever identified back home.

"Can anybody go into the cafes?" Max asked. In his city of nearly 200,000, he said, only Russians are allowed in the one decent cafe six days a week. On the seventh, only wealthy Germans and Communist functionaries could afford it.

As he lapped up chocolate sundaes at a sidewalk table at Cafe Wien, Max got the answer.

Suddenly, Max was confronted by a Communist party organizer, an FDJ leader checking up on runaway children. The party man managed to get out about 10 words of abuse. Then he was surrounded by 50 West Germans.

West police saved the Communist from a bad mauling. They warned him and released him. Moments later, two more runaway FDJ'ers slipped into Cafe Wien and approached Max.

"For heaven's sake, be careful," they whispered. "The place is full of spies!"

"I know what I'm doing," Max replied. "You saw what happened. That incident convinced me. The west Germans don't hate us. They just hate the Communist system. I know who's been telling the lies, and I'm out to spread a little truth."

Max said he'd have to be very careful about whom he spoke the truth to behind the Iron Curtain. But he said he would speak.

Of 500,000 FDJ'ers in Berlin, only a handful had Max's experience. Their voices will be small against those who stayed behind the police lines and listen to Communist stories about the capitalist evils across the street.

In the poultry world "cannibalism" is encountered when one chicken picks the head of another, drawing blood.

Gray Ladies Care For Sick, Aged

By Evelyn Moore

To some 160 elderly persons in Monroe's four homes for the aged, a visit each week from the Gray Ladies represents the one bright spot in an otherwise uneventful existence.

And who are the Gray Ladies? They're Red Cross volunteers who serve the sick and convalescent. Once a week they spend an afternoon at one of the four homes, visiting with the aged and doing little things that add to their personal comfort and happiness.

The Gray Ladies write letters for blind and bedridden individuals. They make purchases of personal needs and clothing for them. They provide transportation to their doctors and to the hospital when needed. They provide reading material, such as magazines and church literature according to their faiths. They read letters and other items to those who cannot read. They carry ambulatory persons for short rides. They arrange and distribute gift flowers. They plan entertainments for patient participation, as group singing, movies, and the like. In these and many other ways the Gray Ladies carry a ray of sunshine into these homes.

The persons who live in the homes are cheered because someone from the outside is interested enough to visit with them. Their smiles are reward enough for the Gray Ladies.

At one of the homes, one of the women residents keeps a big circle on the calendar marking each Gray lady v i s i t i n g day. Once when a Gray Lady mentioned her project to her beauty operator, the operator became intensely interested and offered to go out and give a permanent wave to one of the aged ladies. Special events such as that are more important than holidays.

Story Of Heber Springs Told

By Otis Hassell

WINNSBORO, La., June 10.—Nestled in a valley in the foothills of the beautiful Ozark Mountains of North Arkansas is Heber Springs.

It is the county seat of Cleburne county, located 80 miles north of Little Rock. It is a beautiful town and a wonderful place to live or spend a vacation. Heber Springs claim to distinction lies in the fact that it has seven mineral springs with unequaled health and healing powers.

The Seven springs are located in a beautifully wooded ten acre park. The names of the springs are: Black Sulphur, White Sulphur, Red Sulphur, Eye Water, Arsenic, Magnesia and Iron. Each spring is different from the others and each one of them good for the aches and ills of humanity. The water is free to all people who need it.

According to an analysis made by Dr. John C. Branner, former Arkansas state geologist, the water from the springs contains: Silica, sodium, magnesium, lime, alumina, sulphuric acid, carbonic acid, nitric acid, chlorine, hydrogen sulphide gas, free ammonia and albuminoid ammonia.

Dr. J. T. Matthews of Heber Springs, recommends drinking of this water for some of his patients, especially the ones with stomach or kidney trouble. Wonderful results have been obtained. Water from the Black Sulphur spring seems to be best for kidney ailments and people with stomach trouble get best results from the Eye water spring.

People from all parts of the United States go there to drink the water and most of them report that they are completely cured or that their condition is greatly improved.

People with arthritis, rheumatism, diabetes, kidney trouble, malaria, skin infections and all kinds of stomach troubles have been cured or greatly helped by drinking this water. The Eye Water spring got its name because water from it, if used to bathe sore eyes, will cure them.

If the water from these springs is stored more than one or two days it undergoes a chemical reaction and the analysis is not the same as it is when it first comes from the ground. Part of this reaction is visible to the naked eye, as the water turns a "milkey white color a short while after being removed from the spring. For this reason it is impossible to ship the water to other places for long periods of time. However, early in the morning and late in the afternoon you will see residents of Heber Springs coming to the park with their gallon jugs to get their daily supply of drinking water.

Heber Springs has been a town since 1882. It was incorporated as Sugar Loaf, in August of that year. The name was changed to Heber Springs April 4, 1910.

Max Frauenthal, a colonel in the Confederate army, donated the ten acre park and mineral springs to the town shortly after it was incorporated. There is a stipulation in his will that no water from the springs is to be sold and that if this happens, the park and springs will revert back to his heirs. Col. Frauenthal, also donated the courthouse site and built the towns first courthouse.

The population of Heber Springs is approximately 3,000. There are no Negroes in Cleburne county. The county depends on its income from timber and agriculture. Included in the business establishments of Heber Springs are two large sawmills, five automobile agencies, farm implement stores and all kinds of merchandise businesses. The town has two hospitals, one clinic and seven churches of various denominations. It also has fair grounds, stock yard, well lighted ball park and this year, a semi-pro baseball club, all of these being sponsored by the Young Business and Professional Mens Club.

For over 50 years there has been an annual reunion held at the park on the first Thursday, Friday and Saturday of August. In the beginning this reunion was to welcome, and in honor of the soldiers of the Blue and the Grey. Now it is in honor of soldiers of all wars.

Fifty-Two Brick Veneer Duplex-Dwellings Will Be Constructed Here For Low-Income Families; Construction Scheduled To Begin August 1st

Bids will be received on construction of the first two government housing projects to be erected in Monroe for low-income families, according to Joe Guerriero, chairman of the Monroe Housing Authority.

Construction of the 22 duplex residences for white families and 30 similar dwellings for colored is scheduled to begin by August 1st and cost near a $1,000,000, Guerriero pointed out.

The chairman asserted that the first project for low-income bracket families will be located on South First street, bounded on the south by Magnolia street, on the north by Pecan and west by Georgia.

Two blocks will be consumed in this project which in addition to the brick veneer houses consists of three equipped playgrounds, and adequate parking facilities, with a utility room in each unit.

Each of the apartments which range in size from one to four bedrooms will be equipped with standard baths, refrigerators, stoves and hot water heaters.

The colored project is to be located on Texas avenue between Eighth and Eleventh streets. The brick dwellings in the colored project will be spread over three blocks and include four playgrounds and one administration building.

Guerriero said veterans would be given preferance when the apartments are completed and ready for occupancy. The rent will be determined according to the family's income, Guerriero added, and all utilities will be paid.

The project was authorized under the housing of act of 1949. The city of Monroe will receive a ten per cent shelter rent in lieu of taxes. When the project is paid for the buildings will be converted to city ownership.

Land for the second housing project in Monroe has been approved by the government, Guerriero said. This, he pointed out, will provide 100 units for white and 125 units for colored. He expressed hopes of getting the second project under construction within six months.

The housing authorities in Monroe recently obtained $325,740 from the government to clear slum areas in Monroe and turn the property over to the city to be used for playgrounds, construction of schools and possibly a municipal auditorium, according to the chairman.

Frank Smith, Jr., executive director of the housing projects is maintaining an office in the Virginia Hotel. However, no applications for the apartments will be taken until the project is completed.

In addition to the chairman, the board of directors of the Monroe Housing Authority consists of Fred Fudickar, Jr., Raleigh Poulous, Ira Cagle and Sam Rubin.

Architects for the projects are members of the Association of Housing Architects and are: King Stubbs; Milton King; D. Curtis Smith; Merl Padgett. Civil engineers on the project were S. E. Kney and Company. The mechanical engineers were Landauer and Guerriero.

Says He's Glad To Get Away From Witch-Hunting

NEW YORK, June 10. —(AP)— Corliss Lamont sailed today for a visit to Europe—happy, he said, "to get away from the hysteria, witch hunting, smearing and wiretapping of America."

A philosophy lecturer at Columbia University and one-time chairman of the national council of American - Soviet friendship, Lamont is a son of the late financier Thomas W. Lamont.

Lamont sailed with his wife and four children aboard the Cunard liner Caronia. He told newsmen that American "violation of civil liberties has given Communists their greatest victory."

"This is what the Communists have prophesied," Lamont added. "It's Marxism come true."

French Will Celebrate National Fair Festival

PARIS, June 10. —(AP)— The skies over Paris will rain roses and swirl with pigeons and deadly jet fighter aircraft Sunday in a day-long French national fair festival at Orly Field.

One hundred American, French, British and Belgian jet fighters have top billing in the festival.

Side attractions include a ballet for four helicopters, "dancing" to music from half a hundred loudspeakers. The ballet routine was devised by Serge Lifar, French dancing instructor.

French President Vincent Auriol will be among the 500,000 spectators. Planes overhead plan to loose a rain of roses from the air when the president takes his seat in a flag-draped official stand.

Calls For Study Of U. S. Anti-Trust Laws

BOSTON, June 10. —(AP)— Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer called tonight for a study of the anti-trust laws to determine if they need overhauling.

"The Sherman act is 60 years of age," he said. "At the moment the rulings, the judicial decisions and the thinking upon this subject are so conflicting and confusing that a restudy, and perhaps a restatement of policy in this field is in order."

Addressing the 20th annual national business conference of the Harvard business school association, he suggested that the school itself undertake the job.

"The core of my suggestion," he said, "is that we should have a fresh appraisal of American competition in fact and then see if our legal situation conforms to the real-life facts which we have discovered."

Sawyer continued that "we need not look askance at one who questions the perfection of our laws concerning competition. There is no holiness, no sanctity, in any individual man-made law.

"There is, however, a sanctity in respect for law. This respect is a cement which binds together and strengthens a Democratic society."

Sawyer said "we have the most effective economic system the world has ever seen. The system cannot be basically wrong. I am not convinced that we are on the wrong track in our efforts at public regulation of this dynamic system.

First Christian Church Plans Fine Sanctuary

The ambitious membership of the First Christian Church signed sanctuary long needed by this congregation. The when shortly after 10:00 a.m., ground breaking will take place for the large and ornate cathedral Gothic style dewill initiate its biggest step forward in progress this morning accompanying picture will show the general design of the new building from plans prepared by Smith and Padgett. It will occupy the present vacant space on the church lot at the southeast corner of St. John and Oak streets. Cost of building and its furnishings will total $75,000.

At the ground breaking service, the pastor, Rev. R. T. Watson, will officiate. There will be prayer, scripture selection, a song and then the ground breaking will take place. Participatnig in the exercise will be the leaders in the project. R. O. Ware is chairman of the building committee; Merl Padgett, architect, designed the plans and specification for the firm of Smith and Padgett; B. B. Martin is chairman of the board, and I. H. Garland of the I. H. Garland Construction Company, of Rayville, will appear at the exerciess as his firm is the general contractor for the construction.

The building will have a frontage of more than 102 feet on St. John street with depth of 95 feet. Red Gothic type brick of handsome design will be used in construction together with stone trimmings. The building will be insulated, will have asphalt tile floors, plastered walls, indirect lighting system and will be air conditioned to meet requirements in both summer and winter seasons. The seating capacity will be in excess of 250.

One will enter the church and broad aisles will lead down toward the altar. There will be a divided chancel with Lectern on one side and pulpit on the other. The chancel will be of panelled gum woodwork.

The baptistry will be elevated and handsomely curtained with red velour Dossal cloth. A feature of the interior of the sanctuary will be the 12 impressive columns symbolic of the 12 disciples. There will be open wood hammer beam trusses. At the head of each column in colors will be represented the aspostolic shield.

Beautiful stained glass windows, as memorials to devoted members who have passed on, will add beauty and revered respect for those who have given of their time, their money and devotion to the progress of this church.

Provision will be made in the structure for the choir room and pastor's study, while there will be a Sunday School room at the extreme south end of the building on the street side. Surmounting the Gothic style sanctuary will be a prominent tower terminating in a cross. The church bell will be housed in the tower.

The present church building will be worked over and will blend in and form a part of the design of the new structure. Between the two buildings in a space that will form a patio according to present plans.

The actual contract price for the building to be erected by I. H. Garland Construction Co., of Rayville, is $61,840. A subcontract given Dykes Co., Inc. for airconditioning calls for $5,680. The building and its furnishings will run up the cost to $75,000, it is stated. It is expected to have it completed by January 1, 1951.

The first congregation of the Christian Church in Monroe was organized in 1905, by an evangelist from Oklahoma, J. L. Haddock. Following a meeting held on the courthouse square, the group organized, and on June 12 of that year, property on the corner of Jackson and Grammont was purchased for $4,000.00. Though the work seemed to thrive, the panic of 1907 caused many people to move from Monroe, and by 1912 the little church disbanded.

The seed had been planted, however, and in 1923, under the leadership of I. E. Adams, state evangelist, the present church was organized. The charter filed in the office of the clerk of court bears the date of April 23, 1923. In November of that year the present building was erected on the corner of St. John and Oak Streets. This lot had been purchased from the congregation of B'Nai Isreal for the sum of $8,000.00 The late H. C Eckardt was chairman of the first board, and P. J. Newman and W. W. Boxley are the only remaining members of the first board. (Mr. Boxley was also a member of the 1905-1907 church).

Rev. I. E. Adams, Rev. E. R. Clarkson, Rev. D. W. McElroy, Rev. Thomas F. Jett, Dr. Crayton S. Brooks and Rev. R. T. Watson (now in his thirteenth year) have served the church as ministers.

This congregation is affiliated with the Disciples of Christ, and is one of the leading churches of the brotherhood in Louisiana. The present membership numbers approximately four hundred.

The roster of the church for the current year is of interest and is as follows: Elders, T. E. Sturgeon, chairman; E. R. Dawson, R. L. Gholson, M. G. Moore, J. E. Shannon, E. H. Williamson. Garland of the I. H. Garland Construction Company, of Rayville, will appear at the exerciess as his firm is the general contractor for the construction.

The building will have a frontage of more than 102 feet on St. John street with depth of 95 feet. Red Gothic type brick of handsome design will be used in construction together with stone trimmings. The building will be insulated, will have asphalt tile floors, plastered walls, indirect lighting system and will be air conditioned to meet requirements in both summer and winter seasons. The seating capacity will be in excess of 250.

One will enter the church and broad aisles will lead down toward the altar. There will be a divided chancel with Lectern on one side and pulpit on the other. The chancel will be of panelled gum woodwork.

The baptistry will be elevated and handsomely curtained with red velour Dossal cloth. A feature of the interior of the sanctuary will be the 12 impressive columns symbolic of the 12 disciples. There will be open wood hammer beam trusses. At the head of each column in colors will be represented the aspostolic shield.

Beautiful stained glass windows, as memorials to devoted members who have passed on, will add beauty and revered respect for those who have given of their time, their money and devotion to the progress of this church.

Provision will be made in the structure for the choir room and pastor's study, while there will be a Sunday School room at the extreme south end of the building on the street side. Surmounting the Gothic style sanctuary will be a prominent tower terminating in a cross. The church bell will be housed in the tower.

The present church building will be worked over and will blend in and form a part of the design of the new structure. Between the two buildings in a space that will form a patio according to present plans.

The actual contract price for the building to be erected by I. H. Garland Construction Co., of Rayville, is $61,840. A subcontract given Dykes Co., Inc. for airconditioning calls for $5,680. The building and its furnishings will run up the cost to $75,000, it is stated. It is expected to have it completed by January 1, 1951.

The first congregation of the Christian Church in Monroe was organized in 1905, by an evangelist from Oklahoma, J. L. Haddock. Following a meeting held on the courthouse square, the group organized, and on June 12 of that year, property on the corner of Jackson and Grammont was purchased for $4,000.00. Though the work seemed to thrive, the panic of 1907 caused many people to move from Monroe, and by 1912 the little church disbanded.

The seed had been planted, however, and in 1923, under the leadership of I. E. Adams, state evangelist, the present church was organized. The charter filed in the office of the clerk of court bears the date of April 23, 1923. In November of that year the present building was erected on the corner of St. John and Oak Streets. This lot had been purchased from the congregation of B'Nai Isreal for the sum of $8,000.00 The late H. C Eckardt was chairman of the first board, and P. J. Newman and W. W. Boxley are the only remaining members of the first board. (Mr. Boxley was also a member of the 1905-1907 church).

Rev. I. E. Adams, Rev. E. R. Clarkson, Rev. D. W. McElroy, Rev. Thomas F. Jett, Dr. Crayton S. Brooks and Rev. R. T. Watson (now in his thirteenth year) have served the church as ministers.

This congregation is affiliated with the Disciples of Christ, and is one of the leading churches of the brotherhood in Louisiana. The present membership numbers approximately four hundred.

The roster of the church for the current year is of interest and is as follows: Elders, T. E. Sturgeon, chairman; E. R. Dawson, R. L. Gholson, M. G. Moore, J. E. Shannon, E. H. Williamson. Associate elders: E. M. Wooten, J. M. Smith. Church school: J. M. Smith, Sup't; V. R. David, Asst.-Supt; T. F. Easterling, secretary; Mrs. E. B. Turner, Asst Sec.) Says He's Glad To Get Away From Witch-Hunting

NEW YORK, June 10. —(AP)— Corliss Lamont sailed today for a visit to Europe—happy, he said, "to get away from the hysteria, witch hunting, smearing and wiretapping of America."

A philosophy lecturer at Columbia University and one-time chairman of the national council of American - Soviet friendship, Lamont is a son of the late financier Thomas W. Lamont.

Lamont sailed with his wife and four children aboard the Cunard liner Caronia. He told newsmen that American "violation of civil liberties has given Communists their greatest victory."

"This is what the Communists have prophesied," Lamont added. "It's Marxism come true."

French Will Celebrate National Fair Festival

PARIS, June 10. —(AP)— The skies over Paris will rain roses and swirl with pigeons and deadly jet fighter aircraft Sunday in a day-long French national fair festival at Orly Field.

One hundred American, French, British and Belgian jet fighters have top billing in the festival.

Side attractions include a ballet for four helicopters, "dancing" to music from half a hundred loudspeakers. The ballet routine was devised by Serge Lifar, French dancing instructor.

French President Vincent Auriol will be among the 500,000 spectators. Planes overhead plan to loose a rain of roses from the air when the president takes his seat in a flag-draped official stand.

Calls For Study Of U. S. Anti-Trust Laws

BOSTON, June 10. —(AP)— Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer called tonight for a study of the anti-trust laws to determine if they need overhauling.

"The Sherman act is 60 years of age," he said. "At the moment the rulings, the judicial decisions and the thinking upon this subject are so conflicting and confusing that a restudy, and perhaps a restatement of policy in this field is in order."

Addressing the 20th annual national business conference of the Harvard business school association, he suggested that the school itself undertake the job.

"The core of my suggestion," he said, "is that we should have a fresh appraisal of American competition in fact and then see if our legal situation conforms to the real-life facts which we have discovered."

Sawyer continued that "we need not look askance at one who questions the perfection of our laws concerning competition. There is no holiness, no sanctity, in any individual man-made law.

"There is, however, a sanctity in respect for law. This respect is a cement which binds together and strengthens a Democratic society."

Sawyer said "we have the most effective economic system the world has ever seen. The system cannot be basically wrong. I am not convinced that we are on the wrong track in our efforts at public regulation of this dynamic system.

HOT SPRINGS EDGES MONROE IN 12 INNINGS

BATHERS SCORE 3 TO 2 VICTORY TO EVEN SERIES

Rubber Game Of Spas' Visit Here Comes Up This Afternoon At 3 O'clock

The Hot Springs Bathers, battling the Monroe Sports for second place in the Cotton States League standings, nosed out the Sports, 3 to 2, here last night in a 12-inning contest to even their series here at a game apiece. The Sports won the series opener, also an extra inning affair that went ten frames, and the rubber game is scheduled for this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Legion Memorial Stadium.

The win pulled the Bathers within one game of overtaking the Sports who are still just two games out of first as the Pine Bluff Judges lost their fifth straight game last night.

Monroe grabbed a short-lived lead in the sixth inning last night, but the Spas went ahead in the seventh. Monroe tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth, forcing the game into extra innings.

Warfel, last of four Hot Springs pitchers to see action, scored the winning run in the twelfth on a single by Joe Jaworski.

The game last night was played under protest from the tenth inning. Manager Al Mazur, citing a league rule that a team manager can go to the mound to talk to a pitcher only twice in an inning, protested when Danny Caccavo, a Hot Springs pitcher, went out for a conference with Bear as the third of the Spa hurlers was in trouble. Johnny Antonelli/ the manager, had earlier made a trip to the hill. Monroe contends Baer should have been lifted when Caccavo went out for his talk, claiming that Caccavo was "the direct agent" of the manager although Antonelli was on the bench.

It was a neat Schafer-Tremel pitching duel until the Sports finally got next to Schafer in the sixth for one run, and then the Bathers came back at Tremel, matching two hits with two errors, to score twice in the seventh.

The Sports got their sixth inning tally when Wally Rasmussen, Leonard Morrison and Carl Tucker hit successive singles with Tucker's lick driving home Rasmussen. Until the three-hit cluster, the Sports had been able to get Schafer for only one hit, a fourth inning single by Tucker.

The Bathers, held to two hits for six frames, got going in the seventh when Steve Solis led off with a double into right center. Don Tierney was safe on an error at third with Solis holding second. Fred Wasiluk pounded a single into right field, scoring Solis, and Tierney came on home as moon let Wasiluk's blow get through him. Tierney continued on around the bases, but was thrown out trying to make third on an error.

The Sports tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth. Al Mazur got a free pass to first and was sacrificed to second by Rasmuscen. Mazur advanced as Morrison grounded out to second. Tucker walked, and Allen Cross rammed a single into right center, scoring Mazur and sending Schafer to the showers. Frank Benites, first batter to face Bill Gingurich, the Spas' relief hurler, grounded out to first to end the inning.

Bear, taking over as the Hot Springs pitcher in the ninth after Gingiruch was lifted for a pinch hitter, walked Rasmussen, Tucker and Cross in the bottom of the tenth to load the bases with only one out. Bear was relieved by Warfel with the count two balls and no strikes on Frank Benites. Benites then grounded to Brezen at third and Rasmussen was forced at the plate. Catcher Wasiluk then rifled the ball on to first, catching Benites for a double play that ended the Monroe threat.

Thiel singled with one out for the Spas in the top of the eleventh but was left stranded, and in the bottom of the same inning Wayne Moon led off for the Sports with a single. Tremel forced Moon at second on an attempted sacrifice, but Herring came through with a sacrifice that sent Tremel to second. Mazur walked, but Rasmussen grounded out to second to finish the inning.

The Bathers broke the tie in the top of the twelfth when Warfel reached first on an error by Tremel, went to second on Jerry Brezen's sacrifice and scored on Joe Jaworski's single.

DODGERS SHADE BUCKS

GREENWOOD, Miss., June 10.—(AP)—The Greenwood Dodgers evened the series with the Greenville Bucks by winning 3-2 in a Cotton States baseball game here tonight.

George Witt, Dodger starting hurler, became ill in the third inning. Reliefer Bince Bache allowed four hits and one run in the last six innings to get credit for his first win.

Ted Eberhard after allowing the Dodgers three hits but no runs in the first inning, allowed only two hits until he was taken out in the eighth, with one out and two on. An outfield fly off Paul Nichols brought in the winning run.

In the seventh a single, two walks and an infield out had produced one run. Manager Joe Rullo called in Bob Barton from centerfield to pitch to Danny Daume with the bases loaded. The strategy worked. Daume grounded out.

The Indians greeted Starter Cotton Hill with an extra base barrage good for three runs in the first and two in the second inning and continued the attack on Lefty Ted Gardner whom they defeated last night.

Righthander Rhyne Duren came in as relief for Gardner in the fourth and after two walks and a wild pitch which let in one run and a double steal another pitched airtight ball the rest of the way.

Juliets Nurse Winner In Miss America Stake Race

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Juliets Nurse, 2 year old filly which races for J. Graham Brown of Louisville, defeated ten opponents in the Lincoln Fields' $10,000 Miss America stakes at Washington Park today.

The odds-on choice to win her race in as many starts, she ran her rivals dizzy from the start and paid $3.20.

With Kenny Church in the saddle, Juliets Nurse won by a length from Miss Canasta. Miss Mim Jr. was third, three lengths father back.

Big Story Of Open Golf Final Is Hogan's Heart

ARDMORE, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—He was virtually standing on one leg at the finish but little Ben Hogan, the guy with the big swing and even bigger heart, had done what most experts said he didn't have the strength to do.

The bantam from deep in the heart of Texas battled his way gamely into a threeway tie for the lead in the final round of the 72 hole U. S. open golf championship. He may not win the 18 hole playoff tomorrow but, regardless, the story of the 1950 golden anniversary open will be "Hogan."

Only 17 months ago he cracked up in an automobile accident. Hogan was only a short putt from death's door. Slowly but surely he regained his strength and finally came back to the golf course. Recently he set a world's record of 259 strokes for 72 holes in the Greensbrier open at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

In pre-judging the national championship tourney over the historic and equally tough Merion golf club course, the golf experts said Hogan was a threat but the 36-hole final round would be his downfall. They didn't think Ben had the stamina after his recent physical ordeal.

Hogan fooled them all. The sentimental favorite of the largest gallery ever to watch an open — an estimated 12,500 — he trailed the field for three rounds and then fought his way into a tie with Dapper Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and George Fazio of Washington, D. C., with a 72 hole total of 287.

And the way he made the grade would make a Hollywood scenario writer turn green with envy. It wasn't enough he carried scars of a torturous accident into competition, but Hogan injured himself on the 12th hole.

While hitting his tee shot, the little guy wrenched a knee. He almost fell and held a hurried consultation with his partner on the final round, Dr. Cary Middlecoff. From the 12th hole on, Middlecoff, in a sportsmanlike gesture, marked Ben's ball on the putting green. Hogan's caddy removed the ball from the cup.

Not once did Ben Stoop over to survey the green for tough putts as is necessary. He never complained and made a point to deny he ever hurt the knee.

"Let's forget it fellows. I think the people are a little tired of reading about that stuff," he said in the locker room after the round.

Hogan wasn't trying to be a hero. He was sincere in his desire not to make any kind of excuse or cast any reflection on the great golf of Mangrum and Fazio, his tourney playoff opponents.

Asked about how he felt playing 36 holes for the first time since his almost fatal accident, Hogan said, "I felt fine. I'm tired naturally, but no more than any fellow who played 36 holes."

He thought a little about his game and then remonstrated about the 17th hole where he took the one over par four that threw the tourney into a tie.

"I thought I played that hole perfectly but the damn ball took a queer bounce and landed in the rough near a bunker."

With that, Ben retired to rest his weary legs for tomorrow's battle for dollars and glory.

SIR BUTCH WINS AT GOLDEN GATE

Great Circle Finishes First But Judges Rule Interference

ALBANY, Calif., June 10.—(AP)—Clifford Mooers' Sir Butch lost by a nose to Great Circle in today's $20,000 added Golden Gate derby, but was awarded the race on a stewards' ruling of interference.

Great Circle was placed second. War Poppy finished third, two lengths back.

It was the fourth annual running of the mile and an eighth feature at Golden Gate fields, and added $15,250 to the Mooers' stable earnings.

Sir Butch covered the distance in 1:48, a scant two-fifths of a second from the world's record, quite an achievement for a three-year-old.

Coupled as a Mooers' entry with Sudan, Sir Butch paid $3.40 in his role as favorite. Place and show prices on the winner were both a skimpy $2.10.

Second choice in the betting, Great Circle returned $2.50 and $2.20; War Poppy paying $2.70 for the show.

A crowd of 16,412 witnessed the race.

Sir Butch, with Gordon Glisson up, took command at the head of the stretch, passing the pace-setting War Poppy. Great Circle closed ground rapidly and collared Sir Butch nearing the eighth pole. They raced nose and nose to the wire. The inquiry sign went up as they flashed past the finish line.

The stewards viewed motion pictures of the race and ruled that Great Circle bumped Sir Butch "several times" between the eighth post and home. Ralph Neves was aboard Great Circle.

Ruston American Legion Juniors Beat Farmerville

The Ruston American Legion team defeated Farmerville American Legion yesterday by a score of 6 to 5.

Ruston got away to a fast start, scoring two runs in the first inning. Farmerville tied the game up later and this situation prevailed until the seventh inning. Ruston scored three runs in the eighth frame to overpower a two-run outburst by Farmerville in the top of the ninth.

The steady pitching of Lefty Till of Farmerville was a standout, but Jones' pitching for Ruston seemed too strong for Farmerville.

Cleo A. Young of Timmonsville, S. C., has something of a record with his 2-year-old trotters. His youngsters have won the first 2-year-old races at Roosevelt Raceway at Westbury, N. Y., the last five straight years.

Roller Skating every night except Tuesday. Gus Kallio's Arena is a place where skaters always have plenty of clean fun. We don't say we have anything good in the Arena. Floor is small and bad, don't have a good pair of skates in the place, lights are old style. Winter time the arena is cold and Summer time it's too hot. The Owner and Manager doesn't even know how to drink or smoke, but he sure keeps his eye on others. If you don't believe this story, come over and visit Gus Kallio's Arena—And be your own Judge.

Bear Featured On Wrestling Card; Jack Curtis To Tangle With Q. Ball

A three-match wrestling show, headlining the appearance of Jack Curtis against Q. Ball and featuring the presentation of a 310-pound bear against the "Green Ghost," a newcomer to the southern mat circuit, will be offered by Promoter Gus Kallio at his Walnut street arena here Tuesday night.

Q. Ball, tussler from Tulsa, Okla., who made his initial appearance here last week when he sided Bobby Segura, world's light heavyweight champion, in a losing tag team match against the Curtis brothers, Jack and George, gets main event billing with Jack Curtis.

Ball, not satisfied with the result last week, challenged for a man-to-man match with the elder Curtis, former world's champ. They'll battle over a 90-minute time limit distance, two falls to win.

The wrestling bear, Ginger, Jr., appears in the semi-final against the Green Ghost after the latter makes his debut against Lester Welch, Dyersburg, Tenn., in the preliminary at 8:15 o'clock.

The Ghost will be trying not only to beat the bear (advance notices say Bruin has been undefeated in over 200 matches) but one of his trainers as well. Lester Welch is one of three Tennessee brothers, the others being Roy and Herbert, who have trained the big bear as a wrestler.

Wrestling bears have been known for centuries, but the Welch brothers, in notices to Kallio, promise Ginger, Jr., son of Ginger whom they claim was the greatest of them all, is going to be equally famous as his wrestling mother.

Ginger, Jr., has been wrestling "professionally" for two years, appearing in 30 states and Canada. He has been matched with some of the country's best wrestlers, occasionally taking on two at a time and has battled as many as five at once.

The bear on Kallio's card is four years old and stands over six feet tall. He has been constantly trained for the ring by the Welch brothers since he was a cub.

HOT SPRINGS EDGES MONROE IN 12 INNINGS

BATHERS SCORE 3 TO 2 VICTORY TO EVEN SERIES

Rubber Game Of Spas' Visit Here Comes Up This Afternoon At 3 O'clock

The Hot Springs Bathers, battling the Monroe Sports for second place in the Cotton States League standings, nosed out the Sports, 3 to 2, here last night in a 12-inning contest to even their series here at a game apiece. The Sports won the series opener, also an extra inning affair that went ten frames, and the rubber game is scheduled for this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Legion Memorial Stadium.

The win pulled the Bathers within one game of overtaking the Sports who are still just two games out of first as the Pine Bluff Judges lost their fifth straight game last night.

Monroe grabbed a short-lived lead in the sixth inning last night, but the Spas went ahead in the seventh. Monroe tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth, forcing the game into extra innings.

Warfel, last of four Hot Springs pitchers to see action, scored the winning run in the twelfth on a single by Joe Jaworski.

The game last night was played under protest from the tenth inning. Manager Al Mazur, citing a league rule that a team manager can go to the mound to talk to a pitcher only twice in an inning, protested when Danny Caccavo, a Hot Springs pitcher, went out for a conference with Bear as the third of the Spa hurlers was in trouble. Johnny Antonelli/ the manager, had earlier made a trip to the hill. Monroe contends Baer should have been lifted when Caccavo went out for his talk, claiming that Caccavo was "the direct agent" of the manager although Antonelli was on the bench.

It was a neat Schafer-Tremel pitching duel until the Sports finally got next to Schafer in the sixth for one run, and then the Bathers came back at Tremel, matching two hits with two errors, to score twice in the seventh.

The Sports got their sixth inning tally when Wally Rasmussen, Leonard Morrison and Carl Tucker hit successive singles with Tucker's lick driving home Rasmussen. Until the three-hit cluster, the Sports had been able to get Schafer for only one hit, a fourth inning single by Tucker.

The Bathers, held to two hits for six frames, got going in the seventh when Steve Solis led off with a double into right center. Don Tierney was safe on an error at third with Solis holding second. Fred Wasiluk pounded a single into right field, scoring Solis, and Tierney came on home as moon let Wasiluk's blow get through him. Tierney continued on around the bases, but was thrown out trying to make third on an error.

The Sports tied it up at 2-2 in the bottom of the eighth. Al Mazur got a free pass to first and was sacrificed to second by Rasmuscen. Mazur advanced as Morrison grounded out to second. Tucker walked, and Allen Cross rammed a single into right center, scoring Mazur and sending Schafer to the showers. Frank Benites, first batter to face Bill Gingurich, the Spas' relief hurler, grounded out to first to end the inning.

Bear, taking over as the Hot Springs pitcher in the ninth after Gingiruch was lifted for a pinch hitter, walked Rasmussen, Tucker and Cross in the bottom of the tenth to load the bases with only one out. Bear was relieved by Warfel with the count two balls and no strikes on Frank Benites. Benites then grounded to Brezen at third and Rasmussen was forced at the plate. Catcher Wasiluk then rifled the ball on to first, catching Benites for a double play that ended the Monroe threat.

Thiel singled with one out for the Spas in the top of the eleventh but was left stranded, and in the bottom of the same inning Wayne Moon led off for the Sports with a single. Tremel forced Moon at second on an attempted sacrifice, but Herring came through with a sacrifice that sent Tremel to second. Mazur walked, but Rasmussen grounded out to second to finish the inning.

The Bathers broke the tie in the top of the twelfth when Warfel reached first on an error by Tremel, went to second on Jerry Brezen's sacrifice and scored on Joe Jaworski's single.

DODGERS SHADE BUCKS

GREENWOOD, Miss., June 10.—(AP)—The Greenwood Dodgers evened the series with the Greenville Bucks by winning 3-2 in a Cotton States baseball game here tonight.

George Witt, Dodger starting hurler, became ill in the third inning. Reliefer Bince Bache allowed four hits and one run in the last six innings to get credit for his first win.

Ted Eberhard after allowing the Dodgers three hits but no runs in the first inning, allowed only two hits until he was taken out in the eighth, with one out and two on. An outfield fly off Paul Nichols brought in the winning run.

In the seventh a single, two walks and an infield out had produced one run. Manager Joe Rullo called in Bob Barton from centerfield to pitch to Danny Daume with the bases loaded. The strategy worked. Daume grounded out.

The Indians greeted Starter Cotton Hill with an extra base barrage good for three runs in the first and two in the second inning and continued the attack on Lefty Ted Gardner whom they defeated last night.

Righthander Rhyne Duren came in as relief for Gardner in the fourth and after two walks and a wild pitch which let in one run and a double steal another pitched airtight ball the rest of the way.

Juliets Nurse Winner In Miss America Stake Race

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Juliets Nurse, 2 year old filly which races for J. Graham Brown of Louisville, defeated ten opponents in the Lincoln Fields' $10,000 Miss America stakes at Washington Park today.

The odds-on choice to win her race in as many starts, she ran her rivals dizzy from the start and paid $3.20.

With Kenny Church in the saddle, Juliets Nurse won by a length from Miss Canasta. Miss Mim Jr. was third, three lengths father back.

Big Story Of Open Golf Final Is Hogan's Heart

ARDMORE, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—He was virtually standing on one leg at the finish but little Ben Hogan, the guy with the big swing and even bigger heart, had done what most experts said he didn't have the strength to do.

The bantam from deep in the heart of Texas battled his way gamely into a threeway tie for the lead in the final round of the 72 hole U. S. open golf championship. He may not win the 18 hole playoff tomorrow but, regardless, the story of the 1950 golden anniversary open will be "Hogan."

Only 17 months ago he cracked up in an automobile accident. Hogan was only a short putt from death's door. Slowly but surely he regained his strength and finally came back to the golf course. Recently he set a world's record of 259 strokes for 72 holes in the Greensbrier open at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

In pre-judging the national championship tourney over the historic and equally tough Merion golf club course, the golf experts said Hogan was a threat but the 36-hole final round would be his downfall. They didn't think Ben had the stamina after his recent physical ordeal.

Hogan fooled them all. The sentimental favorite of the largest gallery ever to watch an open — an estimated 12,500 — he trailed the field for three rounds and then fought his way into a tie with Dapper Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago and George Fazio of Washington, D. C., with a 72 hole total of 287.

And the way he made the grade would make a Hollywood scenario writer turn green with envy. It wasn't enough he carried scars of a torturous accident into competition, but Hogan injured himself on the 12th hole.

While hitting his tee shot, the little guy wrenched a knee. He almost fell and held a hurried consultation with his partner on the final round, Dr. Cary Middlecoff. From the 12th hole on, Middlecoff, in a sportsmanlike gesture, marked Ben's ball on the putting green. Hogan's caddy removed the ball from the cup.

Not once did Ben Stoop over to survey the green for tough putts as is necessary. He never complained and made a point to deny he ever hurt the knee.

"Let's forget it fellows. I think the people are a little tired of reading about that stuff," he said in the locker room after the round.

Hogan wasn't trying to be a hero. He was sincere in his desire not to make any kind of excuse or cast any reflection on the great golf of Mangrum and Fazio, his tourney playoff opponents.

Asked about how he felt playing 36 holes for the first time since his almost fatal accident, Hogan said, "I felt fine. I'm tired naturally, but no more than any fellow who played 36 holes."

He thought a little about his game and then remonstrated about the 17th hole where he took the one over par four that threw the tourney into a tie.

"I thought I played that hole perfectly but the damn ball took a queer bounce and landed in the rough near a bunker."

With that, Ben retired to rest his weary legs for tomorrow's battle for dollars and glory.

SIR BUTCH WINS AT GOLDEN GATE

Great Circle Finishes First But Judges Rule Interference

ALBANY, Calif., June 10.—(AP)—Clifford Mooers' Sir Butch lost by a nose to Great Circle in today's $20,000 added Golden Gate derby, but was awarded the race on a stewards' ruling of interference.

Great Circle was placed second. War Poppy finished third, two lengths back.

It was the fourth annual running of the mile and an eighth feature at Golden Gate fields, and added $15,250 to the Mooers' stable earnings.

Sir Butch covered the distance in 1:48, a scant two-fifths of a second from the world's record, quite an achievement for a three-year-old.

Coupled as a Mooers' entry with Sudan, Sir Butch paid $3.40 in his role as favorite. Place and show prices on the winner were both a skimpy $2.10.

Second choice in the betting, Great Circle returned $2.50 and $2.20; War Poppy paying $2.70 for the show.

A crowd of 16,412 witnessed the race.

Sir Butch, with Gordon Glisson up, took command at the head of the stretch, passing the pace-setting War Poppy. Great Circle closed ground rapidly and collared Sir Butch nearing the eighth pole. They raced nose and nose to the wire. The inquiry sign went up as they flashed past the finish line.

The stewards viewed motion pictures of the race and ruled that Great Circle bumped Sir Butch "several times" between the eighth post and home. Ralph Neves was aboard Great Circle.

Ruston American Legion Juniors Beat Farmerville

The Ruston American Legion team defeated Farmerville American Legion yesterday by a score of 6 to 5.

Ruston got away to a fast start, scoring two runs in the first inning. Farmerville tied the game up later and this situation prevailed until the seventh inning. Ruston scored three runs in the eighth frame to overpower a two-run outburst by Farmerville in the top of the ninth.

The steady pitching of Lefty Till of Farmerville was a standout, but Jones' pitching for Ruston seemed too strong for Farmerville.

Cleo A. Young of Timmonsville, S. C., has something of a record with his 2-year-old trotters. His youngsters have won the first 2-year-old races at Roosevelt Raceway at Westbury, N. Y., the last five straight years.

The Owner and Manager doesn't even know how to drink or smoke, but he sure keeps his eye on others. If you don't believe this story, come over and visit Gus Kallio's Arena—And be your own Judge.

Bear Featured On Wrestling Card; Jack Curtis To Tangle With Q. Ball

A three-match wrestling show, headlining the appearance of Jack Curtis against Q. Ball and featuring the presentation of a 310-pound bear against the "Green Ghost," a newcomer to the southern mat circuit, will be offered by Promoter Gus Kallio at his Walnut street arena here Tuesday night.

Q. Ball, tussler from Tulsa, Okla., who made his initial appearance here last week when he sided Bobby Segura, world's light heavyweight champion, in a losing tag team match against the Curtis brothers, Jack and George, gets main event billing with Jack Curtis.

Ball, not satisfied with the result last week, challenged for a man-to-man match with the elder Curtis, former world's champ. They'll battle over a 90-minute time limit distance, two falls to win.

The wrestling bear, Ginger, Jr., appears in the semi-final against the Green Ghost after the latter makes his debut against Lester Welch, Dyersburg, Tenn., in the preliminary at 8:15 o'clock.

The Ghost will be trying not only to beat the bear (advance notices say Bruin has been undefeated in over 200 matches) but one of his trainers as well. Lester Welch is one of three Tennessee brothers, the others being Roy and Herbert, who have trained the big bear as a wrestler.

Wrestling bears have been known for centuries, but the Welch brothers, in notices to Kallio, promise Ginger, Jr., son of Ginger, whom they claim was the greatest of them all, is going to be equally famous as his wrestling mother.

Ginger, Jr., has been wrestling "professionally" for two years, appearing in 30 states and Canada. He has been matched with some of the country's best wrestlers, occasionally taking on two at a time and has battled as many as five at once.

The bear on Kallio's card is four years old and stands over six feet tall. He has been constantly trained for the ring by the Welch brothers since he was a cub.

THREE-WAY PLAYOFF TODAY FOR OPEN TITLE

MANGRUM, FAZIO, HOGAN DUEL FOR TOP GOLF HONOR

Weakening Legs Ruin Bantam Ben's Chance To Win In Final Round

By Gayle Talbot

ARDMORE, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—Little Ben Hogan's tortured legs played out on him when victory was within his grasp today, and the great little veteran just lasted to salvage a three-way tie with Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio at the end of the 72 emotion-packed holes in the National Open golf championship.

The largest crowd ever to witness a day's play in golf's blue ribbon classic—estimated at over 12,500—rent the burning skies over Merion with a tremendous cry of relief as Hogan ran down a five-foot putt on the final green to save himself a place in tomorrow's 18-hole playoff.

One of the most remarkable triumphs in history apparently was Hogan's with only four holes to go in the marathon when his tired legs, bent and torn in an auto crash 17 months ago, finally buckled under the strain and carried him into trouble on the 69th and 71st holes.

In the end he had to settle for a 74 on his final round to gain the deadlock at 287 with Mangrum, a former open champion from Niles, Ill., and Fazio, a Washington, D. C., professional who never before found himself in such a spotlighted situation.

The first inkling that the bantam, idol of the huge gallery, was facing serious trouble came at the 12th hole of the hectic closing round when, after hitting his tee shot, he was seen to stagger and almost fall.

Though Ben declined to admit after it was over that he had twisted his maimed right knee at that point, it was noted that he never again stooped to pick up his ball on the green. Defending Champion Cary Middlecoff, who was playing with him, invariably "marked" Ben's ball when it needed to be lifted on the carpet, and the caddies took turns retrieving it from the hole.

"Let's not say anything about it," Ben suggested to a reporter. "I imagine people are getting tired reading about my injuries."

Up to the time he grimanced in pain at the 12th, Hogan had pulled away from Middlecoff, the man he apparently had to beat, and needed only to come within three strokes of Merion's par on the final seven holes to finish in front of Mangrum and Fazio, who had completed their rounds earlier.

But it was not to be, and now tomorrow the veteran will have to haul his battered shanks over Merion's hills once more in an effort to win his second open. The odds, in the circumstances, will be against him.

Mangrum won his title in a similar three-way playoff against Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi at the Canterbury Club at Cleveland in 1946. Hogan won his at the Riviera Club at Los Angeles two years ago with a record-breaking total of 276. Fazio never has won a major crown.

Hogan's four rounds in the past three blazing days were 72-69-72-74—287; Mangrum's 72-70-69-76—287, Fazio's 74-71-72-70—287. Mangrum went into the closing round leading by a stroke, but blew badly.

Browns Stop Yanks; Tigers Take Over Loop Lead With 18-8 Win Over Bosox

BOSTON, June 10.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers took over the slugging at Fenway Park today by totaling 21 hits for 31 bases to crush the Boston Red Sox, 18-8, and capture the American League's top rung from the losing New York Yankees by a single percentage point.

The Tigers whaled Starter Ellis Kinder for seven runs in the fourth inning and clinched matters against him in the seventh when Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers banged consecutive homers.

The final Detroit blast was an eight-run explosion against Walt Masterson in the ninth on five hits, including a Johnny Groth triple with the bases loaded, three passes and an error.

Dizzy Trout started for the Tigers and gave way to Art Houtteman in the seventh, when the Sockers bunched three of their runs. The first Boston counter was Ted Williams' 18th homer of the season in the first inning.

It was also Williams' fifth four bagger in four games and the club's 16th in their last five starts, one less than the major league record total the New York Yankees made over a similar stretch in 1940.

West Monroe-Camden Junior Tilt Postponed

The West Monroe American Legion Junior baseball team's game with Camden, Ark., was postponed Saturday night because of rain. The game is to be rescheduled for a later date.

The Juniors are to see plenty of action next week with three games on the card. Monday night at Cloyd Park the team will play Monroe at 8 p.m. A large crowd is expected to turn out for this game as an array of stars will be in action.

Wednesday night the team will travel to Mangham where they will play a strong Mangham team.

One of the most important games of the season will be played Friday night. Farmerville, one of the strongest teams in the league, will journey to West Monroe for what promises to be an interesting game. The public is invited to attend these games as a tribute to the West Monroe American Legion.

NEW FEATURES AT SKEET RANGE

Monroe Club Makes Many Improvements; Membership Drive Underway

Vast improvements at the Monroe Skeet Club's range in the past several days now give local skeet and trap shooters one of the finest ranges of its kind in this section of the country, and the club is now entering its annual membership drive.

Hard work and cash has brought the range up to a high standard, lights are just about ready, and the "grand opening" of the club's snack bar is due today. The range management last night announced shooters will now be able to obtain their lunch on the grounds as well as the usual refreshments.

The latest equipment has been installed, with the big surprise for shotgun artists turning out today being a new shoot entirely different from skeet and trap.

"There's only one range in the country that has this new feature," T. J. Thoman, range manager, said last night. "A. M. Feltus of Natchez, Miss., designed and patented in 1949 this new flying type of shooting, and it is the nearest thing to live game shooting. This same type of installation is used in Spain where live birds are used, but we substitute clay powder pigeons instead."

This week marks the drive for membership for the season, and first on the line have been Bill Snyder, Ray Garner, Sid Williams, Gus Sanders, Ed Hemphill, Bill Andrews, Bill Watkins, Ross Graves, Glen Anderson, Vernon Hobgood, and Ed Hobgood.

Leading at the traps last Sunday was S. K. Bernheim with 44 hits at 50 targets. The heavy shooting was in skeet with some of the best scores being J. W. Andrews, 22x25; Mike Smith, 154x175; Bill Andrews, 145x175; Ross Graves 118x125; J. B. Thoman, 153x175; Glen Anderson, 67x75; J. P. Stalts, 24x25; and E. W. Andrews, 154x175.

T. O. "Toby" Bancroft, Monroe club member, won second place recently in the state trapp shoot at Shreveport with a score of 198x200.

Two shows in one will be the bargain bill when the Indianapolis Clowns of the Negro American League meet the Houston Eagles next Friday night at 8 o'clock at Casino Park here.

In addition to a spectacular brand of ball, the Clowns also are famous for their uproarous antics on the field with such comedians as King Tut, Booty Jim, and "Spec" Bebop, the latter a three-foot-six pint-sized laugh asset that makes the Clowns a big show wherever they go.

Cards Grab National Lead With 6-2 Win Over Giants; Reds Nip Dodgers

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took over undisputed possession of first place in the National League today, beating the surging New York Giants, 6-2, while the Brooklyn Dodgers, former co-tenants, bowed to the Reds in Cincinnati.

Red Munger went the distance for the first time since April 27 and scattered eight hits to bag his third victory. The loss snapped a seven-game Giant winning streak and tumbled the New Yorkers back into sixth place behind the Chicago Cubs.

Stan Musial tripled and scored a tie-breaking run as Enos Slaughter grounded out in the third and the Cards were never headed.

Manager Leo Durocher of the Gaints employed five pitchers with Starter Clint Hartung taking the rap, his first loss of the season. The Cards now have beaten the Giants four straight times without a loss.

THREE-WAY PLAYOFF TODAY FOR OPEN TITLE

Weakening Legs Ruin Bantam Ben's Chance To Win In Final Round

By Gayle Talbot

ARDMORE, Pa., June 10.—(AP)—Little Ben Hogan's tortured legs played out on him when victory was within his grasp today, and the great little veteran just lasted to salvage a three-way tie with Lloyd Mangrum and George Fazio at the end of the 72 emotion-packed holes in the National Open golf championship.

The largest crowd ever to witness a day's play in golf's blue ribbon classic—estimated at over 12,500—rent the burning skies over Merion with a tremendous cry of relief as Hogan ran down a five-foot putt on the final green to save himself a place in tomorrow's 18-hole playoff.

One of the most remarkable triumphs in history apparently was Hogan's with only four holes to go in the marathon when his tired legs, bent and torn in an auto crash 17 months ago, finally buckled under the strain and carried him into trouble on the 69th and 71st holes.

In the end he had to settle for a 74 on his final round to gain the deadlock at 287 with Mangrum, a former open champion from Niles, Ill., and Fazio, a Washington, D. C., professional who never before found himself in such a spotlighted situation.

The first inkling that the bantam, idol of the huge gallery, was facing serious trouble came at the 12th hole of the hectic closing round when, after hitting his tee shot, he was seen to stagger and almost fall.

Though Ben declined to admit after it was over that he had twisted his maimed right knee at that point, it was noted that he never again stooped to pick up his ball on the green. Defending Champion Cary Middlecoff, who was playing with him, invariably "marked" Ben's ball when it needed to be lifted on the carpet, and the caddies took turns retrieving it from the hole.

"Let's not say anything about it," Ben suggested to a reporter. "I imagine people are getting tired reading about my injuries."

Up to the time he grimanced in pain at the 12th, Hogan had pulled away from Middlecoff, the man he apparently had to beat, and needed only to come within three strokes of Merion's par on the final seven holes to finish in front of Mangrum and Fazio, who had completed their rounds earlier.

But it was not to be, and now tomorrow the veteran will have to haul his battered shanks over Merion's hills once more in an effort to win his second open. The odds, in the circumstances, will be against him.

Mangrum won his title in a similar three-way playoff against Byron Nelson and Vic Ghezzi at the Canterbury Club at Cleveland in 1946. Hogan won his at the Riviera Club at Los Angeles two years ago with a record-breaking total of 276. Fazio never has won a major crown.

Hogan's four rounds in the past three blazing days were 72-69-72-74—287; Mangrum's 72-70-69-76—287. Fazio's 74-71-72-70—287. Mangrum went into the closing round leading by a stroke, but blew badly.

Browns Stop Yanks; Tigers Take Over Loop Lead With 18-8 Win Over Bosox

BOSTON, June 10.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers took over the slugging at Fenway Park today by totaling 21 hits for 31 bases to crush the Boston Red Sox, 18-8, and capture the American League's top rung from the losing New York Yankees by a single percentage point.

The Tigers whaled Starter Ellis Kinder for seven runs in the fourth inning and clinched matters against him in the seventh when Vic Wertz and Hoot Evers banged consecutive homers.

The final Detroit blast was an eight-run explosion against Walt Masterson in the ninth on five hits, including a Johnny Groth triple with the bases loaded, three passes and an error.

Dizzy Trout started for the Tigers and gave way to Art Houtteman in the seventh, when the Sockers bunched three of their runs. The first Boston counter was Ted Williams' 18th homer of the season in the first inning.

It was also Williams' fifth four bagger in four games and the club's 16th in their last five starts, one less than the major league record total the New York Yankees made over a similar stretch in 1940.

West Monroe-Camden Junior Tilt Postponed

The West Monroe American Legion Junior baseball team's game with Camden, Ark., was postponed Saturday night because of rain. The game is to be rescheduled for a later date.

The Juniors are to see plenty of action next week with three games on the card. Monday night at Cloyd Park the team will play Monroe at 8 p.m. A large crowd is expected to turn out for this game as an array of stars will be in action.

Wednesday night the team will travel to Mangham where they will play a strong Mangham team.

One of the most important games of the season will be played Friday night. Farmerville, one of the strongest teams in the league, will journey to West Monroe for what promises to be an interesting game. The public is invited to attend these games as a tribute to the West Monroe American Legion.

IN CHISOX SYSTEM

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP)—Douglas Cossey, 20, catcher and captain of the Michigan Normal baseball team, today signed with the Chicago White Sox. He is 6 feet, 3 inches tall and weighs 206.

NEW FEATURES AT SKEET RANGE

Monroe Club Makes Many Improvements; Membership Drive Underway

Vast improvements at the Monroe Skeet Club's range in the past several days now give local skeet and trap shooters one of the finest ranges of its kind in this section of the country, and the club is now entering its annual membership drive.

Hard work and cash has brought the range up to a high standard, lights are just about ready, and the "grand opening" of the club's snack bar is due today. The range management last night announced shooters will now be able to obtain their lunch on the grounds as well as the usual refreshments.

The latest equipment has been installed, with the big surprise for shotgun artists turning out today being a new shoot entirely different from skeet and trap.

"There's only one range in the country that has this new feature," T. J. Thoman, range manager, said last night. "A. M. Feltus of Natchez, Miss., designed and patented in 1949 this new flying type of shooting, and it is the nearest thing to live game shooting. This same type of installation is used in Spain where live birds are used, but we substitute clay powder pigeons instead."

This week marks the drive for membership for the season, and first on the line have been Bill Snyder, Ray Garner, Sid Williams, Gus Sanders, Ed Hemphill, Bill Andrews, Bill Watkins, Ross Graves, Glen Anderson, Vernon Hobgood, and Ed Hobgood.

Leading at the traps last Sunday was S. K. Bernheim with 44 hits at 50 targets. The heavy shooting was in skeet with some of the best scores being J. W. Andrews, 22x25; Mike Smith, 154x175; Bill Andrews, 145x175; Ross Graves 118x125; J. B. Thoman, 153x175; Glen Anderson, 67x75; J. P. Stalts, 24x25; and E. W. Andrews, 154x175.

T. O. "Toby" Bancroft, Monroe club member, won second place recently in the state trapp shoot at Shreveport with a score of 198x200.

Two shows in one will be the bargain bill when the Indianapolis Clowns of the Negro American League meet the Houston Eagles next Friday night at 8 o'clock at Casino Park here.

In addition to a spectacular brand of ball, the Clowns also are famous for their uproarous antics on the field with such comedians as King Tut, Booty Jim, and "Spec" Bebop, the latter a three-foot-six pint-sized laugh asset that makes the Clowns a big show wherever they go.

Cards Grab National Lead With 6-2 Win Over Giants; Reds Nip Dodgers

ST. LOUIS, June 10.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals took over undisputed possession of first place in the National League today, beating the surging New York Giants, 6-2, while the Brooklyn Dodgers, former co-tenants, bowed to the Reds in Cincinnati.

Red Munger went the distance for the first time since April 27 and scattered eight hits to bag his third victory. The loss snapped a seven-game Giant winning streak and tumbled the New Yorkers back into sixth place behind the Chicago Cubs.

Stan Musial tripled and scored a tie-breaking run as Enos Slaughter grounded out in the third and the Cards were never headed.

Manager Leo Durocher of the Gaints employed five pitchers with Starter Clint Hartung taking the rap, his first loss of the season. The Cards now have beaten the Giants four straight times without a loss.

BELMONT STAKES TO MIDDLEGROUND

Lights Up Second; Favored Hill Prince Comes Home Seventh

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Texas, the largest state in the union, had the biggest horse today in the $91,950 Belmont Stakes as King Ranch's Middleground rambled to a brilliant victory over nine rivals including Hill Prince—the odds on favorite.

It was a stunner for the crowd of 39,152 sweltering customers, who backed Hill Prince down to 17 to 20 favoritism then watched him finish seventh after setting the pace most of the way.

Middleground, the winner of the Kentucky Derby five weeks ago, was second choice this time. He came roaring down the stretch in a thrilling drive under 18-year-old Bill Boland to beat out George D. Widener's Lights Up by a length. C. V. (Sonny) Whitney's Mr. Trouble was third, losing second place by half a length in a photo finish, which showed Brandywine stable's Greek Song fourth by a head.

Just as in the derby, it was in all-Texas combination that carried away the top prize of $61,350 in this 82nd running of the Belmont —final event on the triple crown for three-year-olds.

Boland, owner Robert J. Kleberg, trainer Max Hirsch and Middleground all came from the Lone Star state, and the combination put the flashy chestnut son of Bold Venture - Verguenza smack back into the scramble for 1950 three-year-old championship honors.

Middleground, well rated by Boland through the first mile where he was fourth, didn't pull away until the final sixteenth in the gruelling mile and one-half run. But you could see he was going to make it as the leaders hoofed through the dust around the final turn and into the straight run for the wire.

The winner, clocked in a 2:28 3-5, brought his backers $7.40, $3.60 and $3.20.

Lights Up, who won the Peter Pan Handicap last week, returned $7.50 and $5.50, while Mr. Trouble paid $4.70.

Clifford Mooers' Hawley was fifth, Brookmeade stable's Greek Ship was sixth, then Hill Prince, Hal Price Headley's Lotowhite, and Brookmeade's other entry Sun Glow bringing up the rear.

Monroe, West Monroe Juniors Meet Monday

Riser also announced that his boys are to meet at 5 p.m. Monday at Legion Memorial Stadium in Monroe for a brief meeting before going on to West Monroe for the game.

Coach Bob McNeely of West Monroe has not announced his probable starting battery. The West Monroe boys are requested to meet at Legion Hall at 9:30 a.m. Monday for a morning practice.

Mangham And Farmerville Play Exhibition Monday

Allen Cross Continues Steady Work At Plate; Johnson Still No. 1 Hurler

By J. P. Friend

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., June 10.—(Special)—Blasting nine hits in 20 times at bat during the week, Ben (Rosey) Cantrell, Pine Bluff's old pro, regained the Cotton States League batting championship from teammate John Ramm with a mark of .370.

Ben had to go all out to overtake his conquerer of last week, but he made it with a couple of points to spare. "Rosey" hit safely in all five games which added 10 points to his plate mark. Ramm put up a stiff struggle, collecting eight safeties in 20 trips, but could increase his average only four decimals to .368 and second place. Both have played in 45 games. Cantrell has collected 67 hits in 181 times at bat, as compared to 185-68 for Ramm. The Friend News Service figures include games of June 6 and released Saturday.

Another judge, Harry Schwegman, could not keep up the terrific pace of last week, skidding nine points to .349 but good enough for third position. Alex Cosmidis, Hot Springs, is fourth with .336, ten points ahead of Jim Gilbert, Natchez.

Several players who reported late in the league have posted outstanding batting averages. Allen Cross, Monroe, is hitting .369 in 15 games. Another Sport newcomer, Frank Benites, is clipping away at .355 in 10 contests. Bob Barton, Greenville, has a .342 fglure in 20 games. Dan Phalen, Hot Springs giant and slugging champion, of 1949, moved up to .328 in 16 starts. He has smacked three home runs since rejoining the Bathers.

R. L. (Turkey) Lurk, Monroe pitcher, is sporting a .467 record in 12 games and only 15 times at bat.

Chet Morgan, who has been nursing injuries and guiding the Clarksdale Planters from the sidelines, tops the second division with .324. Dick Adkins, Natchez skipper, picked up 20 points during the last period and moved into seventh place with .322. Jerry Lynch, Greenville, has .316, a gain of six points over last record, followed by Roy Coss, El Dorado, .315, and Pine Bluff's Bob Kurtz, .307, representing a four-point gain since the averages were last released.

The big 10 hitters monopolized the specialized batting departments. Cantrell has the most total bases, 105, and has batted in the most runs, 55. Ramm's 68 hits are high. Schwegman is the No. 1 scorer with 52 tallies. Adkins has colected 17 doubles. Lynch dominates the triple hitters with nine three-baggers. Len Morrison, Monroe, is giving Frank Scarpace, Pine Bluff a race for home run laurels. At present the new Sport outfielder is trailing the Judge by one circuit clout, eight to seven. Ramm stole four bases in a single game and is pulling away from the base stealing field.

Bobby Johnson, Monroe rookie, became the first seven-game consecutive winner with a decision over Natchez, June 5. He has yet to lose. Rhyne Duren, Pine Bluff, is a five-game victor. Ted Gardner, Pine Bluff, trails with 4-0. Ralph Daugherty, El Dorado, and Freddy Bates, Greenville, have posted two wins since rejoining their former mates. Cliff Coggin, Monroe, has won seven but lost two. Everette Hill and Adam Stempowski, Pine Bluff, have recorded seven triumphs but have been thumped four times. Bob Picken, Pine Bluff, has 5-2; Bob Lodkieke, Greenville; George Locher, Clarksdale, and Dan Caccavo, Hot Springs, have 6-3 records. Coggin has fanned 74 to lead his nearest strikeout competitor, Stempowski, with 58. Earl Stephens, Clarksdale, became the first pitcher to hurl 100 innings. He has toiled 107 2-3. Pine Bluff, league leader, is hitting .304. Clarksdale is setting the fielding pace with .959.

Cliff Coggin

Coggin is on the Monroe roster of the Cotton States League as a pitcher although he had worked in the outfield and at first base occasionally. The strong-armed 205-pound six-footer has won eight games while losing two this season, and he tops the league in strikeouts with 87.

Only recently he signed a professional football contract with the Los Angeles Rams and plans to play for the California eleven this fall.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Coggin, Athens, Ga., the fast ball artist played basketball, baseball, and football at Mississippi Southern where he obtained his B. S. degree in physical education. He is playing his first year in professional baseball.

During the war he served 31 and a half months as a naval air corps radio gunner, winning the Air Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross, and a Presidential Citation in the Pacific theater. He asssted in shoot-Pacific theater. He assisted in shooting down four Jap fighters.

BELMONT STAKES TO MIDDLEGROUND

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, June 10.—(AP)—Texas, the largest state in the union, had the biggest horse today in the $91,950 Belmont Stakes as King Ranch's Middleground rambled to a brilliant victory over nine rivals including Hill Prince—the odds on favorite.

It was a stunner for the crowd of 39,152 sweltering customers, who backed Hill Prince down to 17 to 20 favoritism then watched him finish seventh after setting the pace most of the way.

Middleground, the winner of the Kentucky Derby five weeks ago, was second choice this time. He came roaring down the stretch in a thrilling drive under 18-year-old Bill Boland to beat out George D. Widener's Lights Up by a length. C. V. (Sonny) Whitney's Mr. Trouble was third, losing second place by half a length in a photo finish, which showed Brandywine stable's Greek Song fourth by a head.

Just as in the derby, it was in all-Texas combination that carried away the top prize of $61,350 in this 82nd running of the Belmont—final event on the triple crown for three-year-olds.

Boland, owner Robert J. Kleberg, trainer Max Hirsch and Middleground all came from the Lone Star state, and the combination put the flashy chestnut son of Bold Venture - Verguenza smack back into the scramble for 1950 three-year-old championship honors.

Middleground, well rated by Boland through the first mile where he was fourth, didn't pull away until the final sixteenth in the gruelling mile and one-half run. But you could see he was going to make it as the leaders hoofed through the dust around the final turn and into the straight run for the wire.

The winner, clocked in a 2:28 3-5, brought his backers $7.40, $3.60 and $3.20.

Lights Up, who won the Peter Pan Handicap last week, returned $7.50 and $5.50, while Mr. Trouble paid $4.70.

Clifford Mooers' Hawley was fifth, Brookmeade stable's Greek Ship was sixth, then Hill Prince, Hal Price Headley's Lotowhite, and Brookmeade's other entry Sun Glow bringing up the rear.

Monroe, West Monroe Juniors Meet Monday

A baseball game between the Monroe American Legion Junior team and the West Monroe team will be played Monday night at Cloyd Park. Game time is 8 p.m.

For the past few years the clubs have played combined baseball but this year they are to play separate.

Coach George Riser announced his starting hurler as either Dick Campbell, David Wadsworth, or Darrell Johnson. Ike McMullen will be on the receiving end of the battery. Riser also announced that his boys are to meet at 5 p.m. Monday at Legion Memorial Stadium in Monroe for a brief meeting before going on to West Monroe for the game.

Coach Bob McNeely of West Monroe has not announced his probable starting battery. The West Monroe boys are requested to meet at Legion Hall at 9:30 a.m. Monday for a morning practice.

Mangham And Farmerville Play Exhibition Monday

Monday at 8:15 p.m. Mangham of the Delta League and Farmerville of the Big Eight League will play an exhibition baseball game at Labrano Field in Mangham.

The starting hurler for Mangham will be Junior Mercer with a 3-0 record and the catcher will be Moore. Mangham has been beaten only once this year and that defeat came at the hands of Farmerville.

Allen Cross Continues Steady Work At Plate; Johnson Still No. 1 Hurler

By J. P. Friend

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark., June 10.—(Special)—Blasting nine hits in 20 times at bat during the week, Ben (Rosey) Cantrell, Pine Bluff's old pro, regained the Cotton States League batting championship from teammate John Ramm with a mark of .370.

Ben had to go all out to overtake his conquerer of last week, but he made it with a couple of points to spare. "Rosey" hit safely in all five games which added 10 points to his plate mark. Ramm put up a stiff struggle, collecting eight safeties in 20 trips, but could increase his average only four decimals to .368 and second place. Both have played in 45 games. Cantrell has collected 67 hits in 181 times at bat, as compared to 185-68 for Ramm. The Friend News Service figures include games of June 6 and released Saturday.

Another judge, Harry Schwegman, could not keep up the terrific pace of last week, skidding nine points to .349 but good enough for third position. Alex Cosmidis, Hot Springs, is fourth with .336, ten points ahead of Jim Gilbert, Natchez.

Several players who reported late in the league have posted outstanding batting averages. Allen Cross, Monroe, is hitting .369 in 15 games. Another Sport newcomer, Frank Benites, is clipping away at .355 in 10 contests. Bob Barton, Greenville, has a .342 fgiure in 20 games. Dan Phalen, Hot Springs giant and slugging champion, of 1949, moved up to .328 in 16 starts. He has smacked three home runs since rejoining the Bathers.

R. L. (Turkey) Lurk, Monroe pitcher, is sporting a .467 record in 12 games and only 15 times at bat.

Chet Morgan, who has been nursing injuries and guiding the Clarksdale Planters from the sidelines, tops the second division with .324. Dick Adkins, Natchez skipper, picked up 20 points during the last period and moved into seventh place with .322. Jerry Lynch, Greenville, has .316, a gain of six points over last record, followed by Roy Coss, El Dorado, .315, and Pine Bluff's Bob Kurtz, .307, representing a four-point gain since the averages were last released.

The big 10 hitters monopolized the specialized batting departments. Cantrell has the most total bases, 105, and has batted in the most runs, 55. Ramm's 68 hits are high. Schwegman is the No. 1 scorer with 52 tallies. Adkins has colected 17 doubles. Lynch dominates the triple hitters with nine three-baggers. Len Morrison, Monroe, is giving Frank Scarpace, Pine Bluff a race for home run laurels. At present the new Sport outfielder is trailing the Judge by one circuit clout, eight to seven. Ramm stole four bases in a single game and is pulling away from the base stealing field.

Bobby Johnson, Monroe rookie, became the first seven-game consecutive winner with a decision over Natchez, June 5. He has yet to lose. Rhyne Duren, Pine Bluff, is a five-game victor. Ted Gardner, Pine Bluff, trails with 4-0. Ralph Daugherty, El Dorado, and Freddy Bates, Greenville, have posted two wins since rejoining their former mates. Cliff Coggin, Monroe, has won seven but lost two. Everette Hill and Adam Stempowski, Pine Bluff, have recorded seven triumphs but have been thumped four times. Bob Picken, Pine Bluff, has 5-2; Bob Lodkieke, Greenville; George Locher, Clarksdale, and Dan Caccavo, Hot Springs, have 6-3 records. Coggin has fanned 74 to lead his nearest strikeout competitor, Stempowski, with 58. Earl Stephens, Clarksdale, became the first pitcher to hurl 100 innings. He has toiled 107 2-3. Pine Bluff, league leader, is hitting .304. Clarksdale is setting the fielding pace with .959.

Most famous of the Monroe Sports is Cliff Coggin, a native of Alabama, who made a name for himself on the national sports scene at Mississippi Southern College where he established a National Collegiate Association record as a pass catcher with 53 receptions last year, and won a place on the 1949 Associated Press' Little All-America football team.

Cliff Coggin

Coggin is on the Monroe roster of the Cotton States League as a pitcher although he had worked in the outfield and at first base occasionally. The strong-armed 205-pound six-footer has won eight games while losing two this season, and he tops the league in strikeouts with 87.

Only recently he signed a professional football contract with the Los Angeles Rams and plans to play for the California eleven this fall.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Coggin, Athens, Ga., the fast ball artist played basketball, baseball, and football at Mississippi Southern where he obtained his B. S. degree in physical education. He is playing his first year in professional baseball.

During the war he served 31 and a half months as a naval air corps radio gunner, winning the Air Medal, Distinguished Flying Cross, and a Presidential Citation in the Pacific theater. He asssted in shooting down four Jap fighters.

BEGINS VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Davidson and Jimmy Laudenheimer left here last night for a visit to New York City.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, June 10. — (AP) — Business and industrial activity was fully sustained at exceptionally high levels this week. A record output of automobiles and a strong stock market were double-featured attractions.

Aided by good shopping weather over most of the country retail trade was better in terms of general merchandise turnover and demand was especially heavy for vacation items. A highly encouraging factor in this important industry was heavy attendance at various fall showings held in New York and other large cities.

This was in sharp contrast to the situation prevailing at this time last year when the so-called "inventory recession" was in full bloom and merchants and middlemen alike were concentrating on getting stocks down instead of building them up.

The current high rate of employment and income and almost complete lack of signs that either are in danger of any serious fall in the second half of the year, gives merchants a much better background for future operations than they had a year ago.

A highly satisfactory rate of industrial production, generally placid conditions in the labor field, a strong flow of extra and increased dividends for investors in stocks and excellent demand for the largest amount of new securities offered in any week this year, were other features of the business situ-

The price wheel was given a new whirl by a rise of two cents a pound in copper and a series of new hikes in steel scrap and some finished steel products such as sheets and strip. Porterhouse steak at $1.20 a pound in the better New York stores carried housewives' memories back to the black markets of World War Two days.

The Associated Press index of 35 important wholesale commodities rose to new highs for the year four days in a row and stood at the highest point since January 29, 1949 at the close of business on Friday.

While some economists take a rather serious view of the present uptrend in the price of many of the things you use, eat and wear, A. W. Zelomek, a widely known economist specializing in the retail field, thinks it is a temporary condition.

"Unless we are willing to believe the public will soon begin to spend its savings as well as its current income," Zelomek said, "it doesn't make much sense to talk about price inflation developing from current levels.

"The public so far has been conservative; its spending has been in line with income; installments debts have gone up, but sales of soft lines have been poor; i thas not been inflation-minded. And without dipping into savings, it can't spend appreciably more than it has.

"Unless something happens quickly to change the public position or the public attitude, the present period of rising prices is near its end."

The thoroughly unheralded action of General Motors Corp. directors in recommending a new splitup of the common stock sparked a vigorous and sustained rally in the stock market that carried prices to the highest average level in four years and some individual issues to the best position since the fabulous days of 1929.

Blue chip stocks in particular caught the fancy of buyers. The fact that brokers loans did not expand with the heavy purchases of stocks indicated cusotmers were using cash instead of margin facilities to pay for them. This usually indicates investment rather than purely speculative activity and is considered a highly stablizing element.

After losing more than $1 billion from the quoted value of listed shares in the year's worst fall on Monday and the first hour of trading on Tuesday, the market go to its feet with a start and advanced steadily under good leadership the balance of the week.

Sales of 9,542,170 shares were almost double volume in the previous week and turnover in an equally strong bond market of $27,149,800 was more than double the amount of business done last week.

For the first time in the stirring history of the dynamic automobile industry, more than 200,000 cars and trucks were turned out in this country and Canada this week. The exact total of 200,660 units compared with the previous high of around 186,000 in the latter part of May.

This week's work was all the more impressive because it appeared to be spread all around the industry rather evenly. Chrysler, Ford and General Motors are working some of their divisions on Saturday in an effort to meet the great spring demand for new cars.

Some of the independents like Nash and Hudson have added second assembly lines. Nearly all of them reported new sales records of one kind or another—either for this year, a certain week or a certain other period.

This week's production was the equivalent of 20 cars and trucks rolling off the combined assembly lines every minute of every one of the seven days in the week.

The nation's steel mills continued to hum with operations above theoretical capacity for the eighth straight week. Working at 101.3 per cent, the industry turned out 1,931,-000 tons. This compared with last week's rate of 101.5 and tonnage of 1,934,900 last year. When business was trending lower, the mill rate was 89.1 and production stood at 1,642,600 tons.

Building activity showed no signs of a let-up. Heavy contracts awarded totaled $226,729,000 against $206,-467,000 last week and $226,161,000 a year ago. The commerce department reported almost $2,000,000,000 of construction was put in place in May, 14 per cent above April and 20 per cent higher than May, 1949.

Other markers on the business chart held steady at high levels. Freight carloadings dropped from the preceding week but were higher than a year ago. Soft coal output dipped a trifle under seasonal conditions. Crude oil output was steady with little change from last week or last year. There was a sudden drop in paper and paperboard activity, however, but most of it was traceable to seasonal trends.

Business failures dipped to 168 from 214 in the previous week and compared with 165 a year ago.

Bank clearings were sharply above both comparable periods at $14,359,964,000. Brokers loans dipped to $1,434,000,000 from $1,-509,000,000.

INFESTATION OF WEEVILS HEAVY

67 Different Fields Examined By Federal Entomologists

UNIVERSITY, La., June 10.—(Special)—Louisiana cotton now has the largest boll weevil population ever recorded at the Talcording to Rudolph Strong, Louisiana agricultural extension service, lulah laboratory at this date, acassistant entomologist, who reports that during the past week federal entomologists examined 67 different fields of chopped cotton in Madison, finding an average of 657 weevils per acre. Only 284 weevils per acre were found at this date last year.

Cotton fields examined in 11 parishes last week had an infestation of over-wintered weevils that ranged from none to 1620 weevils per acre. Examinations made in the Red River valley area were as follows: two fields in Caddo parish had an average of 780 per acre, 10 fields in Bossier had an average of 415 weevils per acre. One field in Grant parish had 90 weevils per acre, three fields in Rapides had an average of 480 weevils per acre.

In the hill area of northwest Louisiana one field in Claiborne had an average of 550 weevils per acre, and seven fields in Bienville had an average of 271 weevils per acre.

Field examinations made in northeast Louisiana in addition to Madison examinations were as follows: six fields in Ouachita parish had an average of 211 weevils per acre; eight fields in Tensas had an average of 487 weevils per acre. One field in Concordia had 1620 weevils per acre and two fields in Catahoula had an average of 315 weevils per acre.

Aphid infestation increased during the week on both treated and untreated cotton however aphid predators and parasites were active in most fields. Early-planted cotton has made rapid recovery from thrips injury, but the population of thrips on young cotton continued to cause some injury even though the numbers were sharply reduced.

Fleahopper infestations were light in the Shreveport area and no fleahoppers were observed around Monroe. "Rapid plant bugs" are still present in some cotton fields, and a few tarnished plant bugs, as they are called, were noticed in three fields in the Shreveport area. A few small bollworms and some eggs were observed in some treated and untreated fields.

Reports from Texas indicate that conditions are more favorable for a general infestation of leaf worm over the cotton belt than they have been in the past several years.

Cotton growers are urged to keep in touch with their county agents for the latest recommendations and suggestions on insect control and conditions.

REDUCE GRAIN

SAN FRANCISCO, June 10.—(AP)—The Chinese Communists today announced they have reduced the grain tax in "newly-liberated areas," where peasant uprisings and guerrilla outbreaks have been reported.

BEGINS VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Davidson and Jimmy Laudenheimer left here last night for a visit to New York City.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

By G. A. Phillips

NEW YORK, June 10. — (AP) — Business and industrial activity was fully sustained at exceptionally high levels this week. A record output of automobiles and a strong stock market were double-featured attractions.

Aided by good shopping weather over most of the country retail trade was better in terms of general merchandise turnover and demand was especially heavy for vacation items. A highly encouraging factor in this important industry was heavy attendance at various fall showings held in New York and other large cities.

This was in sharp contrast to the situation prevailing at this time last year when the so-called "inventory recession" was in full bloom and merchants and middlemen alike were concentrating on getting stocks down instead of building them up.

The current high rate of employment and income and almost complete lack of signs that either are in danger of any serious fall in the second half of the year, gives merchants a much better background for future operations than they had a year ago.

A highly satisfactory rate of industrial production, generally placid conditions in the labor field, a strong flow of extra and increased dividends for investors in stocks and excellent demand for the largest amount of new securities offered in any week this year, were other features of the business situ-

The price wheel was given a new whirl by a rise of two cents a pound in copper and a series of new hikes in steel scrap and some finished steel products such as sheets and strip. Porterhouse steak at $1.20 a pound in the better New York stores carried housewives' memories back to the black markets of World War Two days.

The Associated Press index of 35 important wholesale commodities rose to new highs for the year four days in a row and stood at the highest point since January 29, 1949 at the close of business on Friday.

While some economists take a rather serious view of the present uptrend in the price of many of the things you use, eat and wear, A. W. Zelomek, a widely known economist specializing in the retail field, thinks it is a temporary condition.

"Unless we are willing to believe the public will soon begin to spend its savings as well as its current income," Zelomek said, "it doesn't make much sense to talk about price inflation developing from current levels.

"The public so far has been conservative; its spending has been in line with income;, installments debts have gone up, but sales of soft lines have been poor; i thas not been inflation-minded. And without dipping into savings, it can't spend appreciably more than it has.

"Unless something happens quickly to change the public position or the public attitude, the present period of rising prices is near its end."

The thoroughly unheralded action of General Motors Corp. directors in recommending a new splitup of the common stock sparked a vigorous and sustained rally in the stock market that carried prices to the highest average level in four years and some individual issues to the best position since the fabulous days of 1929.

Blue chip stocks in particular caught the fancy of buyers. The fact that brokers loans did not expand with the heavy purchases of stocks indicated cusotmers were using cash instead of margin facilities to pay for them. This usually indicates investment rather than purely speculative activity and is considered a highly stabilizing element.

After losing more than $1 billion from the quoted value of listed shares in the year's worst fall on Monday and the first hour of trading on Tuesday, the market go to its feet with a start and advanced steadily under good leadership the balance of the week.

Sales of 9,542,170 shares were almost double volume in the previous week and turnover in an equally strong bond market of $27,149,800 was more than double the amount of business done last week.

For the first time in the stirring history of the dynamic automobile industry, more than 200,000 cars and trucks were turned out in this country and Canada this week. The exact total of 200,660 units compared with the previous high of around 186,000 in the latter part of May.

This week's work was all the more impressive because it appeared to be spread all around the industry rather evenly. Chrysler, Ford and General Motors are working some of their divisions on Saturday in an effort to meet the great spring demand for new cars.

Some of the independents like Nash and Hudson have added second assembly lines. Nearly all of them reported new sales records of one kind or another—either for this year, a certain week or a certain other period.

This week's production was the equivalent of 20 cars and trucks rolling off the combined assembly lines every minute of every one of the seven days in the week.

The nation's steel mills continued to hum with operations above theoretical capacity for the eighth straight week. Working at 101.3 per cent, the industry turned out 1,931,000 tons. This compared with last week's rate of 101.5 and tonnage of 1,934,900 last year. When business was trending lower, the mill rate was 89.1 and production stood at 1,642,600 tons.

Building activity showed no signs of a let-up. Heavy contracts awarded totaled $226,729,000 against $206,467,000 last week and $226,161,000 a year ago. The commerce department reported almost $2,000,000,000 of construction was put in place in May, 14 per cent above April and 20 per cent higher than May, 1949.

Other markers on the business chart held steady at high levels. Freight carloadings dropped from the preceding week but were higher than a year ago. Soft coal output dipped a trifle under seasonal conditions. Crude oil output was steady with little change from last week or last year. There was a sudden drop in paper and paperboard activity, however, but most of it was traceable to seasonal trends.

Business failures dipped to 168 from 214 in the previous week and compared with 165 a year ago.

Bank clearings were sharply above both comparable periods at $14,359,964,000. Brokers loans dipped to $1,434,000,000 from $1,509,000,000.

INFESTATION OF WEEVILS HEAVY

67 Different Fields Examined By Federal Entomologists

UNIVERSITY, La., June 10.—(Special)—Louisiana cotton now has the largest boll weevil population ever recorded at the Talcording to Rudolph Strong, Louisiana agricultural extension service, lulah laboratory at this date, acassistant entomologist, who reports that during the past week federal entomologists examined 67 different fields of chopped cotton in Madison, finding an average of 657 weevils per acre. Only 284 weevils per acre were found at this date last year.

Cotton fields examined in 11 parishes last week had an infestation of over - wintered weevils that ranged from none to 1620 weevils per acre. Examinations made in the Red River valley area were as follows: two fields in Caddo parish had an average of 780 per acre, 10 fields in Bossier had an average of 415 weevils per acre. One field in Grant parish had 90 weevils per acre, three fields in Rapides had an average of 480 weevils per acre.

In the hill area of northwest Louisiana one field in Claiborne had an average of 550 weevils per acre, and seven fields in Bienville had an average of 271 weevils per acre.

Field examinations made in northeast Louisiana in addition to Madison examinations were as follows: six fields in Ouachita parish had an average of 211 weevils per acre; eight fields in Tensas had an average of 487 weevils per acre. One field in Concordia had 1620 weevils per acre and two fields in Catahoula had an average of 315 weevils per acre.

Aphid infestation increased during the week on both treated and untreated cotton however aphid predators and parasites were active in most fields. Early-planted cotton has made rapid recovery from thrips injury, but the population of thrips on young cotton continued to cause some injury even though the numbers were sharply reduced.

Fleahopper infestations were light in the Shreveport area and no fleahoppers were observed around Monroe. "Rapid plant bugs" are still present in some cotton fields, and a few tarnished plant bugs, as they are called, were noticed in three fields in the Shreveport area. A few small bollworms and some eggs were observed in some treated and untreated fields.

Reports from Texas indicate that conditions are more favorable for a general infestation of leaf worm over the cotton belt than they have been in the past several years.

Cotton growers are urged to keep in touch with their county agents for the latest recommendations and suggestions on insect control and conditions.

Expects Request To End Segregation Of Negroes

By Paul M. Yost

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The supreme court probably will be asked in its next term to strike a final, knockout blow at segregation of Negroes.

But the court is traditionally reluctant to take action so sweeping unless it is absolutely unavoidable. Therefore it is a good guess that such a request will not be granted in the immediate future.

The court took a lusty swing at segregation in two decisions announced last Monday as the 1949-50 term ended. Chief Justice Vinson, speaking for himself and all his associate justices, banned segregation as practiced at the Texas and Oklahoma State Universities.

Basis of the decisions was that the two universities did not provide truly equal opportunities to Negroes. While emphasizing that the decisions applied only to the circumstances involved in the cases of the two, Vinson spoke these 13 possibly fateful words:

"The fourteenth amendment precludes differences in treatment by the state based upon race."

Many lawyers doubt that the ruling will be restricted in the future to state universities. They believed that in time it will be extended to "unequal" high schools, grade schools, and other tax - financed state and municipal services.

Attorneys believe that many suits will be filed by Negroes in lower federal courts, protesting that different treatment is given them because of race. Some of these suits eventually will reach the supreme court and the decision on any extension of coverage of the ruling may then be made.

However, new decisions in such cases presumably would be merely virtual repetitions of last Monday's rulings: If the state (or county or municipality) is not giving Negroes the same treatment as it gives white in tax-supported services, it must admit the Negroes to white school, cafeterias, libraries, parks, swimming pools and the like.

With this background in mind, some close observers of the supreme court's work now predict another type of case will be rushed through lower courts to the highest tribunal for the more important knockout plea.

The case would be one in which a state contends it is providing truly equal facilities for Negroes and whites, and Negroes concede that the facilities are equal.

This could give Negroes the basis for a demand that the supreme court declare any and all segregation is in itself a form of discrimination and inequality which is banned by the fourteenth amendment.

The court also would be asked again to overturn an 1896 decision that segregation is constitutional as long as "separate but equal" facilities are provided for Negroes. The justices were asked to do this in the Oklahoma and Texas cases. But they did not, explaining it was not necessary to do so to decide the cases.

Vinson in his opinion in the Texas University case put it this way:

"We have frequently reiterated that this court will decide constitutional questions only when necessary to the disposition of the case at hand, and that such decisions will be drawn as narrowly as possible."

Then, too, should the court take up some new case in which white and Negro facilities are concedely equal, it could, of course, reaffirm the 1896 decision and uphold validity of separation of the races.

At the same time a decision against any and all segregation could raise a new issue graver than any racial problem, one well-informed court observer said.

This is the unsolved question of the supreme court's power to enforce its rulings against a state. After 160 years of the court's existence this power is still doubtful.

The question was raised after Georgia's Governor Herman Talmadge in commenting on the supreme court's Monday decisions declared that "as long as I am your governor, Negroes will not be admitted to white schools" (in Georgia).

Back in 1793 the supreme court upheld a damage claim filed against Georgia by two citizens of South Carolina. The Georgia house of representatives replied to the supreme court's decision by passing a special bill.

The bill provided that any federal marshal who tried to serve any paper issued by the supreme court in the damage case would be "guilty of felony and shall suffer death, without benefit of clergy, by being hanged."

No one was hanged, and the outcome of the case is obscure because the eleventh amendment to the constitution was passed soon afterward and the case was largely forgotten. The amendment exempts a state from suit by a citizen of another state.

Southern railroads say they will comply with the supreme court's third segregation decision announced last Monday. In this case the court ordered an end to segregation of Negroes in dining cars. The issue was decided unanimously by all eight justices who took part. Justice Clark, the former attorney general, disqualified himself.

In contrast to the railroads, Texas and Louisiana are expected to press a fight in congress to overturn the supreme court's Monday decisions that the federal government has top rights over their oil-rich tidelands. Pending legislation would give the states full title to their shore lands.

WATSON ADDRESS IS SLATED HERE

National Affairs Advisor Will Speak To 100 Members Of C. of C. Wednesday

Thomas V. Watson, National Affairs Advisor of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak to more than 100 members of the National Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a dinner meeting Wednesday, June 14, at 7 p.m. in the Cajun Room of the Rendezvous.

Mr. Watson, an outstanding authority on national legislation, keeps in daily contact with developments at the Nation's Capitol. He will bring to Chamber members last minute reports on such important Congressional problems as FEPC, taxes, foreign aid, changes in social security legislation and the political outlook. He will also give his audience an inside view of the prospects for further deficit spending. With businessmen more conscious than ever before of the government's attempts to exert more and farther reaching controls over private business, much interest should be aroused by Mr. Watson's remarks about ways in which businessmen may resist the trend towards more socialism in government.

At the conclusion of his address, those in attendance will be given an opportunity to ask questions regarding any phase of national legislation. Thos. L. Firnberg, chairman of the Chamber's National Affairs Committee, will preside at the meeting.

Tickets for the dinner, at $1.65 per plate, may be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce office. Because of a limited seating capacity, only 130 tickets will be sold. Attendance is not limited to members of the Chamber's National Affairs Committee, Mr. Firnberg stated, and anyone is welcome.

Says Bushman Won't Get Wonder Hormone

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP)—Bushman won't get any acth-the wonder hormone — but he may pull through anyway.

That is the word today from Dr. Lester Fisher head veterinarian at the Lincoln Park zoo after observing the aged, 550-pound gorilla—most valuable animal in the world.

Bushman collapsed in his cage Thursday and zoo officials feared he might be dying. They put digitalis in his food to stimulate his weakened heart. The animal is 22 years old, equivalent to a man of 70.

But today Dr. Fisher said Bushman appears brighter and seems to be recovering.

Bushman's trouble, Dr. Fisher opines, is—age, heat ,heart and arthritis. The temperature at Chicago was 91 degrees Thursday.

Dr. Fisher said zoo officials considered seeking some acth, but had to give up the idea. Acth must be injected by hypodermic needle, and no one would risk jabbing a needle even into a sick Bushman.

But he stood up once today. And that sparked hopes that Bushman will make it.

U. S. S. R. SEEKS TO JOIN CHINESE

Russian-Born American Says Soviets Seeking To Unify Russia-China

SEATTLE, June 10. —(AP)— A Russian-born American professor says the U. S. S. R. has imported a million Chinese workers and thousands of students in a full-scale, long-term drive to unify the Soviet and Chinese empires.

This project, says Dr. Ivar Spector of the University of Washington's Far Eastern department, is just one move in a gradual "de-Europeanization" of Russia to cast its lot with Asia.

Spector, who heads a staff translating some 50 Soviet publications, culled these conclusions.

1. The Russians, anxious to avoid "Titoism" in China, are constantly wooing the Chinese with measures that even include suggestions for a common alphabet.

2. They have transplanted minorities in a ruthless shifting of their own population for security purposes.

3. Siberian areas opposite Alaska have been built up wth Slavic residents now numbering "well in excess of the population of Alaska."

4. The Russian plan of spreading industrial centers in strategic border areas has been speeded, with some Soviet centers so new they are not on western maps.

5. The Kremlin is trying to use great churches of the world in a "peace crusade," but meantime is preparing for war on a vast scale.

6. And Russia is building up sports and civilian-defense organizations that are training citizens in skills useful for guerrilla warfare.

Spector, a "White Russian" who came to this country during the Russian civil war and became an American citizen in 1927, directs translation of 50 Soviet publications the university gets by subscription from Moscow or through agencies in New York.

White Asks People To Back Delegate Election

Representative R. C. White, Jr., recently elected to the state legislature from this district, yesterday called upon the people to join in backing a movement to elect delegates to the proposed constitutional convention.

The statement in full said:

"A bill has been introduced calling for a constitutional convention to be held in the early part of 1951. If this passes the legislature it will be necessary for the people to vote on the matter in the general elections in November to decide whether the convention is or is not to be called. What I do not like about the present resolution is that 43 out of 143 delegates are to be appointed. I, and others feel, that the only fair thing is to elect every delegate. We plan to introduce an amendment which will call for 139 elected delegates to correspond to the two houses of the legislature. If this amendment is not accepted, we plan to offer another amendment requiring that after the convention has met and the constitution has been re-drawn and amended, that it then be placed before the people of the state to decide whether they want to accept it or not.

"The free lunch program will come up this week. I am definitely in favor of the free lunch program being continued, but for needy children only. I do not believe that the people of Ouachita Parish who are able to feed their own children are in favor of them receiving free lunches from the state."

Set Services For Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—Funeral services for Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg wife of the Michigan Republican senator who died early today, will be held here Monday.

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the senate, will conduct the rites (4:30 p.m. E. S. T.) at Foundry Methodist Church. Interment services will be held later at Lindenwood cemetery, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mrs. Vandenberg, 67, underwent two major operations three years ago and since then has had a series of serious illnesses. Senator Vandenberg and his three children were with her when she died at their apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Stablehand And Nine Horses Die In Blaze

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Fire raced through a stable last night and killed a stablehand and nine race horses, including one valued at more than $100,000.

The flames ravaged a big barn on the Emil Denemark farm near suburban Hinsdale. Frank Nemecek, 48, a groom, died trying to rescue the animals.

Denemark, a Chicago automobile dealer, estimated his loss at $385,000.

Curtice, winner of last year's $78,850 Washington Park Futurity, died. Denemark said he recently refused an offer of $100,000 for Curtice.

Eight ponies and colts also died in the fire.

A bolt of lightning fired the stable and the flames spread rapidly through 200 tons of hay stored in the loft.

SEC TO CONSIDER GRID TELEVISION

Executive Committee Meets Today To Debate Controversial Subject

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 10.—(AP)—Whether the Southeastern Conference will permit television of its football games this fall probably will be decided here tomorrow.

The SEC executive committee meets to take up that question.

SEC athletic directors, meeting here last month, did nothing official on the television question. But their discussions probably will have substantial weight before the committee.

The executive committee, under SEC rules, can recommend a course of action for this fall. Such a recommendation usually gets full acceptance, although no official conference action is probable before the annual meeting next Dec. 8 at Atlanta.

A well-informed SEC source, who could not be quoted by name, says the committee will bar television of all football games this fall except those played at Georgia Tech's home field in Atlanta.

Tech, this source explained, has sold all the seats in its small stadium and will give television rights as a public service. The SEC had no rules governing television when this step was taken.

Other schools, under the committee plan, would ban television until the day after games are played. This would allow fans to see the contests, but not as live telecasts.

This same source said several overtures had been made for televising SEC football games. One, by a Texas oil concern, would have included games by most of the SEC football powers.

Pressure for allowing television has been heavy at Alabama, Tulane, Louisiana State and Kentucky.

Aside from its television decision, the executive committee will handle only routine matters.

Members are Dr. F. T. Mitchell, Mississippi State; Dr. J. H. Miller, University of Florida; Dr. H. W. Stoke, Louisiana State; Dr. John M. Gallalee, University of Alabama, and Dr. N. W. Dougherty, University of Tennessee, secretary.

Indianapolis Winner To Race Again Today

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Fame hasn't slowed up Johnny Parsons, winner of the Indianapolis speedway classic—he will race tomorrow in two cities—Milwaukee and Chicago.

The Van Nuys, Calif., pilot will drive in a 100-mile big car race at Milwaukee's state fair park tomorrow afternoon. Then, he is scheduled to appear tomorrow night in the midget auto races at Chicago's soldier field.

Parsons, the only driver to win the midget crown one year and the national triple-A crown the next, will introduce his own tiny Offenhausen to Chicago fans. He says his swift blue bug cost about $6,500.

Although racing for about 10 years, 31-year-old Parsons' triumph in the abbreviated "500" Memorial day was only his second start in the big race.

The mountain bluebird was believed sacred by Navajo Indians.

Cleveland Press Service Is Enjoying Near Monopoly

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A senate committee reported today that the Continental Press Service of Cleveland enjoys a "near monopoly" on the distribution of race news used by bookmakers over the country.

The senate was told that some California bookies, cut off from direct wire loops, get Continental's information by a relay from a broadcasting station in Mexico.

The commerce committee is urging adoption of a bill to outlaw the sending of much pre-race information across state lines. It said Continental is the major source of data for the illegal bet-taking—an industry rated at $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year.

Wire and telephone communications companies, press services and daily newspapers also are useful to the bookies, the committee said. But it emphasized that the gathering, transmission and publication of racing news is entirely legal.

The report declared there is a "practical if not legal flaw" in denials made by Continental's general manager, Thomas Kelly of Chicago. Kelly has said he has no knowledge of his service being used by bookmakers.

Brushing aside this claim, the senate body said:

"Continental does choose its distributors, assigns them exclusive territory, and charges them for service on the basis of the size and amount of business done in each territory.

"The facts support the thesis that Continental today has a near monopoly in the transmission of racing news which ultimately reaches the bookmakers in the country."

As long as press associations and racing papers may continue to send racing information, the report said, there will remain available to bookmakers the data on which they can do business.

"It is equally obvious from the testimony," the committee added, "that there is a commingling and intermingling of interests and problems between such divergent and different operations as Continental and the press associations; Continental and the telegraph and telephone carriers; the press associations and the racing publications."

The report listed various communications media in what it called the order of their importance to bookmakers, as follows: (1) Continental; (2) Western Union Telegraph Co. (3) American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (4) Triangle Publication, Publishers of the daily racing form and the Morning Telegraph, New York; (5) Associated Press, United Press and International News Service; (6) Transradio Press.

The pending bill, approved by the committee headed by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Colo.), has been blocked from senate action by Sen. McCarran (D.-Nev.), chairman of the judiciary committee.

It would impose criminal penalties on the interstate sending or receiving of "gambling information" on horse and dog racing. This would include pre-race news on bets and gambling odds, changes in odds, scratches, jockey changes, weights, and probable winners. Once the race was started, the news could be sent legally.

California came in for special attention in the report. Under state law, communications companies may not run wire-line circuits into the state.

Nevertheless, the report said, racing news distributors in "part of California" receive Continental's news "by means of a high-power radio tuned in on a broadcasting station in Mexico, and relay the information to bookmakers by telephone."

The committee did not state where the receiver was located, but it was understood to be Los Angeles. Elsewhere in California race news "appears to be obtained" by long - distance telephone. Bookmakers in Detroit, Mich., seem to get their news by telephone also, it was said.

While there have been "difficulties and delays" in moving race news from California's big tracks, the report added, this apparently is being accomplished by "a combination of clandestine observations sent in by telephone and pirating from the wire of a regular press association."

Registration Is Still Open For La. History

Registration is still open for the course in Louisiana History which is being offered this summer at Northeast Junior College through the general extension division of Louisiana State University.

June 17 is the last day to enroll in the class which is now in operation, A. S. Huffman, director of extension work here, announced.

Instructor of the course is W. C. Honeycutt, assistant professor of social sciences at N. J. C.

The history class was secured primarily to assist in meeting the state certification requirements for in-service teachers of this area. In addition to those who hold temporary certificates, other teachers may wish to earn more college hours. Regular junior college students are not eligible to schedule this course for credit since it is above the sophomore level, Huffman explained.

The class is scheduled to meet five hours each week for nine weeks. The time is from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday and from 9 to 12 a.m. on Saturday.

Cost of the course, which carries three semester hours of credit, is $15.

Wis. Republicans Laud McCarthy's Red Charges

MILWAUKEE, June 10. —(AP)— Wisconsin Republicans today gave Senator McCarthy (R. - Wis.) a hearty pat on the back for pressing his charges of Communist influence in the state department.

Delegates to the state G. O. P. convention declared in a resolution adopted amid cheers and loud applause.

"We do most heartily commend and encourage the determined and untiring efforts of Senator McCarthy to expose, root out and destroy the treasonable, communistic, disloya' elements now playing such a dominant role in the present Democratic administration."

McCarthy gave the keynote speech at the convention Friday.

The endorsement of McCarthy's campaign followed adoption by the convention of a platform calling for agricultural parity, changes in the veterans' housing law and a four year term for state constitutional offices.

Only delegate to voice objection to the McCarthy resolution was Perry Stearns of Milwaukee a candidate for nomination to the U. S. senate seat of Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican. Catcalls and boos greeted Stearns' statement that "I am a Republican but an American first. Sen. McCarthy's program is divisive and tends to divide the Republican party."

BEAUTY PAGEANT WILL BE STAGED

Winner Will Be Contestant For Title Of 'Miss Louisiana'

The night of June 16 will be an important one in the life of at least one Monroe or West Monroe beauty. That's the night of the Twin Cities Beauty Pageant, marking the selection of the prettiest and most talented girl in this area as a contestant for the title "Miss Louisiana."

Plans for the entertainment part of the evening's activities have already been made, with the program committee of the Monroe-West Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event, rea lying a lineup of top talent for the show.

The high point of the program, of course, will be the girls who will vie for the title.

Two more Monroe young ladies have been selected by sponsoring firms to represent them in the Twin Cities finals. Both working girls, they are Doris Williamson, 21 year old secretary at Olcott-Stone Motors, who will sponsor her, and 19 year old Mary Lillian McLaughlin, who works at the Clyde Nash Insurance Agency, and is sponsored by Holloway and Thompson.

Doris, who lives at 309 Stubbs in Monroe, is a native "Arkie." She was born in Eldorado, and moved shortly after to Bastrop, where she lived before coming to Monroe.

At one time, Doris wanted to become a doctor. Right now, she says, "I'm a secretary. My ambition at the moment is to become a better secretary."

She's not engaged, not going steady, but not overlooking the possibility of marriage. Doris adds with a smile, "that'll have to wait for the right man."

Holloway and Thompson's entry in the beauty derby, petite Mary Lillian McLaughlin, lives at 1610 South Grand St. She is a native-born Monroyan, and lives with her aunt.

Her hobbies are mostly outdoor sports, swimming and boatriding leading the rest.

Her future plans? Marriage, eventually, she imagines, "but it takes two, and the other half hasn't made his appearance yet."

The contestants, eight to date, approved by the entries committee, will appear on the stage of Neville Auditorium June 16, in the only local contest officially connected with the annual Miss America Pageant.

Tickets for the affair are available now from any member of the Junior Chamber. The admission price is $1.20, tax included.

Dollars For Negro Schools Will Cost South Billion

By Charles Barrett

ATLANTA, June 10. —(AP)— Equal education for Negroes is a volcano on which the south slept for half a century.

Now the volcano has erupted into a billion-dollar problem.

One billion dollars is the best available estimate of the total difference between educational facilities for whites and Negroes in 17 southern and border states today —from kindergarten through college.

The figure raises a cloud for the south in the wake of U. S. supreme court decisions this week.

The high court ruled unanimously and emphatically, in Texas and Oklahoma cases, that states must provide equal education for Negroes in white institutions if necessary.

Each time the supreme court flashes its red warning signals, enforcing equality, uneasiness spreads across the south. More than a dozen equality suits are pending now in lower courts in southern states.

Increasing the headaches, the south's white schools are superior to Negro schools, but below the average for the nation; the south is the region least able to pay for either.

Interviews with educators and other objective leaders this week indicated these are some of the answers that will develop:

First, some racial barriers will fall in college graduate education. More and more states will admit Negroes to white medical schools, and such.

The cost of providing duplicate graduate facilities for Negroes in each field in each state is all but prohibitive.

Second, there will be little if any quick breakdown of segregation at the undergraduate level—and absolutely none in public grade schools in the south.

But to preserve segregation, lagging states will speed sharply their equalization of Negro schools.

Many southerners think if real progress is shown toward equalization, Negroes will go easy on court demands for immediate, one-swoop equality.

Dr. George Mitchell, executive director of the southern regional council, an inter-racial group promoting equality, saw two dangers if the south fights for segregation by raising huge sums to provide complete separate college facilities for Negroes:

1. Courts could declare the separate facility still is not truly equal. He viewed the chance of courts finding real equality in most cases "very slim."

2. Or the supreme court some day still could wipe out segregation itself as unequal and illegal, an issue the court did not answer this week.

In either case, he said, millions would have been spent in a fruitless effort.

In some states inequality reaches into every nook and corner of education: expense per student, teacher salaries, textbooks, buildings, bus transportation, length of term.

The Southern Regional Council estimated the cost of equalizing school buildings alone in 17 states practicing segregation in 1949 at $726,423,224.

In 1945-46, latest complete figures available, the difference in annual expenditures per pupil totaled $116,571,454.

These figures included nothing for colleges and universities. Today there is no state-supported Negro medical school in the south, no Negro schools offering Ph. D. about $144,000,000. White state have no Negro law schools. The cost of establishing Negro medical schools in 12 states alone is estimated by the board of control for southern regional education at about $144,000,000. white state universities over 20 to 35 Ph. D. degrees.

Superintendent M. D. Collins of Georgia's public school system figured $100,000,000 is the minimum to equalize Negro public schools alone in this state; an Atlanta constitution writer put the figure at $175,000,000.

The South Carolina Negro Teachers Association, in a survey with a Negro editor and other leaders, estimated the cost of equalizing public schools and colleges in that state at $110,000,000.

In Louisiana, a statewide study in 1947 showed a difference in public school buildings alone of $30,000,000.

Mississippi reported a $7,000,000 increase in school appropriations this year with $6,000,000 earmarked for Negroes. In 1945-46, Mississippi spent $75.19 per white pupil, $14.74 per Negro.

LOGTOWN SCHOOL 4-H CLUB GATHERING

Members of the Logtown 4-H Club pose for a picture with seven young stockmen from the club. Also in the group are Superintendent Mack Avants, School Board member W. A. Calloway, J. J. Joyce, county agent, A. D. Fitzgerald, State Swine Specialist, Robert M. Childress, assistant county agent, Miss Marie Filhiol, principal of the Logtown school, Teacher A. S. Lewis and fathers of club members.

PIGS GIVEN TO 4-H CLUB BOYS

Will Raise Them Under Recommendations Of Extension Department

Seven young members of the Logtown 4-H Club have been made mighty happy as the result of a special swine demonstration sponsored jointly by the agriculture extension service and the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Each of the seven boys has been given one gilt, or female pig, under condition that he raise it in accordance with the recommendations of the extension department.

The boys are taught how to vaccinate their pigs for hog cholera, how to dip them in benzine hexachloride to eliminate lice and mange, and the proper use of sodium flouride in the feed to rid the pigs of worms.

A complete record of his pig project from the time that the gilt is received will give him an opportunity to compete for an out-of-state trip in his third year of the project.

The boys doing the best jobs in feeding their charges will compete for prizes of pig raising equipment at the Ouachita Parish Fair, beginning October 9.

The boys who received the pigs are Charles Hackney, Truett Lenard, Wayne Eppinette, Wayne White, Jerry Pender, Harold Simmons and James Turnbow, all of Bosco.

Local leaders of the Logtown group are Miss Marie Filhiol, Mrs. A. T. Stout, Mrs. J. B. Filhiol, Mrs. Ray Jones and A. S. Lewis.

Expects Request To End Segregation Of Negroes

By Paul M. Yost

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—The supreme court probably will be asked in its next term to strike a final, knockout blow at segregation of Negroes.

But the court is traditionally reluctant to take action so sweeping unless it is absolutely unavoidable. Therefore it is a good guess that such a request will not be granted in the immediate future.

The court took a lusty swing at segregation in two decisions announced last Monday as the 1949-50 term ended. Chief Justice Vinson, speaking for himself and all his associate justices, banned segregation as practiced at the Texas and Oklahoma State Universities.

Basis of the decisions was that the two universities did not provide truly equal opportunities to Negroes. While emphasizing that the decisions applied only to the circumstances involved in the cases of the two, Vinson spoke these 13 possibly fateful words:

"The fourteenth amendment precludes differences in treatment by the state based upon race."

Many lawyers doubt that the ruling will be restricted in the future to state universities. They believed that in time it will be extended to "unequal" high schools, grade schools, and other tax - financed state and municipal services.

Attorneys believe that many suits will be filed by Negroes in lower federal courts, protesting that different treatment is given them because of race. Some of these suits eventually will reach the supreme court and the decision on any extension of coverage of the ruling may then be made.

However, new decisions in such cases presumably would be merely virtual repetitions of last Monday's rulings: If the state (or county or municipality) is not giving Negroes the same treatment as it gives white in tax-supported services, it must admit the Negroes to white school, cafeterias, libraries, parks, swimming pools and the like.

With this background in mind, some close observers of the supreme court's work now predict another type of case will be rushed through lower courts to the highest tribunal for the more important knockout plea.

The case would be one in which a state contends it is providing truly equal facilities for Negroes and whites, and Negroes concede that the facilities are equal.

This could give Negroes the basis for a demand that the supreme court declare any and all segregation is in itself a form of discrimination and inequality which is banned by the fourteenth amendment.

The court also would be asked again to overturn an 1896 decision that segregation is constitutional as long as "separate but equal" facilities are provided for Negroes. The justices were asked to do this in the Oklahoma and Texas cases. But they did not, explaining it was not necessary to do so to decide the cases.

Vinson in his opinion in the Texas University case put it this way:

"We have frequently reiterated that this court will decide constitutional questions only when necessary to the disposition of the case at hand, and that such decisions will be drawn as narrowly as possible."

Then, too, should the court take up some new case in which white and Negro facilities are concedely equal, it could, of course, reaffirm the 1896 decision and uphold validity of separation of the races.

At the same time a decision against any and all segregation could raise a new issue graver than any racial problem, one well-informed court observer said.

This is the unsolved question of the supreme court's power to enforce its rulings against a state. After 160 years of the court's existence this power is still doubtful.

The question was raised after Georgia's Governor Herman Talmadge in commenting on the supreme court's Monday decisions declared that "as long as I am your governor, Negroes will not be admitted to white schools" (in Georgia).

Back in 1793 the supreme court upheld a damage claim filed against Georgia by two citizens of South Carolina. The Georgia house of representatives replied to the supreme court's decision by passing a special bill.

The bill provided that any federal marshal who tried to serve any paper issued by the supreme court in the damage case would be "guilty of felony and shall suffer death, without benefit of clergy, by being hanged."

No one was hanged, and the outcome of the case is obscure because the eleventh amendment to the constitution was passed soon afterward and the case was largely forgotten. The amendment exempts a state from suit by a citizen of another state.

Southern railroads say they will comply with the supreme court's third segregation decision announced last Monday. In this case the court ordered an end to segregation of Negroes in dining cars. The issue was decided unanimously by all eight justices who took part. Justice Clark, the former attorney general, disqualified himself.

In contrast to the railroads, Texas and Louisiana are expected to press a fight in congress to overturn the supreme court's Monday decisions that the federal government has top rights over their oil-rich tidelands. Pending legislation would give the states full title to their shore lands.

WATSON ADDRESS IS SLATED HERE

National Affairs Advisor Will Speak To 100 Members Of C. of C. Wednesday

Thomas V. Watson, National Affairs Advisor of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak to more than 100 members of the National Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Commerce at a dinner meeting Wednesday, June 14, at 7 p.m. in the Cajun Room of the Rendezvous.

Mr. Watson, an outstanding authority on national legislation, keeps in daily contact with developments at the Nation's Capitol. He will bring to Chamber members last minute reports on such important Congressional problems as FEPC, taxes, foreign aid, changes in social security legislation and the political outlook. He will also give his audience an inside view of the prospects for further deficit spending. With businessmen more conscious than ever before of the government's attempts to exert more and farther reaching controls over private business, much interest should be aroused by Mr. Watson's remarks about ways in which businessmen may resist the trend towards more socialism in government.

At the conclusion of his address, those in attendance will be given an opportunity to ask questions regarding any phase of national legislation. Thos. L. Firnberg, chairman of the Chamber's National Affairs Committee, will preside at the meeting.

Tickets for the dinner, at $1.65 per plate, may be obtained from the Chamber of Commerce office. Because of a limited seating capacity, only 130 tickets will be sold. Attendance is not limited to members of the Chamber's National Affairs Committee, Mr. Firnberg stated, and anyone is welcome.

Says Bushman Won't Get Wonder Hormone

CHICAGO, June 10.—(AP)—Bushman won't get any acth-the wonder hormone — but he may pull through anyway.

That is the word today from Dr. Lester Fisher head veterinarian at the Lincoln Park zoo after observing the aged, 550-pound gorilla—most valuable animal in the world.

Bushman collapsed in his cage Thursday and zoo officials feared he might be dying. They put digitalis in his food to stimulate his weakened heart. The animal is 22 years old, equivalent to a man of 70.

But today Dr. Fisher said Bushman appears brighter and seems to be recovering.

Bushman's trouble, Dr. Fisher opines, is—age, heat ,heart and arthritis. The temperature at Chicago was 91 degrees Thursday.

Dr. Fisher said zoo officials considered seeking some acth, but had to give up the idea. Acth must be injected by hypodermic needle, and no one would risk jabbing a needle even into a sick Bushman.

But he stood up once today. And that sparked hopes that Bushman will make it.

The figure raises a cloud for the south in the wake of U. S. supreme court decisions this week.

The high court ruled unanimously and emphatically, in Texas and Oklahoma cases, that states must provide equal education for Negroes in white institutions if necessary.

Each time the supreme court flashes its red warning signals, enforcing equality, uneasiness spreads across the south. More than a dozen equality suits are pending now in lower courts in southern states.

Increasing the headaches, the south's white schools are superior to Negro schools, but below the average for the nation; the south is the region least able to pay for either.

Interviews with educators and other objective leaders this week indicated these are some of the answers that will develop:

First, some racial barriers will fall in college graduate education. More and more states will admit Negroes to white medical schools, and such.

The cost of providing duplicate graduate facilities for Negroes in each field in each state is all but prohibitive.

Second, there will be little if any quick breakdown of segregation at the undergraduate level—and absolutely none in public grade schools in the south.

But to preserve segregation, lagging states will speed sharply their equalization of Negro schools.

Many southerners think if real progress is shown toward equalization, Negroes will go easy on court demands for immediate, one-swoop equality.

Dr. George Mitchell, executive director of the southern regional council, an inter-racial group promoting equality, saw two dangers if the south fights for segregation by raising huge sums to provide complete separate college facilities for Negroes:

1. Courts could declare the separate facility still is not truly equal. He viewed the chance of courts finding real equality in most cases "very slim."

2. Or the supreme court some day still could wipe out segregation itself as unequal and illegal, an issue the court did not answer this week.

In either case, he said, millions would have been spent in a fruitless effort.

In some states inequality reaches into every nook and corner of education: expense per student, teacher salaries, textbooks, buildings, bus transportation, length of term.

The Southern Regional Council estimated the cost of equalizing school buildings alone in 17 states practicing segregation in 1949 at $726,423,224.

In 1945-46, latest complete figures available, the difference in annual expenditures per pupil totaled $116,571,454.

These figures included nothing for colleges and universities. Today there is no state-supported Negro medical school in the south, no Negro schools offering Ph. D. about $144,000,000. White state have no Negro law schools. The cost of establishing Negro medical schools in 12 states alone is estimated by the board of control for southern regional education at about $144,000,000. white state universities over 20 to 35 Ph. D. degrees.

Superintendent M. D. Collins of Georgia's public school system figured $100,000,000 is the minimum to equalize Negro public schools alone in this state; an Atlanta constitution writer put the figure at $175,000,000.

The South Carolina Negro Teachers Association, in a survey with a Negro editor and other leaders, estimated the cost of equalizing public schools and colleges in that state at $110,000,000.

In Louisiana, a statewide study in 1947 showed a difference in public school buildings alone of $30,000,000.

Mississippi reported a $7,000,000 increase in school appropriations this year with $6,000,000 earmarked for Negroes. In 1945-46, Mississippi spent $75.19 per white pupil, $14.74 per Negro.

U.S.S.R. SEEKS TO JOIN CHINESE

Russian-Born American Says Soviets Seeking To Unify Russia-China

SEATTLE, June 10. —(AP)— A Russian-born American professor says the U. S. S. R. has imported a million Chinese workers and thousands of students in a full-scale, long-term drive to unify the Soviet and Chinese empires.

This project, says Dr. Ivar Spector of the University of Washington's Far Eastern department, is just one move in a gradual "de-Europeanization" of Russia to cast its lot with Asia.

Spector, who heads a staff translating some 50 Soviet publications, culled these conclusions.

1. The Russians, anxious to avoid "Titoism" in China, are constantly wooing the Chinese with measures that even include suggestions for a common alphabet.

2. They have transplanted minorities in a ruthless shifting of their own population for security purposes.

3. Siberian areas opposite Alaska have been built up wth Slavic residents now numbering "well in excess of the population of Alaska."

4. The Russian plan of spreading industrial centers in strategic border areas has been speeded, with some Soviet centers so new they are not on western maps.

5. The Kremlin is trying to use great churches of the world in a "peace crusade," but meantime is preparing for war on a vast scale.

6. And Russia is building up sports and civilian-defense organizations that are training citizens in skills useful for guerrilla warfare.

Spector, a "White Russian" who came to this country during the Russian civil war and became an American citizen in 1927, directs translation of 50 Soviet publications the university gets by subscription from Moscow or through agencies in New York.

White Asks People To Back Delegate Election

Representative R. C. White, Jr., recently elected to the state legislature from this district, yesterday called upon the people to join in backing a movement to elect delegates to the proposed constitutional convention.

The statement in full said:

"A bill has been introduced calling for a constitutional convention to be held in the early part of 1951. If this passes the legislature it will be necessary for the people to vote on the matter in the general elections in November to decide whether the convention is or is not to be called. What I do not like about the present resolution is that 43 out of 143 delegates are to be appointed. I, and others feel, that the only fair thing is to elect every delegate. We plan to introduce an amendment which will call for 139 elected delegates to correspond to the two houses of the legislature. If this amendment is not accepted, we plan to offer another amendment requiring that after the convention has met and the constitution has been re-drawn and amended, that it then be placed before the people of the state to decide whether they want to accept it or not.

"The free lunch program will come up this week. I am definitely in favor of the free lunch program being continued, but for needy children only. I do not believe that the people of Ouachita Parish who are able to feed their own children are in favor of them receiving free lunches from the state."

Set Services For Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)— Funeral services for Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg wife of the Michigan Republican senator who died early today, will be held here Monday.

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the senate, will conduct the rites (4:30 p.m. E. S. T.) at Foundry Methodist Church. Interment services will be held later at Lindenwood cemetery, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mrs. Vandenberg, 67, underwent two major operations three years ago and since then has had a series of serious illnesses. Senator Vandenberg and his three children were with her when she died at their apartment in the Wardman Park Hotel.

Stablehand And Nine Horses Die In Blaze

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Fire raced through a stable last night and killed a stablehand and nine race horses, including one valued at more than $100,000.

The flames ravaged a big barn on the Emil Denemark farm near suburban Hinsdale. Frank Nemecek, 48, a groom, died trying to rescue the animals.

Denemark, a Chicago automobile dealer, estimated his loss at $385,000.

Curtice, winner of last year's $78,850 Washington Park Futurity, died. Denemark said he recently refused an offer of $100,000 for Curtice.

Eight ponies and colts also died in the fire.

A bolt of lightning fired the stable and the flames spread rapidly through 200 tons of hay stored in the loft.

SEC TO CONSIDER GRID TELEVISION

Executive Committee Meets Today To Debate Controversial Subject

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 10.—(AP)—Whether the Southeastern Conference will permit television of its football games this fall probably will be decided here tomorrow.

The SEC executive committee meets to take up that question.

SEC athletic directors, meeting here last month, did nothing official on the television question. But their discussions probably will have substantial weight before the committee.

The executive committee, under SEC rules, can recommend a course of action for this fall. Such a recommendation usually gets full acceptance, although no official conference action is probable before the annual meeting next Dec. 8 at Atlanta.

A well-informed SEC source, who could not be quoted by name, says the committee will bar television of all football games this fall except those played at Georgia Tech's home field in Atlanta.

Tech, this source explained, has sold all the seats in its small stadium and will give television rights as a public service. The SEC had no rules governing television when this step was taken.

Other schools, under the committee plan, would ban television until the day after games are played. This would allow fans to see the contests, but not as live telecasts.

This same source said several overtures had been made for televising SEC football games. One, by a Texas oil concern, would have included games by most of the SEC football powers.

Pressure for allowing television has been heavy at Alabama, Tulane, Louisiana State and Kentucky.

Aside from its television decision, the executive committee will handle only routine matters.

Members are Dr. F. T. Mitchell, Mississippi State; Dr. J. H. Miller, University of Florida; Dr. H. W. Stoke, Louisiana State; Dr. John M. Gallalee, University of Alabama, and Dr. N. W. Dougherty, University of Tennessee, secretary.

Indianapolis Winner To Race Again Today

CHICAGO, June 10. —(AP)— Fame hasn't slowed up Johnny Parsons, winner of the Indianapolis speedway classic—he will race tomorrow in two cities—Milwaukee and Chicago.

The Van Nuys, Calif., pilot will drive in a 100-mile big car race at Milwaukee's state fair park tomorrow afternoon. Then, he is scheduled to appear tomorrow night in the midget auto races at Chicago's soldier field.

Parsons, the only driver to win the midget crown one year and the national triple-A crown the next, will introduce his own tiny Offenhausen to Chicago fans. He says his swift blue bug cost about $6,500.

Although racing for about 10 years, 31-year-old Parsons' triumph in the abbreviated "500" Memorial day was only his second start in the big race.

The mountain bluebird was believed sacred by Navajo Indians.

Cleveland Press Service Is Enjoying Near Monopoly

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A senate committee reported today that the Continental Press Service of Cleveland enjoys a "near monopoly" on the distribution of race news used by bookmakers over the country.

The senate was told that some California bookies, cut off from direct wire loops, get Continental's information by a relay from a broadcasting station in Mexico.

The commerce committee is urging adoption of a bill to outlaw the sending of much pre-race information across state lines. It said Continental is the major source of data for the illegal bet-taking—an industry rated at $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000 a year.

Wire and telephone communications companies, press services and daily newspapers also are useful to the bookies, the committee said. But it emphasized that the gathering, transmission and publication of racing news is entirely legal.

The report declared there is a "practical if not legal flaw" in denials made by Continental's general manager, Thomas Kelly of Chicago. Kelly has said he has no knowledge of his service being used by bookmakers.

Brushing aside this claim, the senate body said:

"Continental does choose its distributors, assigns them exclusive territory, and charges them for service on the basis of the size and amount of business done in each territory.

"The facts support the thesis that Continental today has a near monopoly in the transmission of racing news which ultimately reaches the bookmakers in the country."

As long as press associations and racing papers may continue to send racing information, the report said, there will remain available to bookmakers the data on which they can do business.

"It is equally obvious from the testimony," the committee added, "that there is a commingling and intermingling of interests and problems between such divergent and different operations as Continental and the press associations; Continental and the telegraph and telephone carriers; the press associations and the racing publications."

The report listed various communications media in what it called the order of their importance to bookmakers, as follows: (1) Continental; (2) Western Union Telegraph Co. (3) American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (4) Triangle Publication, Publishers of the daily racing form and the Morning Telegraph, New York; (5) Associated Press, United Press and International News Service; (6) Transradio Press.

The pending bill, approved by the committee headed by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Colo.), has been blocked from senate action by Sen. McCarran (D.-Nev.), chairman of the judiciary committee.

It would impose criminal penalties on the interstate sending or receiving of "gambling information" on horse and dog racing. This would include pre-race news on bets and gambling odds, changes in odds, scratches, jockey changes, weights, and probable winners. Once the race was started, the news could be sent legally.

California came in for special attention in the report. Under state law, communications companies may not run wire-line circuits into the state.

Nevertheless, the report said, racing news distributors in "part of California" receive Continental's news "by means of a high-power radio tuned in on a broadcasting station in Mexico, and relay the information to bookmakers by telephone."

The committee did not state where the receiver was located, but it was understood to be Los Angeles. Elsewhere in California race news "appears to be obtained" by long - distance telephone. Bookmakers in Detroit, Mich., seem to get their news by telephone also, it was said.

While there have been "difficulties and delays" in moving race news from California's big tracks, the report added, this apparently is being accomplished by "a combination of clandestine observations sent in by telephone and pirating from the wire of a regular press association."

Registration Is Still Open For La. History

Registration is still open for the course in Louisiana History which is being offered this summer at Northeast Junior College through the general extension division of Louisiana State University.

June 17 is the last day to enroll in the class which is now in operation, A. S. Huffman, director of extension work here, announced.

Instructor of the course is W. C. Honeycutt, assistant professor of social sciences at N. J. C.

The history class was secured primarily to assist in meeting the state certification requirements for in-service teachers of this area. In addition to those who hold temporary certificates, other teachers may wish to earn more college hours. Regular junior college students are not eligible to schedule this course for credit since it is above the sophomore level, Huffman explained.

The class is scheduled to meet five hours each week for nine weeks. The time is from 1 to 3 p.m. on Wednesday and from 9 to 12 a.m. on Saturday.

Cost of the course, which carries three semester hours of credit, is $15.

Wis. Republicans Laud McCarthy's Red Charges

MILWAUKEE, June 10. —(AP)— Wisconsin Republicans today gave Senator McCarthy (R. - Wis.) a hearty pat on the back for pressing his charges of Communist influence in the state department.

Delegates to the state G. O. P. convention declared in a resolution adopted amid cheers and loud applause.

"We do most heartily commend and encourage the determined and untiring efforts of Senator McCarthy to expose, root out and destroy the treasonable, communistic, disloyal elements now playing such a dominant role in the present Democratic administration."

McCarthy gave the keynote speech at the convention Friday.

The endorsement of McCarthy's campaign followed adoption by the convention of a platform calling for agricultural parity, changes in the veterans' housing law and a four year term for state constitutional offices.

Only delegate to voice objection to the McCarthy resolution was Perry Stearns of Milwaukee a candidate for nomination to the U. S. senate seat of Alexander Wiley, Chippewa Falls Republican. Catcalls and boos greeted Stearns' statement that "I am a Republican but an American first. Sen. McCarthy's program is divisive and tends to divide the Republican party."

PIGS GIVEN TO 4-H CLUB BOYS

Will Raise Them Under Recommendations Of Extension Department

Seven young members of the Logtown 4-H Club have been made mighty happy as the result of a special swine demonstration sponsored jointly by the agriculture extension service and the Sears Roebuck Foundation.

Each of the seven boys has been given one gilt, or female pig, under condition that he raise it in accordance with the recommendations of the extension department.

The boys are taught how to vaccinate their pigs for hog cholera, how to dip them in benzine hexachloride to eliminate lice and mange, and the proper use of sodium flouride in the feed to rid the pigs of worms.

A complete record of his pig project from the time that the gilt is received will give him an opportunity to compete for an out-of-state trip in his third year of the project.

The boys doing the best jobs in feeding their charges will compete for prizes of pig raising equipment at the Ouachita Parish Fair, beginning October 9.

The boys who received the pigs are Charles Hackney, Truett Lenard, Wayne Eppinette, Wayne White, Jerry Pender, Harold Simmons and James Turnbow, all of Bosco.

Local leaders of the Logtown group are Miss Marie Filhiol, Mrs. A. T. Stout, Mrs. J. B. Filhiol, Mrs. Ray Jones and A. S. Lewis.

LOGTOWN SCHOOL 4-H CLUB GATHERING

Members of the Logtown 4-H Club pose for a picture with seven young stockmen from the club. Also in the group are Superintendent Mack Avants, School Board member W. A. Calloway, J. J. Joyce, county agent, A. D. Fitzgerald, State Swine Specialist, Robert M. Childress, assistant county agent, Miss Marie Filhiol, principal of the Logtown school, Teacher A. S. Lewis and fathers of club members.

BEAUTY PAGEANT WILL BE STAGED

Winner Will Be Contestant For Title Of 'Miss Louisiana'

The night of June 16 will be an important one in the life of at least one Monroe or West Monroe beauty. That's the night of the Twin Cities Beauty Pageant, marking the selection of the prettiest and most talented girl in this area as a contestant for the title "Miss Louisiana."

Plans for the entertainment part of the evening's activities have already been made, with the program committee of the Monroe-West Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event, rea lying a lineup of top talent for the show.

The high point of the program, of course, will be the girls who will vie for the title.

Two more Monroe young ladies have been selected by sponsoring firms to represent them in the Twin Cities finals. Both working girls, they are Doris Williamson, 21 year old secretary at Olcott-Stone Motors, who will sponsor her, and 19 year old Mary Lillian McLaughlin, who works at the Clyde Nash Insurance Agency, and is sponsored by Holloway and Thompson.

Doris, who lives at 309 Stubbs in Monroe, is a native "Arkie." She was born in Eldorado, and moved shortly after to Bastrop, where she lived before coming to Monroe.

At one time, Doris wanted to become a doctor. Right now, she says, "I'm a secretary. My ambition at the moment is to become a better secretary."

She's not engaged, not going steady, but not overlooking the possibility of marriage. Doris adds with a smile, "that'll have to wait for the right man."

Holloway and Thompson's entry in the beauty derby, petite Mary Lillian McLaughlin, lives at 1610 South Grand St. She is a native-born Monroyan, and lives with her aunt.

Her hobbies are mostly outdoor sports, swimming and boatriding leading the rest.

Her future plans? Marriage, eventually, she imagines, "but it takes two, and the other half hasn't made his appearance yet."

The contestants, eight to date, approved by the entries committee, will appear on the stage of Neville Auditorium June 16, in the only local contest officially connected with the annual Miss America Pageant.

Tickets for the affair are available now from any member of the Junior Chamber. The admission price is $1.20, tax included.

SENATE VOTE IS EXPECTED MONDAY

Democratic Leaders Claim Enough Votes To Pass Rent Control Extension

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—A threat of another filibuster faced weary senate Democratic leaders today, but they claimed enough votes to pass an extension of federal rent controls.

A hectic session of nearly 17 hours ended at 2:43 a.m. EST today after Senator Cain (R.-Wash.) foe of controls, won his demand that the first test vote be on a motion to send the rent control extension back to committee. That test will come at 12 noon Monday.

Majority Leader Lucas (D.-Ill.) told a reporter he is confident "we have more than enough votes to defeat the effort to send the bill back to committee."

He added that he finally agreed to the test on recommittal "because I hope the senate will be able to consider all motions and amendments and pass the bill before the day is over."

Cain, who talked for a few minutes more than 12 hours Friday and Saturday with only three brief breaks, agreed that Lucas may be right about the recommittal vote.

Apparently in good form after his marathon performance, Cain confided that he was ready "to take off again, if necessary, after the vote Monday."

"I think we have a fair chance of winning this thing Monday," he said. "But I have just started this fight if it is not recommitted."

Senator Sparkman (D. - Ala.), who has been helping Lucas hold Democrats in line for voting, claimed "a little margin in favor of the bill."

"But absentee votes on either side might decide this," Sparkman added, noting that many senators will be away Monday on re-election trips.

At issue is an extension of the federal rent controls due to expire at the end of this month. They now apply to an estimated 8,000,000 rental units throughout the country. Most of them are in larger cities where votes in the coming election to determine party control of congress may be decisive.

Cain and other senate opponents of rent controls had expected the house to act first on a similar proposed extension. They believe the house is less favorable to the extension.

Democratic Leader Lucas upset this strategy by getting the issue up first in the senate and that produced the one - man talkathon Cain staged Wednesday and then again Friday and early today.

Even if Cain should win the test tomorrow, Lucas said "it would mean nothing because Chairman Maybank (D.-S. C.) would just call the banking committee together again and send the bill right back to us in the same form immediately."

Cain disclosed today that even Republican leaders had tried to get him to abandon his talkathon at various times yesterday.

"The Republican leadership tried to chill me off to agree to a vote upon both recommittal and if that failed on passage," he said. "But as I went along I picked up support until they finally backed me up."

He said that Majority Leader Lucas "tried to break me down—and very properly so—but I had been anticipating this fight since last January."

Misconduct Is Charged By Red-Haired Woman Flyer

CAMBRIDGE, Eng., June 10.—(AP)—Red - haired Mrs. Richarda Morrow-Tait was accused by her husband today of misconduct with a Cambridge University scholar who helped her fly around the world in a year and a day.

Suing for divorce, husband Norman R. Morrow-Tait named Michael Townsend, 26, as co-respondent.

Mrs. Morrow-Tait, also 26 and a former artist's model, set off on her round-the-world trip in a single engined proctor airplane in August, 1948. She had hoped to make the journey in six weeks. Townsend went along as navigator.

After a series of accidents they got as far as Alaska, where the plane was wrecked in a forced landing in November, 1948. Townsend gave up and went back to Cambridge to resume his studies.

Mrs. Morrow - Tait worked at various jobs in Canada and the United States and with the help of generous Americans finally bought another plane. At this point Townsend rejoined her for the hop across the Atlantic.

She landed at Croydon airport, completing her 366-day flight, in August, 1949.

There to meet her was her husband, a consulting engineer, who had cared for their little girl all during her absence. Vivacious Richarda told reporters then he was "the best man God ever made." Since then they have had another child.

Tonight Richarda said:

"I don't intend to contest the suit. All I want is to have the custody of my two children."

The girl, Anna, is now three. The baby, Giles, is six weeks old. Richarda said she intends to marry again but declined to name the man, telling a reporter: "Neither would you."

Anna is now staying with her father and his parents in Cambridge. The infant is with Mrs. Morrow-Tait.

GETS DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., June 10. —(AP)— Archibald B. Roosevelt, Jr., grandson of the late Teddy Roosevelt, was divorced today by Mrs. Katharine Tweed Roosevelt on cruelty charges.

They were married in New York May 18, 1940. Mrs. Roosevelt is the daughter of Harrison Tweed, socially prominent New York attorney.

A sealed agreement approved by the court settled property rights and custody matters concerning their child, Tweed, 8. District judge William McKnight granted the divorce after a short, closed hearing.

Reds Ignore Invitation For Unification Talks

SEOUL, June 10.—(AP)—An American from the United Nations commission on Korea today waited at the border with the Communist north hoping to talk over unification of Korea with a Red delegation.

The hope of John Gaillard, the commission representative, appeared to be a forlorn one. The Communists ignored a message from the commission yesterday asking for the meeting.

Gaillard was told to take up his stand opposite the border station of Yohyun, 35 miles northwest of Seoul.

The radio at Pyongyang, the Communist capital, had announced that three envoys would wait at Yohyun today to discuss with representatives from the south a Red proposal for a "general election" in August.

The Communists refused to have anything to do with the commission or with President Syngman Rhee of the south Korean republic. They call Rhee a "war criminal" and say the commission is only his servant.

It was unlikely that any south Korean would show up at the border .Gen. Chae Bying Duk, army chief of staff, warned that anyone taking part in a joint conference would be treated as a "traitor's sympathizers." A south Korean government spokesman has called the election offer "poppycock propaganda."

CUT WEDDING CAKE

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Smelley shown cutting their wedding cake following their recent marriage. Mrs. Smelley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Parker of Danville. Mr. Smelley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smelley of Liberty Hill.

MARY ALICE PARKER IS BRIDE OF BILLY SMELLEY

The mellow light of many white candles burning in branched Cathedral Candelebra was shed on an impovished altar of lovely greenery and tall baskets of pink gladioli, Queen Ann's Lace and fern decorated the entire length of the chancel rail, when Miss Mary Alice Parker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Parker, of Danville, became the bride of Mr. Billy Smelley, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smelley of Liberty Hill in a beautiful double ring ceremony May 27th., at eight o'clock at the Danville Presbyterian Church. Reverend C. A. Brogan, pastor of the Danville Presbyterian Church heard the wedding vows.

Soft pre - nuptial music was played by Mrs. W. E. Barron at the organ while the candles were lighted by Charlie Parker, brother of the bride and John Edd Allen of Danville. Mrs. Barron accompanied Miss Margie Barron at the piano who sang before the ceremony, "I Love You Truly".

The bride was preceeded by Miss Alma Robinson, maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a white organdy formal length gown with a tight fitting bodice, full skirt with sweetheart neckline and a matching hat with illusion veil. She chose blue accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The bride was radiant for her wedding in a gown of ice blue organdy made with cap sleeves. A crisp organdy bow completed the low neckline and tiny covered buttons gracefully trimmed the snug bodice. The bouffant ballerina length skirt was accented with rows of snow white lace and embroidery. Her hat was a matching blue straw Halo with a veil of illusion, trimmed with lilies-of-the-valley. She wore white lace open finger tip gloves and her corsage was of pink rosebuds and cascades of pink ribbon. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls a gift from the bridegroom. She carried a white bible, topped with pink rosebuds from which fell cascades of white satin ribbon streamers caught by stephanotis.

Mr. Smelley had as his best man Don Greer of Arcadia, Louisiana.

Mrs. Parker, the bride's mother, was becomingly gowned in a Bemberg Sheer of gray print, with a harmonizing hat and her corsage was pink carnations.

Immediately following the wedding a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents near the Danville Church.

Low crystal bowls of sweet peas and Plumosis Fern and the soft glow of burning tapers decorated the reception rooms of the Parker home. In the dining room the bride's table was covered with an imported lace cloth, centered with an artistic arrangement of sweet peas and Plumosis fern and flanked by burning white tapers. At one end of the table Mrs. Kate Allen presided over the crystal bowl of punch. The three tiered exquisitely embossed wedding confection topped by a miniature bride and groom under a garland of tiny pink rosebuds and green leaves was on the other end of the table. Mrs. B. H. Parker served the cake after the first slice had been cut by the bride and groom.

For traveling the bride chose a sheer dotted swiss of brown and white using her shoulder corsage of pink rosebuds. She is a graduate of the Friendship High School and attended Business School in Monroe. Prior to her wedding she was employed in Monroe.

The groom is a graduate of the Friendship High School and is presently employed in Ruston.

After returning from a trip to New Orleans the couple will make their home in Ruston.

Out of town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Mixon, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Mixon and family and Mr. and Mrs. Lamar McKeithen, all of Grayson, Louisiana.

Use the giblets, neck and wing tips from a chicken to make a soup. Add a few cups of water, about half a teaspoon of salt, a few peppercorns, a small carrot and some celery leaves. Cover and simmer about three-quarters of an hour. Strain and serve with a little cooked rice, adding additional seasoning if desired.

Watercress, cucumber and creamed cottage cheese make a delicious luncheon salad; accompany with a well-seasoned French dressing.

MY MAN and YOURS

Margene

By Margene Danch

Today's story is about Jean Belcher and her man, Harry, of North Hollywood, Calif.

Jean is a woman filled with wonderful ideas for bettering her home. And the best part is, that she doesn't just have ideas, she carries them out. Harry thinks her ideas are swell but lets them go at that.

When Jean saw that her kitchen was showing signs of wear, she redecorated it completely, right down to the hanging of washable wallpaper. She also re-upholstered her divan, love seat and wing chairs. Retied all the springs, too!

A few weeks ago, Jean was sitting in her living room, probably taking the first rest she'd had in months when she got to thinking how much better the living room would look if the wall to the dining area was knocked out to combine two rooms.

"Think I'l get an estimate right now," she said. (I'm sure she could have done the job herself but she was saturated at that point.) She went to the phone and called a carpenter whose name she had found in the classified ads. He was able to give her a rough estimate of what the job would be. It met with her approval.

"There's just one thing," the carpenter said. "I'm on an assignment but the minute I'm through, I'll call."

So, Jean forgot about her living-dining idea for awhile. Then, one day when Jean was out shopping, her phone rang. Harry answered.

"This is the carpenter," a voice at the other end of the wire stated. "I'm ready to do the job unless there's been some change in Mrs. Belcher's plans. I'll start tomorrow—"

The next morning Jean was awakened by the sound of hammering.

"Must be building next door," she thought as she rolled over to get a little more sleep. The hammering continued. In fact, it got louder. Jean got up. She walked into the living room and then stopped short. The wall between the living and dining rooms had been almost completely knocked out by the fast moving carpenter. The only catch was that Harry had forgotten to give Jean the man's telephone message and she had made plans to hold a club meeting at her home that same afternoon!

Prevent Moth Damage To Rugs

"Moth damage is a costly homemaking headache," reminds Mrs. Euna D. Spielman, Home Demonstration Agent. "Moths can damage any fabric containing animal fibers such as wool, silk, mohair. animal fur, animal skin, and others. The rugs on the floors of your home are just as likely to be damaged by moths as your clothing. Damage from moths often occurs in areas of rugs that contain stain such as caused by foods containing grease or fats. Look for moth damage in rugs most frequently where the edges of rungs are protected under beds and other heavy pieces of furniture that are not often moved. Mrs. Rogenia Trotter, L. S. U. Extension Housing and Home Furnishings Specialist, points out that there is actually no positive, permanent moth proofing of floor coverings. The be defense against moth damage is an absolutely clean rug free of food stains and spots. Before storing your rugs for the summer be sure that your floor coverings are clean, as moth - repellent sprays will do no good where food is supplied the moth larvae.

Here are some tips for removing stains from your rugs before storing them for the summer, suggested by the L. S. U. Extension Housing and Home Furnishing Specialist, Mrs. Rogenia Trot er.

Butter and fats: Place a clean, white blotter over the stain and move a hot iron over the blotter.

Beverage spills: Sponge up soft drinks, coffee, tea or other beverage surplus with a clean, white unstarched cloth dampened in lukewarm water. Finish with a dry cloth, working in the direction of the rug pile.

Chewing gum: Freeze the gum with an ice cube, but be careful not to pull out the rug pile in removing the gum. Otherwise, apply a non-flammable household dry cleaning fluid, and let it remain at the edges of the gum for three minutes. Then lift a gum off the rug with a dull spatula. Some stains are easy to remove. Other more difficult ones require skill. For directions on removing other stains such as paint, ink, medicines, ice cream, wax, nail polish and others from your rugs, ask your Home Demonstration Agent to give you her latest publication on the removal of stains.

News From The Girl Scouts

With swimming and cooking classes well under way, two new activities in the summer program for Girl Scouts will start this week. A new and unusual addition to the program will be stargazing on Monday nights at Forsythe Park and on Tuesday nights at Bernstein Park whenever the night is not too cloudy or rainy. This feature was added at the request of several Intermediate Scouts who are interested in a Star badge, but is open to anyone who is interested in coming. The group will gather at the bus stop in Forsythe Park at dusk and at the Thomas street entrance to Bernstein Park.

Legends and stories of the stars, star maps, perhaps a star theater, will be used. The observation will be completely informal, the object being to learn to enjoy the beauty and wonder of the heavens. Girls should bring an old blanket to sit or lie on.

Also beginning Monday morning, and meeting on whatever days the group decides, will be several sessions a week on crafts at the Girl Scout office, 412 Hall St. Groups will be small, so that each girl can work out her own ideas. Leathercraft, textile painting, glass etching, weaving, will be some of the crafts offered.

These and other summer activities are provided by the Program committee of the Girl Scouts, a Red Feather Agency of the Community Chest.

Demonstration On Making Curtains And Draperies To Be Held

A demonstration on making curtains and draperies will be held at the agricultural building, 704 Cypress St., West Monroe on Thursday morning, June 15 at 9:30. All are welcome, states Mrs. Mildred G. Swift of the agricultural extension department.

The measurement, materials, and actual construction will be taught. Measurements for curtains and draperies must be accurate. To have a curtain an inch too long or too short detracts from the effect. Often in a room of two or more windows, they appear to be the same in width and height, yet will vary as much as two inches or more. The material should be the right fullness.

Curtains should be properly fitted, the same as clothes. Small details when correct, makes the curtain or drape perfect, but when incorrect can destroy the charm of the rest of the furnishings.

Every detail will be discussed. Individual problems will be taken up after the demonstration.

Demonstration On Making Curtains And Draperies To Be Held

A demonstration on making curtains and draperies will be held at the agricultural building, 704 Cypress St., West Monroe on Thursday morning, June 15 at 9:30. All are welcome, states Mrs. Mildred G. Swift of the agricultural extension department.

The measurement, materials, and actual construction will be taught. Measurements for curtains and draperies must be accurate. To have a curtain an inch too long or too short detracts from the effect. Often in a room of two or more windows, they appear to be the same in width and height, yet will vary as much as two inches or more. The material should be the right fullness.

Curtains should be properly fitted, the same as clothes. Small details when correct, makes the curtain or drape perfect, but when incorrect can destroy the charm of the rest of the furnishings.

Every detail will be discussed. Individual problems will be taken up after the demonstration.

For a seafood stuffing for firm ripe red tomatoes mix about a half cup of crabmeat with a half cup of finely diced celery; season with salt and a teaspoon of Worcestershire salt, and moisten with a couple of tablespoons of mayonnaise.

With Clever Ruffing Slam Try Succeeds

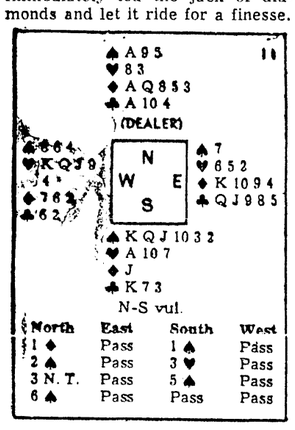
"Please settle our dispute," pleads a Detroit correspondent. "We want to know if this hand was bid properly. Also, please discuss the way the hand was played.

"West opened the king of hearts and South won with the ace. South immediately led the jack of diamonds and let it ride for a finesse.



North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
3 N. T.	Pass	5 ♠	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

That was the end of the slam. East took the king of diamonds and led a heart, and South was set.

"Would an expert play the hand this way? If not, how would the hand be played and why?"

The bidding was excellent, and the final contract was quite a good one. However, the play was not of the best. An expert would make the slam contract by playing it differently.

An expert allows the king of hearts to hold the first trick. He wins the second trick (assuming a heart continuation) with the ace of hearts. He then lays down the king of spades.

Having found out that the trumps are not massed against him, South knows that he can afford to ruff out the diamonds. He therefore immediately leads the jack of diamonds to dummy's ace and returns a low diamond. This he ruffs with the two of spades.

South continued by leading the three of spades to dummy's ace and ruffing another diamond in his own hand. Now he ruffs the heart with dummy's last trump, and returns by ruffing still another diamond. This drops East's king.

At this point South is in position to draw West's last trump. The top clubs and dummy's queen of diamonds take the last three tricks.

The reason for choosing this line of play is that it is far more likely to succeed. South has only an even chance to win the finesse in diamonds. The odds are almost 3 to 1 that he will succeed in ruffing out the king of diamonds. Obviously, it is better to adopt a line of play that makes you a 3 to 1 favorite than to stake everything on an even chance.

White pepper is less pungent than black pepper; it is good to use in scrambled and other egg dishes.

Russian dressing can be made in a jiffy by adding chili sauce and diced canned red pimento to mayonnaise or creamy salad dressing. This dressing is particularly good on wedges of head lettuce; delicious, too, in a sandwich of chopped tongue and shredded lettuce.

Sliced pickled beets are delicious served with hamburgers between toasted buns.

AT RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Johnson following their recent marriage. Mrs. Johnson is the former Mildred Louise Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Osborne, Sr. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mrs. W. A. Johnson.

MILDRED LOUISE OSBORNE BRIDE OF ROBERT M. JOHNSTON

Central Baptist Church of Monroe was the scene of a beautiful candlelight wedding ceremony on May twelfth at seven in the evening uniting in marriage Miss Mildred Louise Osborne and Robert M. Johnston. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Osborne, Sr. and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. W. A. Johnston. Cathedral candles in floor candelabra and white gladioli in tall marlonette baskets under an arch festooned with ivy formed a beautiful setting for the ceremony.

The Rev. D. D. Cantrell of Ruston was the officiating clergyman. Mrs. Robert Wroten, at the piano, played softly as Patsy Davis and Tommy Lee, cousins of the bride, lighted the candles. While the guests were being seated Mrs. Wroten played soft prenuptial music and accompanied the vocalist, Eugene Smith, as he sang "Dawning" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of slipper satin fashioned with a yoke of net and embroidery. The fitted bodice of satin was fastened in back with satin covered buttons as were the long close-fitting sleeves which came to a point at the wrist. The basque was fastened to a full skirt with long court train. Her veil of illussion was caught to a Juliet cap of net and satin. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls which was a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilles of the valley on her Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Charles Ray Flynt, of Laurel, Mississippi, the bride's cousin. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sybil Burton, of Monroe and Miss Billie Margaret Philips, of Natchez.

The attendants dresses were fashioned alike of white taffeta with an off-shoulder yoke of marquisette, full skirts, and heart shaped hats. Each carried an old-fashioned nosegay of spring flowers tied with ribbons in rainbow colors.

Frances Adams served as the flower girl. Her white gown was fashioned similar to those of the other attendants. She carried a basket filled with rose petals. Marshall Garlington was the ring bearer and wore a blue suit and carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Mr. Robert Johnston stood with the groom as best man. The groomsmen were Mr. Odie Lee of West Monroe and Mr. Max Johnston of Choudrant.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately followed the ceremony. The bride's mother wore a dusty pink chiffon dress with white accessories. The groom's mother was dressed in print chiffon. Both wore corsages of carnations.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and decorated by a crystal basket of lilies. The giant three-tiered wedding cake was embossed in lilies of the valley and roses. Wedding bells formed of white icing and tied with tulle bows also adorned the cake. The base was formed by a beautiful arrangement of fern and white sweet peas. A row of lighted candles extended from the cake to a bride and groom figurine. The gifts were displayed on tables covered with whit e organdy. An oblong table held the crystal punch bowl, over which Mrs. E. L. Hathaway presided. Mrs. Floyd Ferrington served the cake while Mrs. O. B. Lee had charge of the bride's book.

For the honeymoon to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride wore a suit of blue pique with accessories of white. The bride is a graduate of Neville High School and of the Baptist school of nursing in Alexandria. The groom is a graduate of Choudrant High School and attended Louisiana Tech. The couple will reside at 3308 Gordon Avenue.

AT RECEPTION

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Johnson following their recent marriage. Mrs. Johnson is the former Mildred Louise Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Osborne, Sr. Mr. Johnson is the son of Mrs. W. A. Johnson.

MILDRED LOUISE OSBORNE BRIDE OF ROBERT M. JOHNSTON

Central Baptist Church of Monroe was the scene of a beautiful candlelight wedding ceremony on May twelfth at seven in the evening uniting in marriage Miss Mildred Louise Osborne and Robert M. Johnston. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Osborne, Sr. and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. W. A. Johnston. Cathedral candles in floor candelabra and white gladioli in tall marionette baskets under an arch festooned with ivy formed a beautiful setting for the ceremony.

The Rev. D. D. Cantrell of Ruston was the officiating clergyman. Mrs. Robert Wroten, at the piano, played softly as Patsy Davis and Tommy Lee, cousins of the bride, lighted the candles. While the guests were being seated Mrs. Wroten played soft prenuptial music and accompanied the vocalist, Eugene Smith, as he sang "Dawning" and "Because."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was beautiful in a gown of slipper satin fashioned with a yoke of net and embroidery. The fitted bodice of satin was fastened in back with satin covered buttons as were the long close-fitting sleeves which came to a point at the wrist. The basque was fastened to a full skirt with long court train. Her veil of illussion was caught to a Juliet cap of net and satin. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls which was a gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley on her Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Charles Ray Flynt, of Laurel, Mississippi, the bride's cousin. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sybil Burton, of Monroe and Miss Billie Margaret Philips, of Natchez.

The attendants dresses were fashioned alike of white taffeta with an off-shoulder yoke of marquisette, full skirts, and heart shaped hats. Each carried an old-fashioned nosegay of spring flowers tied with ribbons in rainbow colors.

Frances Adams served as the flower girl. Her white gown was fashioned similar to those of the other attendants. She carried a basket filled with rose petals. Marshall Garlington was the ring bearer and wore a blue suit and carried the rings on a satin pillow.

Mr. Robert Johnston stood with the groom as best man. The groomsmen were Mr. Odie Lee of West Monroe and Mr. Max Johnston of Choudrant.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents immediately followed the ceremony. The bride's mother wore a dusty pink chiffon dress with white accessories. The groom's mother was dressed in print chiffon. Both wore corsages of carnations.

The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and decorated by a crystal basket of lilies. The giant three-tiered wedding cake was embossed in lilies of the valley and roses. Wedding bells formed of white icing and tied with tulle bows also adorned the cake. The base was formed by a beautiful arrangement of fern and white sweet peas. A row of lighted candles extended from the cake to a bride and groom figurine. The gifts were displayed on tables covered with whit e organdy. An oblong table held the crystal punch bowl, over which Mrs. E. L. Hathaway presided. Mrs. Floyd Ferrington served the cake while Mrs. O. B. Lee had charge of the bride's book.

For the honeymoon to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride wore a suit of blue pique with accessories of white. The bride is a graduate of Neville High School and of the Baptist school of nursing in Alexandria. The groom is a graduate of Choudrant High School and attended Louisiana Tech. The couple will reside at 3308 Gordon Avenue.

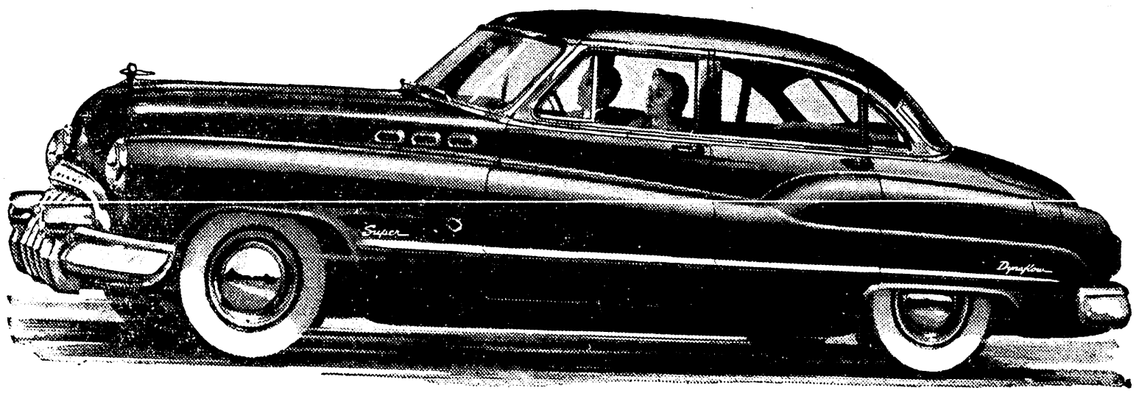
How SMOOTH can a ride be?



THAT'S a question well worth answering before you settle on your next automobile.

For what fun is there—what thrill—in a car that is prisoner to the city streets, slowed down by roads a Buick is built to take in stride?

So we'd like to show you just how much smoothness your money can buy. How levelly you float over cobbles and car tracks—over rutty gravel and wavy black-top—in this stunning traveler.

Captain John G. Crommelin, U. S. Navy, has indicated that he will speak at the state V. F. W. convention to be held here June 16 through the 18.

In a letter to Lloyd Leonard, chairman of the distinguished guest committee for the convention, Crommelin said he would speak on "National Security."

Dairy Heifers To Be Put On Sale

A sale of dairy heifers will be held by the Louisiana Jersey Cattle Club and Dairy Association on June 24 at A. G. and J. T. Compton's dairy farm on highway 71 south of Alexandria, according to announcement by officials of the association. The club expects to dispose of about 60 choice heifers from Louisiana and out-of-state breeders.

E. W. Neasham, dairyman of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service, has called attention of parish agricultural agents throughout the state to the fact that one purpose of the sale is to provide fine Jersey calves needed by junior breeders, including 4-H Club members, for their club projects.

The heifers that are offered for sale must be approved by a committee of the Jersey Club, Neasham said, and no heifers unsuitable for 4-H work will be put on sale.

It is our aim in Ouachita parish to increase our number of good dairy calves and this sale will give us that opportunity, says Robert W. Childress, assistant county agent.

Dairy Heifers To Be Put On Sale

A sale of dairy heifers will be held by the Louisiana Jersey Cattle Club and Dairy Association on June 24 at A. G. and J. T. Compton's dairy farm on highway 71 south of Alexandria, according to announcement by officials of the association. The club expects to dispose of about 60 choice heifers from Louisiana and out-of-state breeders.

E. W. Neasham, dairyman of the Louisiana State University Agricultural Extension Service, has called attention of parish agricultural agents throughout the state to the fact that one purpose of the sale is to provide fine Jersey calves needed by junior breeders, including 4-H Club members, for their club projects.

The heifers that are offered for sale must be approved by a committee of the Jersey Club, Neasham said, and no heifers unsuitable for 4-H work will be put on sale.

It is our aim in Ouachita parish to increase our number of good dairy calves and this sale will give us that opportunity, says Robert W. Childress, assistant county agent.

JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Grant Clinton Boardman whose marriage took place recently is the former Maxine Moore Cahoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Moore, of Arlington, Tex. Mr. Boardman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Boardman, of this city.

MAXINE MOORE CAHOON WEDS GRANT CLINTON BOARDMAN IN BEAUTIFUL GARDEN CEREMONY

"Woodbine" the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Moore in Arlington, Tex., was the scene June 10 at eight o'clock in the evening of the wedding of their daughter, Maxine Moore Cahoon, when she became the bride of Grant Clinton Boardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Boardman of this city.

The Rev. Linden Wheeler of Dallas, Tex., performed the double ring ceremony amist a setting of a natural amphi-theater formed by the semi-circular rock garden full of pink cannas and white gladiolis and the lake. The alter was between two weeping willow trees, separated from the guests by a small arm of the lake filled with pink and white water lilies. The bridal party walked down an aisle formed by hurrican lamps in wrought iron holders connected by garlands of greenery studded with gardenias.

Miss Pamela Dixon and Miss Sandra Davenport lighted the candles while the string trio composed of Mrs. W. Robert Hewett, piano; Mrs. Claud D. Helm, violin; Miss Ellen Hausman, cello, played prenuptial music. They accompanied Miss Ina P. Hatty of Independence, Mo., who sang, "Oh Perfect Love" and Miss Hatty, Mrs. A. R. Moler and Mrs. J. M. West, also of Independence and aunts of the bride, as they sang "Serenade" from The Student Prince.

Mrs. Fred Peck of St. Louis, Mo., and sister of the bridegroom served as matron-of-honor. She was wearing an orchid dress of imported Swiss organdy, fashioned with a full skirt that fell to the floor. Over the strapless bodice she wore a jacket with a Peter Pan collar and bracelet length sleeves. Her picture hat of horsehair braid matched her dress and she carried an arm bouquet of Marconi daisies tinted pale pink and tied with orchid streamers.

Miss Pamela Dixon wore a full length dress of aqua taffeta and Miss Sandra Davenport wore a similar dress of yellow taffeta. Both girls wore wristlets of gardenias tied to match their dresses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of imported Swiss organdy in a delicate peach bloom shade, this was fashioned with a round Peter Pan collar and button front bodice and accented with push-up balloon sleeves. The very full skirt fell to her insteps and had a slight sweep train. A soft satin sash accented her waistline. She carried an arm bouquet of white Esta Reed daisies, Maconi daisies tinted pale pink, and pale blue Delphinium tied with satin streamers to match her dress.

SENATE TO FACE MAJOR DECISION

Must Determine Whether To Attempt To Punish Newspapermen

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., June 10.—(AP)—The Louisiana senate may have a historic decision to make Monday.

The question which may be presented to it is this:

Should a governing body, such as a legislature, undertake itself to punish newspapermen for what it considers unjust criticism of itself.

Or must members of such a body, like other citizens, rely on the libel laws and, if they feel aggrieved, attempt to convince the courts that they have been unfairly treated?

Monday is the day when a special committee of the senate reports to its parent body on the hearing to which the publisher and editor of the New Orleans Item were cited because of an editorial criticizing the legislature.

The committee has not said what it will recommend. But the resolution creating it was drawn under a section of the Louisiana constitution making contempt of the legislature punishable by ten days imprisonment. No record can be found of a similar proceeding in Louisiana.

Pubisher David Stern, III and Editor Clayton Fritchey conceded nothing at the hearing, made no retraction and no apology.

In fact, issues were never clearly joined and the hour and a half long proceedings could be paraphrased about like this:

Senators—when you referred to us editorially as trained seals and lackeys of the governor you damaged our reputation unjustifiably. We believe in freedom of the press, but we think that in this instance you have abused it. Here are the facts leading up to the actions you criticized. Now, do you still say we are trained seals and lackeys?

Item — we thought the editorial was a justified expression of opinion and we still think so. But that isn't the main question. The main question is whether newspapers have a right to voice criticism of public officials. You say we do, although you have brought us here as defendants. Then we say you have no right to question our right. If you feel as individuals that you have been dealt with unfairly in a particular editorial your proper course would be to sue us for libel.

Two basic constitutional issues are involved—protection of the legislature so that it can make laws for the state without intimidation or other undue pressure, and freedom of the press.

The section of the Louisiana constitution under which the senate acted is an old one, brought forward intact when Louisiana adopted its present organic law in 1921, so framers of that document recall.

Was it ever intended to apply to newspaper or other criticism of lawmakers, or only to enable the legislature to act, for example, against a heckler or mob that might invade the Chamber?

Here is what section II of article III says:

"Either house, during the session, may punish by imprisonment any person not a member who shall have been guilty of disrespect, or disorderly or contemptuous behavior; but such imprisonment shall not exceed ten days for each offense."

And here is what the constitution of Louisiana says as to freedom of the press:

"No law shall ever be passed to curtail or restrain the liberty of speech or of the press; any person may speak, write and publish his sentiments on all subjects, being responsible for the abuse of that liberty."

The Constitution of the United States has no provision corresponding to the Louisiana section on the right of the legislative branch to punish disrespectful or disorderly behavior. It deals with freedom of the press in article I of the Bill of Rights:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

JUNE BRIDE

Mrs. Grant Clinton Boardman whose marriage took place recently is the former Maxine Moore Cahoon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Moore, of Arlington, Tex. Mr. Boardman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Boardman, of this city.

MAXINE MOORE CAHOON WEDS GRANT CLINTON BOARDMAN IN BEAUTIFUL GARDEN CEREMONY

"Woodbine" the lovely country home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Moore in Arlington, Tex., was the scene June 10 at eight o'clock in the evening of the wedding of their daughter, Maxine Moore Cahoon, when she became the bride of Grant Clinton Boardman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark C. Boardman of this city.

The Rev. Linden Wheeler of Dallas, Tex., performed the double ring ceremony amist a setting of a natural amphi-theater formed by the semi-circular rock garden full of pink cannas and white gladiolis and the lake. The alter was between two weeping willow trees, separated from the guests by a small arm of the lake filled with pink and white water lilies. The bridal party walked down an aisle formed by hurrican lamps in wrought iron holders connected by garlands of greenery studded with gardenias.

Miss Pamela Dixon and Miss Sandra Davenport lighted the candles while the string trio composed of Mrs. W. Robert Hewett, piano; Mrs. Claud D. Helm, violin; Miss Ellen Hausman, cello, played prenuptial music. They accompanied Miss Ina P. Hatty of Independence, Mo., who sang, "Oh Perfect Love" and Miss Hatty, Mrs. A. R. Moler and Mrs. J. M. West, also of Independence and aunts of the bride, as they sang "Serenade" from The Student Prince.

Mrs. Fred Peck of St. Louis, Mo., and sister of the bridegroom served as matron-of-honor. She was wearing an orchid dress of imported Swiss organdy, fashioned with a full skirt that fell to the floor. Over the strapless bodice she wore a jacket with a Peter Pan collar and bracelet length sleeves. Her picture hat of horsehair braid matched her dress and she carried an arm bouquet of Marconi daisies tinted pale pink and tied with orchid streamers.

Miss Pamela Dixon wore a full length dress of aqua taffeta and Miss Sandra Davenport wore a similar dress of yellow taffeta. Both girls wore wristlets of gardenias tied to match their dresses.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a gown of imported Swiss organdy in a delicate peach bloom shade, this was fashioned with a round Peter Pan collar and button front bodice and accented with push-up balloon sleeves. The very full skirt fell to her insteps and had a slight sweep train. A soft satin sash accented her waistline. She carried an arm bouquet of white Esta Reed daisies, Maconi daisies tinted pale pink, and pale blue Delphinium tied with satin streamers to match her dress.

Mr. George Belchic of Shreveport served the groom as best man. Ushers were Mr. Richard Moore, brother of the bride, Mr. William Grick, cousin of the bride, Mr. Fred Peck, of St. Louis, Mo., and Mr. Fred Hightower of this city.

First Methodist Church Of West Monroe Is Scene Of Impressive Double-Ring Ceremony

The First Methodist Church of West Monroe Sunday at four o'clock in the afternoon was the scene of the marriage of Miss Gloria Dell Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Joseph Strong, and Mr. James Henry Camp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Erick Nicholas Camp, Sr. of West Monroe.

The Rev. R. H. Staples, pastor, performed the impressive double ring ceremony before the altar decorated with tall baskets of gladioli and gardenias. Candelabra held myriads of tall white tapers. Gardenias were placed along the altar rail. The pews were marked with white satin bows and gardenias.

Miss Betty Jo Camp, sister of the groom, rendered the prenuptial music at the organ, accompanied by Miss Beryl Lynn DeLoach who sang, "Through the Years" and "All The Things You Are." At the close of the ceremony she sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Preceeding the ceremony the candles were lighted by Little Miss Molly Jean May and Master Charles Payne Strong. Miss May wore an identical model to the bridesmaids dresses, white eyelet and organdy over yellow taffeta. She wore a shoulder corsage of yellow and white gardenias and daises.

Mrs. Earl Hamm, aunt of the bride, served as matron-of-honor, and Miss Ginger Strong, sister of the bride, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Jo Chisholm, Miss Marjie Coldwell, and Miss Lorraine McClendon. The bridal attendants were wearing gowns fashioned of white eyelet bodice and eyelet brought to deep ruffled points in a billowing skirt of organdy over yellow taffeta. Their hats were of white eyelet trimmed with yellow maline and daisies. Their eyelet mitts were brought to a point over the wrist. They were carrying bouquets of yellow and white gardenias and daisies fashioned in crescent shape.

Mr. Harry Chappell served the groom as best man. The ushers were Roy Wilson, Homer C. Cook, Jr. ,Floyd Fisher and Travis DeFreese.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a wedding gown of chantilly lace over white satin with yoke of illusion. The fitted bodice was fastened down the back with satin buttons. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a heart-shaped headdress of chantilly lace. She carried a white prayerbook with white orchid tied with streamers of satin ribbon and maline with gardenias.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Strong was wearing an afternoon dress of navy with navy accessories accented by a corsage of white gardenias. Mrs. Camp wore a navy and white model with accessories of navy and white and a corsage of white gardenias.

The reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the Cameo Room of the Virginia Hotel. White asters and gardenias placed at vantage points were used throughout the rooms. Centering the bride's table covered with white embroidered linen cloth was the tiered wedding confection, surrounded by gardenias which was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Tall white tapers were placed at either end of the table.

Assisting at the punch bowls were Mrs. Charles Chisholm, Mrs. S. L. Emory, Mrs. Robert May and Mrs. W. W. Brewer. Tea girls were Miss Polly Ragland, Miss Patsy Lee and Miss Jackie White. Miss LaVerne Cook presided at the bride's book.

For their wedding trip to Mississippi the bride was wearing a pink suit with pink and blue accessories. She was wearing the orchid which was taken from her bridal bouquet.

Interesting Books Added To Collection At Parish Library

In the past few months many interesting and informative books on a variety of subjects have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library. It is now possible to borrow a book on almost any subject in which a person is interested. If the local library collection has no book on a given subject, one can be borrowed from the Louisiana State Library in Baton Rouge, in a very short periood of time.

The new titles are fascinating and there should be some patron who is eager to read each of these books. "Spending for Happiness by Elsie Stapleton is a well-written book telling how to get the most for your money. "This I Do Believe" by David Lilienthal is a statement of the beliefs of this public figure, who has been the object of a great deal of controversy. "Antique Reproductions for the Home Craftsman by Raymond Francis Yates and "Construction of American Furniture Treasures" should be of supreme value to the home or professional cabinet-maker. "Seeds of Treason" by Ralph De Toledano is an absorbing account of the trial of Alger Hiss. "The Adjustment of the Blind" by Hector Chevigny is a book that should be used by any person who has a blind member of the family.

Humorous stories are always popular. "Pig in the Parlor" by Walter Karig is a hilarious story of the adventures of his family in raising a pig. "All the Ships at Sea" by William J. Lederer is a very funny account of his experiences in the United States navy. "Mink on Weekdays" by Felicia Lamport is an account of how the very rich live. "Raising a Riot" by Alfred Toombs is a very funny account of raising a family.

There are many new books with a social implication. "The Road Ahead" by John T. Flynn should be required reading for every American. "On Being Human" by Ashley Montague explodes the theory of survival of the fittest. "Rebuilding Rural America' by Earle Hitch should be read by every person who is interested in rural life. "War or Peace" by John Foster Dulles is especially significant. "The Age of Indiscretion" by Clyde Brion Davis is a social report of life in the United States in 1900. 'A Hook in Levianthan" by Bradley D. Nash is a most pertinent evaluation of the Hoover commission report. "Courtroom" by Quentin Reynolds is the life of a very famous trial lawyer and tells the details of many of his cases. "The Conquest of Space" by Willy Ley is a most unusual book. "This Age of Conflict" by Frank Chambers is a very excellent history of modern Europe.

For those who like biography, there are many appealing titles. "The Immortal Lovers" by Frances Winwar is a very sensitive and delightful biography of Robert and Elizabeth Barrett Browning. "The Ben Lilly Legend" by J. Frank Dobie has a great deal of local interest, because many people in this part of the country remember Ben Lilly. "D. H. Lawrence, Portrait of a Genius, But"— by Richard Aldington gives a very clear picture of the strengths and weaknesses of this remarkable man. "Jefferson and His Time" by Dumas Malone is extremely well done. "The Life of Ralph Waldo Emerson" by Ralph Leslie Rusk is an excellent portrait of the man and his period. "Roosevelt in Retrospect" by John Gunther is very well done. "James Madison, Father of the Constitution" by Irving Brant and "John Adams and the American Revolution by Catherine Drinker Bowen give different pictures of the same period.

Monroe is famous for its lovely gardens and its active garden clubs. There are several new titles which will appeal to all gardeners. "Designs for Outdoor Living by Margaret Olthoff Goldsmith is a wonderful book on landscaping. "Roses for Southern Gardens" by Bessie Mary Baird is a beautiful book for rose gardeners. "Orchids Are Easy to Grow" by Harry Britton Logan is a beautiful book about orchid culture. "The Home Book of Shrubs and Trees' by Jacob Levison is a magnificent book. It contains invaluable information about transplanting large trees. "Camellias Illustrated" by Morrie L. Sharp is a very good book put out by the Oregon Camellia Society. "Gardens in the Modern Landscape" by Christopher Tunnard is a very valuable landscaping guide. "Hortus Second' by Liberty Hyde and Zoe Bailey is a valuable garden dictionary that can circulate.

Many other books have been added to the library collection but limitation of space allows for the mention of only two more especially beautiful books, "A Treasury of Early American Homes" by Richard Pratt and "The Sailing Ship" by Stanley Rogers. A great many of the books mentioned have been gift books given in memory of departed friends and loved ones.

On the end of the cement walk that leads to a church in Corwin, Kan., can be seen the imprint of two baby feet with the toes pointed toward the church. It is said that some fourteen years ago, when the walk was being laid, a mother set her barefoot baby boy on the smooth surface of the walk. Now the tracks may be seen as plainly as if made yesterday. She started her boy right. Now that the mother is dead and gone, the boy's heart has taken a set just like the cement walk. Mother, see that your boy is at least headed in the right direction.

Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest Duncan Holloway, minister.
The Daily Vacation Bible School has been going for a week, under the guidance of Mrs. W. E. Cole and her corps of helpers. The attendance is good, and it is the earnest desire of the leaders that all attend the closing of the school, Friday morning, June sixteenth. The hours are nine to eleven in the morning.
"Concerning Demas" is the theme of the morning message. Demas is one of the lesser lights of the Bible, a man who came into the church under the preaching of the Gospel, and yet failed. His lot is a warning and a prod. Who wants such a name? Such a name may become ours if we neglect the means of grace and are careless as to our duty.
The evening worship is union, the members of the First Christian and the Presbyterian congregations sharing therein. The Rev. R. T. Watson is the preacher, and his message will be based on the first statement found in the Apostles' Creed which is "I believe in God." The hour of the worship is seven thirty: the place of worship is the Presbyterian church of Monroe.

BIBLE COMMENT

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Salvation through judgment is the dominant theme of the Prophet Zephaniah, who lived and prophesied more than 600 years before Christ.
It was in the reign of Josiah, King of Judah, and one should read the twenty-second and twenty-third chapters of II Kings to get the historical setting and the events of the time. Josiah was only eight years old when his father died and he began his reign. But in his eighteenth year a great reformation occurred upon the discovery in the Temple of the Book of the Law, probably portions of the Book of Deuteronomy.
Such a reformation, vividly described in II Kings 22, was long overdue, for the preceding reigns had been times of great wickedness, with flagrant idolatry, and the degradation and corruption of worship.
The times were pregnant with danger, and the fall of the kingdom, with the exile of the people to Babylon, was not far off. The little land of Palestine was caught, as it has often been, between great warring empires, and Josiah, himself, was to fall in battle, when he became involved against Egypt.
It was a time of opportunity, as well as of peril, for prophets. If they spoke words of truth and warning, if they pointed at the evils and weaknesses of what was obstensibly a time of prosperity, they were subject to the charge that they were pessimists, and disloyal to their nation.
Even today, in our modern democracies, people don't like to hear anything but favorable words. Yet it is not the strength, but the weakness, of our modern societies that should be our concern, if we wish to safeguard our future.
What would one think of a physician if, instead of facing and treating some diseased part of the body, he went into raptures over how sound and healthy the rest of it was? The prophets were spiritually-minded social physicians, and that is why they dwelt so much upon the evils and injustices of their time.
But their purpose was salvation. Zephaniah, like his greater contemporary, Jeremiah, saw in the events of the time the judgments of God.
Salvation came through judgment, but not perhaps precisely as the prophet foresaw it; for it was only through defeat, disaster, and exile that that spiritual regeneration was to come.

On the end of the cement walk that leads to a church in Corwin, Kan., can be seen the imprint of two baby feet with the toes pointed toward the church. It is said that some fourteen years ago, when the walk was being laid, a mother set her barefoot baby boy on the smooth surface of the walk. Now the tracks may be seen as plainly as if made yesterday. She started her boy right. Now that the mother is dead and gone, the boy's heart has taken a set just like the cement walk. Mother, see that your boy is at least headed in the right direction.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH OF MONROE
Grammont at Catalpa

Ernest Duncan Holloway, minister.

The Daily Vacation Bible School has been going for a week, under the guidance of Mrs. W. E. Cole and her corps of helpers. The attendance is good, and it is the earnest desire of the leaders that all attend the closing of the school, Friday morning, June sixteenth. The hours are nine to eleven in the morning.

"Concerning Demas" is the theme of the morning message. Demas is one of the lesser lights of the Bible, a man who came into the church under the preaching of the Gospel, and yet failed. His lot is a warning and a prod. Who wants such a name? Such a name may become ours if we neglect the means of grace and are careless as to our duty.

The evening worship is union, the members of the First Christian and the Presbyterian congregations sharing therein. The Rev. R. T. Watson is the preacher, and his message will be based on the first statement found in the Apostles' Creed which is "I believe in God." The hour of the worship is seven thirty: the place of worship is the Presbyterian church of Monroe.

A hearty welcome awaits you.

By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Salvation through judgment is the dominant theme of the Prophet Zephaniah, who lived and prophesied more than 600 years before Christ.

It was in the reign of Josiah, King of Judah, and one should read the twenty-second and twenty-third chapters of II Kings to get the historical setting and the events of the time. Josiah was only eight years old when his father died and he began his reign. But in his eighteenth year a great reformation occurred upon the discovery in the Temple of the Book of the Law, probably portions of the Book of Deuteronomy.

Such a reformation, vividly described in II Kings 22, was long overdue, for the preceding reigns had been times of great wickedness, with flagrant idolatry, and the degradation and corruption of worship.

The times were pregnant with danger, and the fall of the kingdom, with the exile of the people to Babylon, was not far off. The little land of Palestine was caught, as it has often been, between great warring empires, and Josiah, himself, was to fall in battle, when he became involved against Egypt.

It was a time of opportunity, as well as of peril, for prophets. If they spoke words of truth and warning, if they pointed at the evils and weaknesses of what was obstensibly a time of prosperity, they were subject to the charge that they were pessimists, and disloyal to their nation.

Even today, in our modern democracies, people don't like to hear anything but favorable words. Yet it is not the strength, but the weakness, of our modern societies that should be our concern, if we wish to safeguard our future.

What would one think of a physician if, instead of facing and treating some diseased part of the body, he went into raptures over how sound and healthy the rest of it was? The prophets were spiritually-minded social physicians, and that is why they dwelt so much upon the evils and injustices of their time.

But their purpose was salvation. Zephaniah, like his greater contemporary, Jeremiah, saw in the events of the time the judgments of God.

Salvation came through judgment, but not perhaps precisely as the prophet foresaw it; for it was only through defeat, disaster, and exile that that spiritual regeneration was to come.

Cub Leaders Will Meet On Monday For June Program

Cub Scout leaders of the Central Boy Scout district will meet together Monday night for their June cub leaders' roundtable. Cub Scout officials have announced that the program will be held at 7:30 p. m. in the Ouachita parish courthouse with an unusually good program arranged.

A special handicraft instruction period has been planned for this session with materials on hand for all leaders to make various articles demonstrated. New den ceremonies, a new Cub game, and a dramatization will also be on the program.

New Cubbers will be welcomed and inducted into Cub scouting and all dens and packs will give the highlights of their recent Cub activities.

The Cub leaders roundtable is conducted monthly for the benefit of cubmasters, den mothers, pack committeemen, and any parents who are interested in the Cub Scout program.

Packs to be represented at the Monday night meeting are as follows: Pack 10, sponsored by the West Monroe Lions Club; Pack 13, sponsored by the First Baptist Church, West Monroe; Pack 14, sponsored by the Mitchell P.-T. A. West Monroe; Pack 1, sponsored by St. Matthew's P.-T. A., Monroe; Pack 31, sponsored by Georgia Tucker P.-T. A., Monroe; Pack 32, sponsored by Sherrouse P.-T. A., Monroe; Pack 34, sponsored by the First Methodist Church, Monroe; Pack 35, sponsored by Selman Field Veterans Apartment, Inc., Monroe; Pack 12, sponsored by First Baptist Church, Clarks; Pack 38, sponsored by Drew P.-T. A., West Monroe.

The Boy Scout program is a member agency of the Twin City Community Chest in Monroe.

Next time you make cole slaw, try adding part shredded carrots to the salad for a flavorful, colorful and nutritious combination.

St. Barnabas' Day

7:30 A. M. HOLY EUCHARIST

9:30 A. M. MORNING PRAYER & CHURCH SCHOOL

11:00 A. M HOLY EUCHARIST AND SERMON: Father Jones will preach on the subject: "St. Barnabas, the Apostle." The Offertory anthem will be: "Who Are These Like Stars Appearing?" Ushers, Mr. Thompson and Mr. Brown.

The anthem for today, found at No. 130 in the Hymnal, consists of stanzas 1, 3, 6, 7, and 9 from a 20 stanza poem written by Theobald Heinrich Schenck. It was first published in Frankfurt, Germany, 1719. Like Nos. 127, 387, and others of the hymnal, it is based on Revelations 7:13-17. Frances E. Cox translated 15 of the stanzas in her "Sacred Hymns from the German" 1841, beginning:

"Who are those that for before me Round the Throne of God I See?"

It has been in our Hymnal since 1892.

Pierre Monteux, CONDUCTOR, SAN FRANCISCO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, says:

"The Hammond Organ is a beautiful instrument and an absolute delight for anyone who loves music."

HAMMOND ORGAN MUSIC'S MOST GLORIOUS VOICE

Appreciation of the glorious tones of the Hammond Organ by those who really know fine music is just one of the many reasons why more than 18,000 churches own Hammond Organs. There is a Hammond Organ for every church, no matter what its size.

Provides music of cathedral quality... yet it's the world's lowest-priced complete church organ. See and hear it in our showrooms.

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE TODAY AND EVERY SUNDAY

From the twelfth century children have been learning to repeat this prayer of faith. Back of that are the other centuries when families quoted the 121st Psalm from which it was doubtless taken...

"Your Guardian will not slumber,
He will neither slumber nor sleep."

Precious lad with the dimpled cheeks, knowing so little what the world holds of joy and of sorrow, of foes and of friends, of sickness and of health, of defeat and of triumph. Perhaps he has mother and father now and every care for his happiness. Who knows what tomorrow holds for him? You and I may not be near to counsel and to encourage. What then?

Wise and thoughtful for all the years ahead were the parents who early introduced the lad to his eternal Friend and helped him to be at home in the Father's universe. Some day every boy and girl will have to stand alone; will there be strength from hidden springs, a sense of sustaining Power? Some day every woman and every man must make a choice between the high way and the low; will there be light that shines on the good path the soul should take?

Every child born into God's world has a right to know that God is Creator and Sovereign, that His will finally must prevail. Every girl and every boy has a right to be sure that the universe is friendly and that its basic principle is Love. Every living person has a right to trust and to faith and to hope. Every human being has a right to know that he is made in the image of God and eligible to a place in the divine Family. We are both animal and divine spirit; God breathed His own Spirit into man and he became a living Spirit, like unto God. Every child has a right to live reverently as in the continuing and blessed fellowship with the Highest; he has a right to the adult helpfulness that puts his feet in the Way of Life. Teach him to say, "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep. If I should die before I wake, I pray the Lord my soul to take."

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you"—form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCH-GOER and a daily BIBLE READER.

'A Ticket To Tomahawk' At Joy Theater For Seven Days

It was full speed ahead for laughs as Twentieth Century-Fox's comedy, "A Ticket to Tomahawk," opens today at the Joy Theater for seven days.

This sparkling story of the old west deals with the trials and tribulations of establishing the first narrow gauge railroad in the state of Colorado, and stars Dan Dailey and Anne Baxter.

Dan plays the part of Johnny-Behind-The-Deuce, a wondering drummer who inadvertently gets mixed up in the first trip the little railroad has scheduled.

A rival stage owner, Col. Dawson means to see that the railroad does not fulfill the terms of its franchise by getting to Tomahawk on time.

Johnny finally makes Epitaph, the first stop on the line in time to get involved in an attempt on the life of the U. S. Marshall. The peace officer's grandaughter, Kit Dodge, Jr., played by Ann Baxter, is an unkissed prairie flower, whose skill with a gun is legendary.

Dead Horse Point, forty miles away, is the next stop, but unfortunately, no tracks have been laid and Kit organizes a twenty mule team to make the trip overland.

At least one paying passenger has to be carried according to the franchise and Johnny is elected against his will, since the Arapaho Indians are reported on the warpath in the territory to be covered.

A Chinese laundryman, and a group of lovely entertainers headed for Tomahawk join the strange caravan.

Hectic perils beset the little band right up to the hilarious surprise finish.

Rory Calhoun, playing the role of Dawson's number one henchman, makes a thoroughly effective villain. Walter Brennan is also featured as the little train's resourceful engineer.

The movie, shot on location in Durange, Colorado, catches the full beauty of the rugged country in magnificent Technicolor.

AT THE JOY FOR 7 DAYS

Dan Dailey as a traveling drummer, completes the toughest sale of his career in talking the Arapaho chieftain out of an attack on his friends in a scene from Twentieth Century-Fox's hilarious western. "A Ticket to Tomahawk." The picture, starring Dailey and lovely Anne Baxter opens today at the Joy Theater.

IN MOVIELAND

HOLLYWOOD, June 10. —(AP)— Imagine interviewing a movie star's subconscious mind.

That's the notion I toyed with this week after talking to a cautious actress who had nothing to say but glittering generalities. I took her remarks and tried to envision what she was really thinking about. This is the result:

"Hello! So nice to see you again. (Nice! here I've got three pages of dialogue to learn and this egg-head wants to ask me a lot of stupid questions.)

"I've wanted to do this picture for a long time. It's the most exciting script I've read in years. (what script? every time I go before the camera, they hand me 10 new pages. I haven't had one piece of work like this since I left the shoe factory.)

"This picture is really a change ot pace for me. ('change of pace' meaning I had to take a $10,000 cut in salary.) The woman I play is really an off-beat character. (So far off-beat that 10 other stars turned it down.)

"And what an actor this leading man is! A real trouper. (If that lens-hog doesn't stop trynig to steal my scenes I'll bite his lip in the clinches.)

"I love working with this director. He has a sensitivity that is rare in Hollywood. (Why, that rum-bum couldn't direct traffic.)

"Yes, it's true—I'll be leaving the studio after this picture. It has been a long and successful association, but I think both of us need a change. I asked for my release. (Okay, so they didn't pick up my option.)

"No, I don't know what my next picture will be. I've been snowed under with scripts and haven't had time to read them all. Dore wants me to come over there and De Mill said he's writing a part in his circus picture for me. But first of all, I'm going to take a good rest."

COLBERT STARRED IN COMING FILM

'Three Came Home' Coming To Paramount Theater Next Wednesday

Twentieth Century-Fox has achieved a portrait of a woman's anguish and a woman's courage that will live on in the minds of those who see it for a long time to come. The picture is Agnes Newton Keith's autobiographical story, "Three Came Home," and it opens at the Paramount Theatre Wednesday. With Claudette Colbert to portary Mrs. Deith herself in that celebrated actress' most impressive of characterizations, with a magnificent show-stealing performance by the great Japanese actor Sessue Hayakawa, with the brilliant control of the director Jean Negulesco and the producer Nunnally Johnson (who also wrote the screenplay) everywhere in evidence, and with the personal supervision of studio chief Darryl F. Zanuck, "Three Came Home" can hardly fail to score heavily.

"Three Came Home" has the taste to deal with utter simplicity and utmost sincerity in the tragedy that befalls a small, closely-knit family unit living in Borneo just before the outbreak of the Pacific war. Harry Keith, a British Colonial official, urges his American-born wife to return to the states and escape the impending conflict, but she elects to stay devotedly by her husband's side. When Japan strikes, Mrs. Keith and their small son George are sent to one prison compound, Harry Keith to another. Then begin agonizing trials and unappeased longings. The war and the struggle for life as seen through the eyes of a loving family unit are far more affecting than when viewel in terms of the battle scenes of conventional war films.

With honesty and great feeling, the hardships, illnesses and indignities that Mrs. Keith and the other women suffer are shown. At al times realistic but sensitive, the movie never lets you forget that this is a real story about real people, and that what is being recorded on film is a visualization of Mrs. Keith's actual, published story. It s in this respect that the deeply genuine quality Miss Colbert brings to her role becomes of such great importance to the film.

IN OUTDOOR DRAMA

Dane Clark and Ruth Roman provide the romantic background in the technicolor drama "Barricade", which opens a three day engagement at the Paramount today, telling the story of a two-fisted man and his girl who risk death to defy the ruthless boss of a western gold-mining camp.

Warner's 'Barricade', An Outdoor Drama, Here Today

Ruth Roman, Dane Clark And Raymond Massey Starred At Paramount

"Barricade," a top rank western action drama with color by Technicolor, is the offering at the Paramount Theatre starting today.

Heading the important cast of the Warner Bros. film are Ruth Roman, rising young star, Dane Clark and Raymond Massey, veteran stage and screen liminary

A strong and colorful story centering about a lonely goldmining camp in the middle of a western desert, "Barricade" appears thrilling cinema fare. Massey is the ruthless boss of the camp into which Ruth Roman and Clark, both fugitives from justice, stumble for protection from unexplained pasts.

Robert Douglas, London stage actor, plays a lawyer who also turns up mysteriously, but he is tracking down the facts surrounding Massey's illegal possession of the property. The latter determines to keep the trio there against their wishes, the while preparing to stand off the rightful owners who finally do appear to re-claim the mine, and a thrilling siege and gun battle ensue, leading up to the climax of the film.

The great scenic backdrops of "Barricade" were acquired by Warner Bros. in a film treatment of the first rank by means of location shooting in the California desert. This, together with the presentation of Ruth Roman, who scored so heavily in "The Window," "Champion" and "Always Leave Them Laughing," in her first starring role, combine to make "Barricade" a film to watch for.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Have Safe Discards For Freeze

By Oswald Jacoby
Written for NEA Service

We have already noted that the number of cards in your hand and your position at the table are of great importance in an early freeze. The more cards you have, the better your chance to get the pack; the fewer cards, the less chance. When you have only a few cards, however, your disadvantage is lessened if the player at your left also has a reduced hand.

When the number of cards and position at the table are fairly equal, the most important question is: How many safe discards can our side find, and how many discards can the opponents find?

For example, suppose each side has melded and that each player has eight cards in his hand. Your side has melded only three aces and three kings. The opponents have melded three kings, three queens, three jacks, and three tens At this point the discard pile becomes frozen. Which side has the advantage?

Your side is much better off. It is usually safer to discard cards that match the enemy's melds (when the pack is frozen) than cards that haven't yet been melded. For example, when a player melds three queens, it may not be quite so safe for you to discard a queen. The player who follows you may have held a pair of queens in his hand instead of adding them to his partner's meld.

However, even the best opponents cannot be tricky all the time. If the player at your left has cards that match his partner's meld, he will often consider it good play to put some of them down. If he doesn't put any down, there is a very good chance that he doesn't hold as many as two of any such meld.

In the situation just described, the chances are that you and your partner have a small assortment of queens, jacks and tens that you were unwilling to discard before the pack became frozen. The opponents may have been holding some of your aces and kings, for the same reason, but there are only five aces and two kings in the deck, whereas there are 15 missing queens, jacks and tens. Hence you are more likely than the enemy to have several safe discards from the very beginning.

Q—My wife and I played a game of two-hand Canasta, and she was left at the end of the hand with five deuces and two jokers. What can be done with such a hand?

A—By the time you get around to asking such a question it's too late to do anything. All you can do then is deduct 100 points for the deuces and another 100 points for the two jokers. She should have made canastas and melded out before she got caught. If she had no base of four natural cards, then her early melds were unwise choices.

Q—We have a canasta and go out. The opponents have several melds on the table but no canasta. Does everything on the table and in their hands count against them, or just what they have in their hands?

A—They get credit for everything they have on the table, but everything in their hands count against them. In other words, they do not need a canasta to get credit for their melds.

Q—To make a meld of 120 points I had A-A-2 and 8-8-8-2-2. The opponents said I could use only one deuce per meld. Is this true?

A—Not a word of it. Your meld was perfectly correct.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Curtain Call
by Sue Williams

We have come to the end of another season in Little Theatre work. With the final performance of "Candle-Light" Saturday evening the final curtain for the year '49-50 rang down upon what will long be remembered as one of the most successful, constructive and decisive periods in its eighteen years. The echo of triumph in this year's endeavor has pealed loud beyond the limits of our own home town.

Your Little Theatre has presented to you under the capable direction of Charles Stocker Fontelieu a cross section of drama and comedy that would do any organization proud. The season kicked off with the raved about comedy "John Loves Mary" followed by the stage and movie hit, a victorian drama "Angel Street" that witnessed the discovery of that talented little Actress Annie Laymon. The third play reached back for another comedy in exaggerated domestic relations "Her Husband's Wife" and this was followed by the beautifully poetic mood drama "The Glass Menagerie" by southern Author Tennessee Williams The fifth play of the membership season was the ultra sophisticated, modern comedy "Voice of the Turtle". To round out a full year in entertaining theather there came latest offering the very hilarious farcial comedy "Candle - Light". Read the list back and you will find that every play presented this year has been tops on Broadway and most have been good enough theather to go to successful film versions.

A vote of thanks is due out-going President Gilbert Faulk for the courage he offered his board of directors and his workers in building Monroe and west Monroe s first real Little Theatre playhouse. The playhouse played a major part in the finished quality of some of the fine productions Little Theatre goers were privileged to see this year. Makes one wonder, how Little Theatre ever existed under a hit-and-miss proposition of wandering from one stage to another.

Some guardian angel must have been resting on President Faulk's shoulder when he chose Stocker Fontelieu from the list of applicants to direct this years plays. We have heard it said some several times as the season's activities progressed "Stocker is one in a million. He met our situation and our problems as one of us and he is besides this one of the finest directors anywhere." Just ask one of the thirty some odd actors and actresses whom he has directed this year or anyone of the members from his stage crews for the six plays and you will be in for a lengthy dissertation upon the merits of this talented young man.

And now for the news that spells another good year ahead next year —Stocker returns to us next fall and even with summer vacation ahead for him, he is already mapping out plans for next year's work. You can henceforth refer to him as Charles Stocker Fontelieu of Monroe and New Orleans (in that order).

We are just a little reluctant to say so long to all you good people —it has been fun. Here are pleasant vacation wishes for everyone and if you happen to miss our idle chatter during the summer months, we will be back with you next fall. You will note that we have variously been listed as Sue Williams and Sue Sharman Williams. The column next fall will be headed just plain Sue Sharman. So don't be confused-it will be the same column and the same reporter—so long and have fun.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

Have Safe Discards For Freeze

By Oswald Jacoby
Written for NEA Service

We have already noted that the number of cards in your hand and your position at the table are of great importance in an early freeze. The more cards you have, the better your chance to get the pack; the fewer cards, the less chance. When you have only a few cards, however, your disadvantage is lessened if the player at your left also has a reduced hand.

When the number of cards and position at the table are fairly equal, the most important question is: How many safe discards can our side find, and how many discards can the opponents find?

For example, suppose each side has melded and that each player has eight cards in his hand. Your side has melded only three aces and three kings. The opponents have melded three kings, three queens, three jacks, and three tens At this point the discard pile becomes frozen. Which side has the advantage?

Your side is much better off. It is usually safer to discard cards that match the enemy's melds (when the pack is frozen) than cards that haven't yet been melded. For example, when a player melds three queens, it may not be quite so safe for you to discard a queen. The player who follows you may have held a pair of queens in his hand instead of adding them to his partner's meld.

However, even the best opponents cannot be tricky all the time. If the player at your left has cards that match his partner's meld, he will often consider it good play to put some of them down. If he doesn't put any down, there is a very good chance that he doesn't hold as many as two of any such meld.

In the situation just described, the chances are that you and your partner have a small assortment of queens, jacks and tens that you were unwilling to discard before the pack became frozen. The opponents may have been holding some of your aces and kings, for the same reason, but there are only five aces and two kings in the deck, whereas there are 15 missing queens, jacks and tens. Hence you are more likely than the enemy to have several safe discards from the very beginning.

Q—My wife and I played a game of two-hand Canasta, and she was left at the end of the hand with five deuces and two jokers. What can be done with such a hand?

A—By the time you get around to asking such a question it's too late to do anything. All you can do then is deduct 100 points for the deuces and another 100 points for the two jokers. She should have made canastas and melded out before she got caught. If she had no base of four natural cards, then her early melds were unwise choices.

Q—We have a canasta and go out. The opponents have several melds on the table but no canasta. Does everything on the table and in their hands count against them, or just what they have in their hands?

A—They get credit for everything they have on the table, but everything in their hands count against them. In other words, they do not need a canasta to get credit for their melds.

Q—To make a meld of 120 points I had A-A-2 and 8-8-8-2-2. The opponents said I could use only one deuce per meld. Is this true?

A—Not a word of it. Your meld was perfectly correct.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

GET OUT! GET OUT BEFORE I—

I'D BETTER STROLL DOWN TO THE CORNER AND LET HIM COOL OFF FOR AWHILE. A VERY PECULIAR GENTLEMAN, MR. BLOWTOP.

THAT STUPID HAM! I OUGHT TO TELL 'IM, BUT I CAN'T! HE TOSSED AWAY 5 GRAND OF MY DOUGH FOR THAT HOTTENTOT'S SHRUNKEN HEAD.

MEANWHILE, AT HEADQUARTERS.

GREATEST EXAMPLE OF HONESTY I EVER SAW.

FINDS A FORTUNE IN A SHIRT AND SAYS IT IS NOT HIS!

YOU SEE, BEING A VISITOR TO THESE SHORES I CANNOT AFFORD TO GET INVOLVED IN SCANDAL OR CRIME.

I SOLD THE HEAD FOR SEVEN DOLLARS—NO MORE. THE MONEY THAT FELL OUT OF THIS SHIRT WAS NOT MINE.

WELL, JUST WHAT IS YOUR PROBLEM, PROFESSOR?

BE A VENTRILOQUIST

ONLY 25 CENTS! ONE-FOURTH OF A DOLLAR—STEP RIGHT UP, GENTS.

WITH THIS LITTLE TRINKET IN YOUR MOUTH, YOU CAN THROW YOUR VOICE.

MY FIRST STAGE BILLING WAS AS A VENTRILOQUIST 40 YEARS AGO! I WONDER?

SINCE THE MAN WHO BEFRIENDED YOU WAS AFOOT, THAT MEANS THE LAUNDRY MUST BE NEAR THAT INTERSECTION. CAN YOU TAKE US THERE?

YES, SIR.

HALF HOUR LATER—

SHALL WE GO BACK AND SEE MR. BLOWTOP?

OH, BY ALL MEANS—BY ALL MEANS!

(Your soft drink dealer will have a list of these "headquarters.") EACH TIME you bring in new style DR. FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE ®

AT THE SPACE-PORT WARDEN GROF GETS AN AMAZING VISIPHONE CALL. ZIN TELLS HIM: "SET THE FUSE ON THE LIQUIGEN BOMB IN THE ROCKET-SHIP. FLASH IS HEADING YOUR WAY. PRETEND TO RESIST---BUT LET HIM STEAL THE SHIP AND TAKE OFF."

FLASH BLUFFS HIS WAY INSIDE THE SPACE-PORT, CLAIMING ZIN HAS SENT HIM. BUT AT THE LAST MINUTE GROF BELLOWS: "STOP THAT MAN! HE'S FLASH GORDON!"

FLASH ISN'T SO EASY TO STOP. HIS BLAZING GUN FORCES THE GUARDS TO SEEK COVER, WHILE DALE LEAPS INTO THE ROCKET-SHIP.

"WE'RE OFF!" FLASH SHOUTS, AS HE CHECKS THE ATOM-FUEL FOR THE TRIP TO MONGO. "DARLING," DALE SAYS PROUDLY, "I KNEW YOU'D BEAT ZIN SOMEHOW."

ZIN AND RUBIA WATCH FLASH'S ROCKET CLIMB INTO SPACE. ZIN TELLS GROF: "NOW REPORT THAT FLASH AND DALE HAVE TAKEN OFF. TELL THE LISTENING POSTS ON MONGO TO START TRACKING THEM BY SPACE-RADAR. WE WANT MONGO TO SEE THE ROCKET BLOW UP. THEY'LL THINK IT WAS AN ACCIDENT."

HERE ARE THE EASY RULES!

1. Save the new style DR. PEPPER BOTTLE CAPS, with "Dr. Pepper 10-2-4" printed on them. The old Dr. Pepper bottle caps are NOT acceptable in this contest, and your use of even ONE old cap, or a cap other than Dr. Pepper, will make your entry null and void.

2. By or before the close of the contest (July 31, 1950) or as many times as you wish prior to that date, take your new style DR. PEPPER CAPS to "Official Local Contest Headquarters." (Your soft drink dealer will have a list of these "headquarters.") EACH TIME you bring in new style DR. PEPPER CAPS, they will be counted and a copy of the Official Contest Certificate filled in showing the number of new style DR. PEPPER CAPS you turned in, and the original copy of the Certificate will be given you. DO NOT MAIL individual certificates to National Contest Headquarters more than once. (SEE RULE 3 BELOW.)

3. Send all your copies of the Official Contest Certificates, showing TOTAL NUMBER OF CAPS TURNED IN, to

John Wayne, Honorary Chairman
Dr. Pepper Contest Judging Committee
Box 2789, Hollywood 28, California

The envelope containing your certificates must be postmarked prior to midnight July 31, 1950.

4. All entries will be checked for accuracy, and National Contest Headquarters will be advised of any discrepancies, which will result in disqualification of your entry.

5. The 2,311 ENTRANTS TURNING IN THE LARGEST COLLECTIONS OF NEW STYLE DR. PEPPER CAPS will qualify for the National Finals, and participate in competition for the 2,311 prizes. Only one prize can be won by each entrant in the National Finals. Winners will be adjudged on the basis of completing the last line of the following jingle:

When a Lift for Life You Need
Dr. Pepper takes the lead
It's the Stop that Gives You Go
. . . . . .

6. The entrants who qualify for the National Finals under Rule 5 will be notified of that fact by Reuben H. Donnelley Corp., Contest Judges. Do not send in your jingle entries until you have been notified that you have qualified as one of the 2,311 National Finalists.

7. Anyone may enter except employees of Dr. Pepper Company, Dr. Pepper Bottling Companies, their advertising agency, and their families. All jingles submitted in the National Finals, and all caps and certificates turned in in this contest shall become the property of Dr. Pepper Company to be used as they see fit and none will be returned. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded, and decisions of the judges will be final.
